(Contributed)

The Fine Arts Club met Thursday night with Mrs. R. S. Ormand, hostess at "Kilcaire Cottage", Piedmont Springs.

The meeting was called to order by the Pres. Mrs. J. J. Taylor.

The Club voted to send some money to Queens Charlotte Maternal Hospital.

Two very interesting and well given books were reviewed by Mrs. Ellington and Mrs. Ormand. Mrs. Ellington gave the first paper "The story begins in 1812. It is about battles, battles and battles. A sweet love story goes along with the story. Juanita is heroine of the book. She takes on responsibilities and acts as a mother to the soldiers.

Mrs. Ormand reviewed the book "Madame Curie" by Eva Curie. Madame Curie a Biography by Eva Curie, her daughter. (Translated by Vincent Sheean. This is an outstanding Biography of the season and of many seasons, a discover of radium.

It is a story of a little Polish girl. She married Perry Curie. Both were extremely congenial interested in the same things and work until his death side by side in the laboratory. Both did a great and helpful work for humanity. She was a widow at an early age. She died with burnt hands and arms that was caused by touching so much radium.

Mrs. Nellie Joyce won a box of bath powder having the most in a unique contest. Delicious refreshments were served.

The meeting adjourned to meet again on August 28th.

CAN'T ESCAPE BY MARRYING

RULE CITES MARRIAGES AFTER EXAMINATION ORDERS GO OUT

Registrants who get married on the eve of induction or after being ordered to report to the doctor for physical examination will do so at their own risk and will find their marriage will not keep them out of the Army.

This was made clear to local selective service officials yesterday by General J. Van B. Metts, state director of selective service, as he announced a modification of the former policy of leniency toward married men which has been recommended by state headquarters. General Metts stated that a modification in this policy was made necessary by an increasingly large number of registrants who are apparently undertaking to abuse the policy of leniency in an effort to evade military service.

The modified policy, passed on to all boards throughout the state, is as follows:

"When a registrant acquires marriage status after issuance of notice to appear for physical examination, it should be assumed that both parties concluded the marriage knowing that the registrant was subject to early call for service and were prepared to take the consequence and therefore deferment in such cases would not appear to be justified. But when a registrant has indicated on his questionnaire that he is engaged, giving the date set for the wedding, or has given similar information in writing to the local board and the wedding date falls after issuance of notice to appear for physical examination, his case should be considered in the same way as should those who married after registration, as provided by amendment No. 77 to selective service regulations. Of course, there may be other conditions which would obviously temper the above announced modification of policy, e. g., proof that the wife was pregnant, or conclusive evidence of absolute dependence wherein the wife would suffer undue hardship if compelled to live on the registrant's income as a soldier, etc."

This modified policy, the selective service head pointed out, is to the regulations, which is as follows:

"It is not advisable to defer any such registrant if he acquired such status for the purpose of avoiding training and service, and, therefore, no registrant should be placed in class III if he acquired such status after the day when he was required to be registered unless (1) he or his claimed dependents present to the local board written statements of the facts peculiarly within their knowledge, showing the history leading up to and the circumstances under which such status under which such status was acquired, and (2) such facts show that the status of the registrant was acquired in a manner consistent with the ordinary course of human affairs and was not acquired to provide the registrant with a basis for a claim for class III deferment."
