Those who live here year after year who were born and raised here, do not see the change-do not realize the wonderful transformation which has been wrought. A mother never realizes that her boy is a man until he brings home his bride. The people here see the will hardly incorporate that fact in their growth-they know that new enterprises are being launched : they see new buildings and look upon new faces which they know are strangers.

In all this progress and push, Durham has held her own with sister cities in North Carolina, and yet people who have lived here fifteen years do not know that the town has been almost entirely built during that period.

The only way to get a proper understanding and a true appreciation of what is going on here is to take a walk or drive around and through the city.

Harrison rode the hobby of grand father. His grand dad had been presi dent and the log cabin campaign, when "Maine went hell bent for Tippecanoe and Tyler, too" inspired the people who live on traditions and mix sentiment with business when business and sentiment should never be mixed. All of the HAR RISON administration has been conducted on the "you tickle me and I'll tickle you" principle. It seemed to be the policy to reward those with office who coughed up the most lucre to the fat-frying campaign. BLAINE was given a position in the cabinet, not because he coughed, but because he stood aside and allowed HAR-Wanted he non insted when the pe already in his mind, HARRISON very wisely gave BLAINE first place, hoping thereby to hold him ont of the race this whirl. But this scheme failed, and BLAINE will be nominated by acclamation or develop enough strength to keep the persimmon out of the reach of the HABRISON pole. If BLAINE is not nomi nated he will have things so arranged that he will continue Secretary of State and HARRISON will resume his law prac tice in Indiana. Perhaps he will buy an incubator and go into the chicken business with HAYS. This idea of BLAINE being the first man in the new cabinet is based on the belief that the democrats will defeat their leader, because a few jealous politicians want another man nominated at Chicago.
