

LOCAL.

The Route Agent on the Atlantic Road refused to take our mail, on yesterday, 29th, for Kinston, alleging that there was no post master at that place—the p. m. having committed suicide a day or two previous. How this may be, we do not know; but we do know that we received a letter from Kinston post marked the 29th, showing very conclusively, that a deputy p. m. is at work in that place. We have in our possession, now, the envelope bearing the Kinston Postmark. If the facts were as stated, by the Route Agent, he had no right, then, to refuse to take our mail, it was his duty to take it, and deliver it to the next nearest post office. This, we know to be the rule, for, in the capacity of Route Agent, we served the U. S. Government six years, and the Confederate Government, four, and profess to know something of post office regulations.

Mrs. Ransom's Seminary.—We direct attention to Mrs. Ransom's advertisement with much pleasure. We had heretofore announced that it was her intention to open, this Fall, a first class Seminary for girls and young ladies. One of the most eligible positions in the city of Wilmington has been secured, and a corps of first class teachers engaged, and thus we have the assurance of the establishment of a Seminary for young ladies, under the superintendence of a lady whose position and requirements warrant us in anticipating great benefit to the patrons of the Institution.

We are not disposed to be meddling in the affairs of other people. Most of all are we disposed to find fault with the private habits of our neighbors and associates. It makes no manner of difference to us if people will chew rosin, sweet gum, tobacco and "such like," or eat conchis, snuffs and other vermin; we are ever charitably disposed towards people who feed on chaffings and rats, but we do most unequivocally set our face against the very prevalent habit of snuff dipping by the younger members of the female portion of our community.

When females are advancing in years, we are in favor of their seizing upon every means of lawful enjoyment, even though it extend to snuff dipping and pipe smoking; but we look upon it as an inexcusable and disgusting habit in young, beautiful and intelligent girls. We are led to make the foregoing remarks by the following circumstance.

On Sunday evening last, after enjoying the privilege of divine worship, we took a stroll through the main street of our town for the purpose of exercise and proper reflection. It was a lovely evening, and as we wandered our way leisurely along, the spirit of peace stole over us, and filled us with emotions of pleasure. We had been thinking of one near and dear to us, and blessing for her sake the whole race of womankind, who suddenly, raising our eyes, we beheld a sight not easily to be forgotten, nor pleasant to be remembered. Seated at the window of one of the most handsome residences, were a number of young and beautiful girls in the full enjoyment of a social dip—working away as if the sole end, object and aim of their terrestrial existence was to destroy as much snuff and black-gum as possible in a limited life time. We came down like a rocket-stick from our eminence of peace and comfort, and all that sort of thing, and reached our proper level in a second.

We resent the spectacle forced upon us, and we notify them, that they are responsible for the ill humor with which we were afflicted for the remainder of that day.

CHANGED TO MUD.—A young lady whose name was Mayden, married a gentleman whose name was Mud, which gave rise to the following epigram: Let's wife, 'tis said, in days of old, For one rebellious hat. Was turn'd as we are plainly told, Into a lump of salt.

The same propensity of change Still runs in woman's blood; For here we see a case as strange, A Mayden turned to Mud.

THE ORIGIN OF SOAP.—A French journal has a learned article upon the subject of the origin of soap, in which the popular idea that it was first manufactured in Italy during the fifteenth century is controverted. The journal in question states that the ancient Gauls used soap, and that the Romans also did so, there being evidence of its manufacture at Pompeii. The ancients are said to have made it of olive oil and wood ashes. There is, however, as great mystery hanging over the origin of soap as there is over the first appearance of many other articles in common use.

THE FASHIONS—NEWEST STYLES OF FALL BONNETS—SOMETHING FOR THE LADIES.—The summer is nearly gone, and nature is about exchanging her robes of green, for brown and golden hues. So the ladies are discussing the latest styles of Fall bonnets and costumes, with the desire to add them as much as possible in the matter of la mode. We compile a description of a very few of the latest "sensations" in Fall bonnets and hats, which in all conscience appear to be growing.

"Small ty degrees, and beautifully less." The shape of the bonnet is a cross between the empire and the gipsy.—The crown, as in the empire, is small and rather square, but does not rise above the level of the rest of the bonnet. There is a small curtain attached to it, and this almost identical with the empire curtain. In other respects the gipsy shape is almost unaltered. A bonnet of this shape, made of pale purple uncut velvet, was trimmed with velvet pannels, white and purple, with black lace, and with real jet ornaments. The strings were of broad watered ribbon to match. Another shape, very curious, indeed, resembles a small square cap, without either crown or sides or curtain. The front was formed with a ruching of white tulle, and was woven into the bonnet, if bonnet it can be called. The square portion which formed the headpiece was made of emerald green ribbon velvet about an inch wide, interwoven in honeycomb design. The front trimming consisted of one blush rose, with a few leaves and buds set in the ruche, and the strings were of wide green ribbon, and intended for tying at the back beneath the chignon. Another head dress of the same shape was made in the same honeycomb design, with narrow white ribbons interwoven together.—The front was formed of a pretty mass of tulle, lace and rosbuds, and the strings were of white tulle tied under the chin. Jet trimmings for bonnets will be very general, and the only fault will be its weight, for jet is very heavy. But even this fault may prove a blessing, as it will necessitate a very moderate amount of trimming, which will be a great improvement on the usually over-laden condition of bonnets. At Mrs. R.—a small oyster shell shaped bonnet, made of soft white chip, was trimmed with a small and slender wreath of myrtle leaves in jet.—Strings of crimson velvet ribbon, tied beneath the chignon.

