SENATE TARIFF DEBATE.
The Ball Opens With Speeches From Allison and Vance—Great Effort of the North Carolinian—Chief-Justice Fuller Takes the Oath of Office.
Special Correspondence to THE PLANT.
WASHINGTON, October 8.—Senator Allison's speech in opening the great tariff discussion in the Senate to-day was a disappointment to his friends. It was dreary, verbose, rambling and distinctly behind his reputation, which is not very high as a speaker. On the subjects of sugar and alcohol he used arguments which entirely destroyed the position on the tariff taken by his party. Mr. Allison was heard with respectful attention and spoke for more than two hours, closing just before 3 o'clock. He was followed by Senator Vance for the Democrats. The North Carolina Senator made one of the most powerful and interesting speeches made on the subject in this Congress. That it was well written and well delivered I need not take the trouble to aver. He spoke from three to half past four o'clock, and had the close attention of the Democratic side and of certain Republican Senators. Around him were Justice Lamar, of the Supreme court, Senators Aldrich, Butler, Brown, Berry, Chace, Cockrell, Daniel, Coke, George, Gray, Eastis, Harris, Hampton, Pugh, Payne, Reagan, Salisbury, Walthall and others; Representatives Johnston and Rowland, of North Carolina; Clements and Turner, of Georgia; Rogers, of Arkansas, and Sowden, of Pennsylvania. Everybody who heard the argument praised it for its incisiveness and raciness of treatment. The thorough preparation of the Senator, extending back many years, was noticeable. Not only did he defend the cardinal principle of the true tariff reform bill, the Mills bill being named explicitly as meeting the definition; that to reduce the tariff equitably you must make the reduction equally on the protective articles and those purely of revenue; but he proceeded to demonstrate the intense selfishness of the Republican bill, framed in the sole interest of the manufacturer, and which he denominated "the tariff steal." He stated that the interested manufacturers violated all notions of decency by coming before the committee to urge their own cause and imposed on the majority to the extent of at least ten million dollars in the so-called simplification process alone. With great clearness and ability, Senator Vance discussed the provisions of the Senate bill, the question of wages and the further question of the home market. He showed plainly that the remedial features of the Mills bill respecting the internal tax system were rejected because between the lines they were not seen to enure to the benefit of the protected manufacturers. Since he had been in the Senate no Republican of either House had even proposed to reduce the tariff. Their policy, he contended, was to force the former to reverse the true economic rule and sell in the lowest market while buying in the highest. His figures showing how the manufacturing States of New England had apparently prospered at the expense of population and especially of the country districts were full, and evidently disgruntled Mr. Hoar, who stumbled into the debate awkwardly and retired as soon as he could. A very distinguished assemblage crowded the Supreme Court room when Chief Justice Fuller took the oath of office at 12 o'clock to-day. The loyalty oath was taken privately in the retiring room. The new Chief Justice wore a new silk gown and seemed small sitting between the stalwart Justices Miller and Harlan.

Two Justices, Field and Matthews, the latter ill, were absent. The new Chief looks remarkably bright and alert. The whole bench called on the President after the ceremony. The bill of the Democratic Senator Harris providing for warehousing brandy passed the House to-day. Several Republican members thought they smelt a rat, but offered no obstacle besides asking a few harmless questions. The bill provided that the provisions of an act entitled "An act relating to the production of fruit brandy, and to punish frauds connected with the same," approved March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, be extended and made applicable to brandy distilled from apples or peaches, or from any other fruit the brandy distilled from which is not now required or hereafter shall not be required to be deposited in a distillery warehouse; Provided, that each of the warehouses established under said act, or which may hereafter be established, shall be in charge either of a storekeeper or of a storekeeper and gauger, at the discretion of Commissioner of Internal Revenue. The report was made by Senator Vance.

News from the Capital.
Special Correspondence to THE PLANT.
RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 9, '88.
The case of A. H. Temple vs. the State of North Carolina, may not be called in the Supreme Court of the United States until Thursday. To-day the Court will set the time when it will be heard. This case was referred to yesterday. It is the suit in which A. H. Temple is the nominal plaintiff and Morton, Bliss & Co. the real plaintiffs. Although, no matter how the suit may terminate, the people will never recognize those special tax bonds, yet there is natural interest felt in this suit, which goes up on appeal from Judge Bond's decision. There are new points which affect all the States alike.
Rev. Mr. Clark, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, yesterday sent $105 to the yellow fever sufferers, at Jacksonville. It was the first money, so far as known, sent away from Raleigh. Yet in 1878, in one evening, $1,200 was raised here for the Memphis sufferers.
It is Mr. Tuck Badger, and not Mr. Robinson, who is to be in charge of the bucket shop and special wire here. The wire will be strung by next Friday between Goldsboro and Raleigh. Mr. Robinson will be the special operator.
Ground was broken yesterday for an extension of the street car line from Fayetteville street out West Hargett to the Hargett street station. It will be very convenient for people going to and coming from the fair.
Mr. Wilson reports a heavy demand for privileges at the State fair grounds. He will have all sorts of side shows there. The balloon ascension Wednesday will be a prominent attraction. St. John's hospital will have the dining hall in charge, and all the profits will go to the use of that worthy institution.
Mr. H. A. Guder, of Asheville, will speak here to-morrow evening. He made a very vigorous joint canvass in the extreme west with J. C. Pritchard, the Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor.
Raleigh will certainly be well represented at the Durham Exposition next Wednesday and Thursday. The attendance of ladies will be large, and all look forward to the affair with special interest.
The Supreme Court yesterday began the call of appeals from the third district. Many of them go over, owing to the absence of lawyers. The latter are in many cases looking after campaign matters. The court filed the first opinions of the term last evening.
The Cross and White appeal is docketed as No. 131, next week, and it is said will come up on Thursday.
There was quite a painful occurrence here Sunday. A lady from Florida was visiting relatives in this city, yellow fever broke out in a new place and attacked several members of her family. Her relatives here did not dare tell her the news or let her see the newspapers. So they adroitly kept her in ignorance, until Sunday, when hearing more favorable reports from the sick they informed her. The strain almost prostrated the poor woman.
It is learned that Whiting Bros., the clothiers, will wind up their business at the end of the current year. The Yarboro house, since the painters have exercised their art upon its front, looks like a brand-new building. The combinations of colors relieve the monotony of the front, heretofore so noticeable.
The re-organization of the fire department, in accordance with the requirements of the recently adopted ordinance, will be made at once. The companies will be so reduced as to give each only 25 men; an ample number. The disorder which is sometimes observed at fires, will exist no more.
Now is North Carolina's time to "cut in" and get a really desirable class of settlers. People are writing here daily now, making inquiries of the Department of Agriculture as to the State. These letters are in most cases from Florida, and are evidently from people who have settled there and now wish to get away. Commissioner Robinson is supplying the enquirers with all sorts of information regarding the State and tell them that they will find the State all they may desire it to be and that they will find also a hearty welcome from a hospitable people.

It is said now that a passenger depot is to be built by the Seaboard system at the Hargett street station. The railroad people are very reticent about the matter, but the ground was measured some days ago, it is claimed, with this object in view.
How things change. Thirty years ago Raleigh's dealings were with Petersburg. Now, so slight is the intercourse between the points that Petersburg might as well be five thousand miles away and even a telegram from there is almost a curiosity. Raleigh's business relations are now with New York, Chicago, Richmond and Norfolk, almost entirely.
