

SUMMARY.

Rev. Chas. Lockwood, pastor of the Reformed Church, at Fairfield, N. J., became suddenly insane Sunday night, and came near succeeding in burning to death his wife and children. President-elect Harrison is being besieged by office seekers. Charles H. Brooks, a well known lawyer, of Boston, commits suicide; cause, financial trouble. On Monday an inmate of the Erie, Pa., Soldiers' Home, pulled a chair from under a comrade as he went to sit down in giving him a pull which resulted in his death in a few hours. A Germantown, Pa., man during a fit of jealousy fatally shot his wife. Birmingham, Ala., is excited over an attempt at rape made on a young lady near that place; the ravisher is being hunted, and is thought to be lynched. Rumor comes from Charleston, S. C., that Gen. Mahone has promised the postmaster of that city to a prominent Democrat, who was on his staff in case he is made Postmaster General. Tis said the Washington City hoteliers have all agreed to put up the price of board during the inaugural. Tis stated upon good authority that England will aid in forcing the treaty prohibiting European governments obtaining dominion of Samoa. There was a political riot in Paris Monday night, twenty persons were injured and two of the rioters were arrested. It is rumored that work will be resumed on the Panama canal, that the French people will subscribe $100,000,000 more to the enterprise. A majority of the sovereigns of the German States will visit Berlin Sunday, it being the birthday of Emperor William.

Mr. Brower, the member of Congress from the Greensboro district, introduced a bill in the House Monday for the repeal of the tax on tobacco and wanted it referred to the committee on war claims, but his motion was denied. Why he wants the war claims committee to pass on the tobacco tax no one knows.

The Wilmington Stars says: "President Cleveland has nominated a successor to the late Judge Settle, but the Republicans in the Senate do not seem disposed to fill vacancies. The Democrats are trying to have new Judicial Districts created in several Southern States so as to limit the powers of the judges now in office."

The News and Observer says: "The committee on Trinity College from the Raleigh Chamber of Commerce and Industry met yesterday morning in the Mayor's office and appointed a sub-committee consisting of Hon. Alf. A. Thompson and Messrs. E. B. Barbee, E. G. Harrell and Dr. E. P. Hines, to confer with the legislative committee in the matter. A large amount has already been guaranteed by the citizens of Raleigh."

The Wilmington Star seems to anticipate differing with Governor Fowle in his ideas of right, duty and propriety. It says: "Governor Fowle's Inaugural Address has the merit of shortness. It is not a specially striking production, but is free from spread-eagle rhetoric. It takes a gratifying practical turn. The Star will give his Administration of State affairs a fair, candid and if possible intelligent trial, and will support the new Governor heartily whenever it can do so consistently with its own honest convictions of right, duty and propriety. We reproduce some extracts from the Inaugural elsewhere."

TOWN TALK.

Shoe factory. Grasp the opportunity to secure the shoe factory. East-bound train about forty minutes late to-day. Attend the sale of valuable property at 12 o'clock to-morrow. Don't overlook Jones & Lyon's sweeping reduction in winter goods. There will be a public drill of the Durham Light Infantry next Monday night. The festival given by the ladies of the Blackwell Baptist church, last night, was largely attended. Big breaks of tobacco again today. Let it come right along. Durham buyers are ready for it. Stand firm! Don't be dismayed by a repulse. Rally and come again. The lawless must not be permitted to rule the roost. Rain is predicted. Ain't such a prediction calculated to strike with dread and horror those who are obliged to plow through muddy sidewalks during wet spells? How long, oh, how long are we to be thus burdened? Don't fail to attend the sale of stores, town lots, stocks and personal property, by Messrs. Fuller & Whitted, trustees for Mr. E. J. Parrish, at 12 o'clock, to-morrow. For particulars read the advertisement to be found in THE PLANT. The case of the State against Geo. Whitt Taylor, for violating the local option law, which was tried in the Superior Court yesterday, resulted in a new trial, the jury failing to agree. The defendant was bound over to the next term of the court. We would call attention to a new pattern of tooth brush recently introduced on the market, known as the Arrington Brush, designed by Dr. Arrington, of our city, whose reputation as a dentist is a guarantee of the superior merits of the brush. All the druggist in Durham keep them. Try them.

Do You Sing?

All the members of the Y. M. C. A. who can sing are requested to meet at the Assembly room to-night, at 8 o'clock, to practice for the anniversary exercises, next Sunday night.

Next Sunday Night.

The anniversary exercises of the Durham Young Men's Christian Association will take place at Trinity Church, next Sunday night, when an address will be delivered by Rev. Dr. Thos. Hume, of the University of North Carolina. The public is cordially invited to attend.

To-Morrow.

Do you want stock in the First National Bank of Durham? Do you want stock in the Durham Electric Light Company? Do you want stock in the Durham Fertilizer Company? Do you want stores, or ground to build them on? Do you want horses or phaetons? If so, don't miss the sale to-morrow, at 12 o'clock, by Messrs. Fuller & Whitted, trustees.

Rejoices in Their Grit.

