Madison Breeze

Editor R. M. Spear and his young son Michael breezed into the Reporter office today, up for a trip to the Hanging Rock Park and to fish in the Duke dam below here. The editor, who publishes one of the most interesting papers that come to the Reporter's desk, says Madison is rather dull now, so many gone to the war, others away on jobs. He tells us that Columnist Wall is better after his recent illness. Mrs. Spear is the only help this journalist has in getting out his paper, but this seems to be quite adequate.

Tire Situation Critical; Tubes Are Ration Free

Although all inner tubes are now ration-free, L. W. Driscoll, district director of the OPA at Charlotte, pointed out that the tire situation is still critical, since the demand for them exceeds the supply. Tubes are not needed nearly as badly as tires, Mr. Driscoll said, and so it is possible for synthetic rubber production to keep up with this demand. Tubes are all made so a great deal easier to manufacture than tires, for the manpower needs are much under those for the manufacture of tires.
