DURHAM, N. C., FRIDAY EVENING, AUGUST 14, 1891.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

HUTCHINS IS FINED!

It Costs Him $50 to Monkey with His Scales.

But He Takes an Appeal to a Higher Court.

AND HE SHOULD WIN HIS CASE.

People Who Come and Go—Brief Brevities of Interest to All Readers of The Globe.

The trial of J. W. Hutchins, the butcher, whose scales he failed to turn in, was on to day. Parker and Guthrie appeared for Sims, the weigh master, but Hutchings had no lawyer.

Justice Gunter heard the case and it appeared to him that Hutchins was guilty. We do know that such a law is idiotic and out of place. All merchants and all men in business depend upon honest weights and do not care about any beeswax seal.

The following letter from a very large merchant in Durham is a sample case of what is coming:

DURHAM, N. C., Aug. 13, 1891.

TO THE EDITOR—I note your article in THE GLOBE to-day on weights and measures. Will you kindly enquire of the authorities through your paper, why the standard keeper of weights and measures uses beeswax instead of lead or some metal in bringing up short weights? Why, after sealing; two weights of four pounds each, should vary one ounce at least, (both supposed to be tested and brought up to standard weight of North Carolina).

Why scales he is supposed to seal do not balance?

Does not the law require that "North Carolina standard" shall be stamped upon his work, as a preventive of fraud and if so, how long will said stamp stand upon beeswax?

The writer knows of two parties in the city who have had their scales "sealed" with wax. Does the standard keeper want to protect buyers from dishonesty on the part of sellers, or is he after the shekels, and trying to make the law a farce? Finally, can he force a man to have his scales stuck up with wax.

Yours truly,

MERCHANT.

The real truth is, the law is without reason, and there is no doubt concerning Hutchins' case when he gets it before a court. The justice perhaps read the law as he administered it. THE GLOBE knows nothing about his motive. It cares nothing about it, but if there is another legislature in session, such nonsensical laws will come off the books.

Hutchins was fined $50 and cost, and took an appeal.

TRINITY OPENING.

The Announcement of the Opening in Another Way Which is Also Official.

Owing to the inability of the contractors engaged on the new buildings of the college at Durham, to complete them for use by October 1, the date announced for opening the next collegiate year, the executive committee of the board of trustees of Trinity College has directed that the fall term of the operations of the college be resumed in the buildings hitherto occupied by the college at Trinity Station, Randolph county, N. C.

The fall term will be opened on Thursday, September 3, at 10 a. m., just a month earlier than was formerly announced, at the old location. September first and second will be given to Matriculation, of lodgings and examination in such subjects as may be deemed necessary to determine what work applicants are fitted to take.

During this term the newly installed professors will deliver inaugural addresses pertinent to the work of the special chair of which they assume charge.

State papers will oblige the friends of the institution by copying the above announcement.

TRINITY COLLEGE!

Some Facts from the Committee To-day.

When It Will Open and What is Expected.

IT IS TO BE STRONGER THAN EVER.

Where Baseball Was Played Yesterday and Who Won the Games in the Heat.

With tomorrow's mails thousands of letters will go out from Durham containing the following official announcement of the action of the board of trustees of Trinity college, through its executive committee:

Supplement to Bulletin No. 10. TRINITY COLLEGE PARK, DURHAM, Aug. 13, 1891.

To the Patrons of Trinity College and to the Public Generally:

The contractors engaged on the new buildings of Trinity college at Durham, N. C., inform the building committee that the necessary buildings cannot be gotten ready for use by the time announced for the opening of the fall term, October 1. In view of the unexpected delay in the completion of the main building of Trinity college, caused by the sinking of the tower, the executive committee of the board of trustees herewith publicly announce that the operations of the college will be resumed in the buildings formerly occupied by the college at Trinity, in Randolph county, N. C., until the completion of the new buildings at Durham.

The fall term of the institution will open at 10 a. m. on Thursday, September 3.

Students should present themselves on Tuesday and Wednesday beforehand to select lodgings, matriculate, and take any examinations that may be necessary to determine their work for the ensuing term.

Trinity High school, which now occupies the college buildings in Trinity, will continue its operations in a large building adjacent to the college, which was recently purchased by the board of trustees, so that both Trinity college and the High school can be fully accommodated.

The faculty as announced in bulletin No 10, including twenty members, twelve of whom are regular professors and eight instructors of extraordinary abilities, will enter upon their work of instruction at the former location, during the coming term.

The law school will, however, not be formally opened, until the opening of the work at Durham, though regular instruction in studies preparatory to admission to the bar will be given, without extra charge.

The rates of instruction at the old location will be practically the same as they have been heretofore.

The trustees and faculty hereby acknowledge the many expressions of sympathy that have been given and cordially extend the thanks in return, begging leave to make special mention of the resolutions of sympathy passed at the late session of the North Carolina yearly meeting of Friends at High Point, on account of the damage done to the Main building of Trinity college at Durham by the sinking of the tower, on the night of August 8.

The damage done has no doubt been greatly exaggerated in the public mind; yet great as it may be, every trace of it will be removed, if we may continue to commit upon the devotion of faithful workmen who are aiding us in repairing the unexpected loss. On the other hand the blessings of adversity will in the end have made the institution stronger than ever in its holy mission to humanity.

What the Ledger Said About Those Who Took in the Excursion.

The excursionists from Lynchburg and Durham, who arrived here last evening, were the dustiest set of people that ever came into Norfolk. They were literally covered with dust. Some went to Baltimore others to Washington, while many of them remained here to take in the two cities and the neighboring watering places. They return home by the 21st to which date their tickets are good on any trains over the Atlantic and Danville and Lynchburg and Durham Railroads.

SHE APPEARED IN TIGHTS.

Mrs. Cronyn, Wife of a Wealthy Buffalo Physician, a Chorus Singer.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Mrs. Emma Cronyn, wife of Dr. John Cronyn, a prominent physician, has joined the Carlton Opera Company as a chorus singer, and appeared on the stage at Washington last night as a student in "Amorita," dressed in tights. Mrs. Cronyn is a very handsome blonde and is of almost perfect physical proportions. Her husband has a large practice, and she had almost everything she could desire.

She became infatuated with the stage, and when the Carlton Opera Company was in this city she applied for a position. She was told that she must start at the bottom in the chorus, but this did not deter her, and on Sunday she left with the company for Washington. Dr. Cronyn is much distressed over his wife's conduct. His office was closed to-day and the doctor could not be found.