The Danville Times says: "The best people of Durham have become disgusted with the violation of the local option law, and are holding meetings in order to have the laws enforced. The Times rejoices in their grit and manly sentiments. If ever there was a law that has been trampled under foot, almost with impunity, this is one. When a Christian Judge fines a violator of this law only ten dollars--what are the people to hope for, from a Judge who drinks himself. This thing has gone far enough. We want to see justice done on all sides; enforce the laws in this and every other respect, and the criminals are the only ones who can complain."

Shoe Factory.

It is said that the extensive shoe manufactory of W. H. Wetmore & Co. will probably be moved from Raleigh, and it is intimated that if sufficient inducements are offered, Durham may be selected as the permanent location. We understand that the company employs two hundred operatives, with probability of increase, and that the business is in a prosperous condition. It would prove a valuable addition to our manufacturing interests and it is certainly worth an effort to get it here. But as what is everybody's business is nobody's business, we fear this favorable opportunity to secure such an industry will be permitted to slip if there is not concert of action. We would suggest that the Commonwealth Club take the matter in charge and see what can be done. Steps should be taken at once, too, for we are informed that at least one other place is moving to secure this important industry.

"Peace, Quiet and General Sobriety."

As evidence of the kind of "peace, quiet and general sobriety" that the sale of liquor produces, we copy the following from the Raleigh Spirit of the Age, which we commend to the serious consideration of the Asheville Citizen: "We had prohibition in this city two years ago, but because the law was violated, and now then a drunken man was seen on the streets, some of our people (good people they are) came to the conclusion that it was doing no good; and when the election took place last June, they would not go to the polls to vote. "Immediately the bar-rooms were opened, and the city was flooded with liquor. What is the consequence? No pen can answer that question, save the pen of the recording angel, for God only knows the fearful result of the re-opening of the bar-rooms. Is there more drunkenness now than during Prohibition? At least five times as much; and commensurate with the increase of drinking and drunkenness is the increase of wickedness and crime. "The daily arrests by our policemen will give any man who wants the information an idea of what the dram shops are doing. But if one is not satisfied with that exhibit, let him go out and see for himself, and if he has a heart of flesh, he will be saddened indeed when he begins to realize the true condition of things, especially among our young men."

The event occurred yesterday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, at the Methodist Church, in Hillsboro. Mr. Gattis informs us that the bridal presents were numerous and some of them very handsome.

A New Enterprise.

Mr. E. C. Hackney has given bond and paid all the required taxes for the prosecution of the auction, broker and commission business. The auctioneering will be done by Mr. C. A. W. Barham, the veteran auctioneer, who has had thirty years experience, is widely known, has a host of friends and, in short, is one of the best auctioneers in the country. He is a good 'un sure. THE PLANT extends best wishes to all concerned in this enterprise.

Mr. J. S. Carr and the Veterans' Convention.

From the News and Observer, of this morning, we copy the following, relating to the part taken in the Confederate Veterans' Convention, at Raleigh, last night, by our distinguished and highly esteemed townsman, Mr. Julian S. Carr, to whose heart the cause of the disabled wearers of the gray is so near and so dear:

At 7:30 o'clock, in accordance with arrangements, Col. L. L. Polk presented Julian S. Carr, Esq., the specially invited presiding officer of the convention. Col. Polk said: "Er-Confederate Soldiers, Ladies and Gentlemen:

At the request and on behalf of the disabled soldiers, it has been made my pleasing duty of presenting as the presiding officer of this convention one who has endeared himself, not only to the disabled soldiers here assembled, but to every heart which throbs with a feeling of love for North Carolina and sympathy for her surviving soldiers. I present the Hon. Julian S. Carr, of Durham.

Mr. President Carr, upon taking the chair, said:

"Follow Soldiers of a Cause we all loved but which was lost, Ladies and Gentlemen: My position burdens me with embarrassment. Especially so, since the honorable gentleman, our fellow-soldier, who presented me and who, I am proud to tell you, was as gallant and brave upon the field of battle as he is complimentary and courteous upon the platform, has found it in his heart to say such kind things about me, and, because, since your complimentary invitation to preside over this honorable convention came to me, I have scarcely had an hour that I could call my own.

Added to this the further fact of my inexperience in presiding over public meetings, I trust your patience and charity may be vouchsafed to me this evening, at least to the extent of my frailties.

Mr. Carr then proceeded to deliver his address, which will be published in full in the News and Observer. We regret that the lateness of the hour at which we received a copy of it prevents its appearance this morning. It was elegant, chaste, ornate and beautiful. It sparkled with the rarest gems of rhetorical, beautiful and poetic thought and was a most magnificent tribute to and appeal for the brave soldiers of the lost cause.

On the conclusion of Mr. Carr's address there was a storm of applause. His eloquent words reached the heart of every one present, and touched a responsive chord.

Referring to speeches made in favor of the resolution to petition the Legislature to add five per cent. to the annual tax levy for the purpose of adding to and extending the pension list of disabled soldiers and the widows of disabled soldiers, the News & Observer says:

"Mr. Carr paid a most touching and eloquent tribute to the soldiers of North Carolina, and spoke of the proportionate part she took in the great struggle. He said history had never done justice to the glory which surrounds them. 'The soldiers of North Carolina must rank in a history yet to be written.' He spoke of the meagre aid that the State has tendered them to show its gratitude and made an eloquent appeal in their behalf."

The resolution was adopted.