In round hats the latest novelty is called the Gladiator, in honor of the recently celebrated French horse who won the Derby, or something, in that way, at the English races. It is quite a long time ago, however, and somewhat strange that nothing newer could be found by which to christen a new hat. In view of the near approach of the great Italian raguetienne, we suggest that some hat, or bonnet or cloak, or sack, or one of each, be called the Ristori. It will undoubtedly be a popular name.

The Gladiator is one of the prettiest hats that we have ever seen. It is an enlarged size of the snow-flake, with a drooping brim both back and front. It is luxuriantly trimmed, with a rich and flowing willow plume; some have two feathers—one ostrich feather and a willow plume too.

For dresses and mantles, the new Fall goods have not been yet received. In ornaments there is little change except for the worse, and we omit a description because aware that our beautiful Goldsboro' ladies have little use for them. With them "Beauty unadorn'd is adorned the most."

Porter Baxter is accused by a Vermonter of electioneering with a twelve quart pail full of whiskey.

To the Farmers, Merchants and others of North Carolina:

HAVING ON MY RETURN FROM the N. C. whist, after the surrender of the Confederate forces in the Department of the Trans-Mississippi, secured an interest in the old home of

JAMES GORDON & COMPANY,

Commission Merchants of Norfolk, Virginia, a House well and favorably known to the people of North Carolina.

FOR THE LAST FOR Y YEARS,

I delight from those with whom I was identified in upholding the great principle for which the Southern people so earnestly struggled, and for which, as a Journalist, I am still contending, and shall continue to assert my patronage, that shall continue in the effort to gain for myself and those dependent on me an honest livelihood, proud that when I shall cease to desire your support, I shall likewise cease to expect or ask it.

That I may be the more accessible to the friends of the House in North Carolina, I shall remain in Wilson, where those wishing to see me on business with the House in Norfolk, will always find me at my office in the North Carolina building. WM. A. HEARNE, Wilson, Aug. 20, 1866. 28 1m Circular.

THE UNDERSIGNED HAVING LAST year associated themselves together under the Old Firm of

JAMES GORDON & CO.,

Perpetual Calendar

A CALENDAR FOR THE CHRISTIAN Era, combining the Julian and Gregorian in modes of reckoning time, by James Kumly, of N. C.

Copyright Secured.

The subscriber having copyright secured this valuable of all the "Calendars" ever presented to the public, is prepared to supply the demand for them to any extent.

Previous Efforts.

Many attempts have been made, from time to time, to secure a Calendar by which the dates of the Christian Era could be accurately and at the same time readily found. These attempts have heretofore generally failed, because the authors have sought to condense too much, and because they are really not conversant with the subject of which they treated, and which they vainly endeavored to elucidate.

What I claim.

I claim for the Calendar, now presented, a simple and easy arrangement, combined with the most inflexible accuracy. The plan is so simple that any one who can use an ordinary pen and ink can clearly understand it, and it is so clearly presented that it is not only easy to use, but also so simple that it can be used by the most ignorant and uneducated public.

To supply a demand which has been long and vainly attempted, and to present a Calendar which is not only simple and accurate, but also so simple that it can be used by the most ignorant and uneducated public, is the object of this publication.

TESTIMONIALS.

The first mathematical minds of our country, Prof. Charles Phillips of the University of North Carolina, thus speaks of the Calendar:

UNIVERSITY OF N. C. Thursday, June 21, 1866. Col. S. D. Pool, Dear Sir,

I have had in examining your Perpetual Calendar. It is a thing of beauty—simple, extensive and accurate—every one who refers to dates ought to have a copy of it; the man of business, for the present; the student of history, for the past; and the dabbler in prophecy for the future. To use it, only brain enough to remember the year—the month of the year—the week of the month, and the day of the week and this is about as little brain as one can get along with in these times.

I found out at once some things I did not know before, viz: that the 4th July 1776 was postponed on Thursday, and that the 4th July 1876 will happen on Tuesday—also, I was born on Thursday—a truth that is not in the family Bible. I am afraid you will never be paid for your trouble for if the thing went wrong, it would be on of date.

Again I thank you for my treasure. Your Respectfully

CHARLES PHILLIPS, Gov. Swain, President of the University

It is a variety of concerns with Prof Phillips in the views he entertains concerning the value of your Almanac.

The Newbern Commercial having thoroughly examined the Calendar thus writes of it:

A CENTOS CALENDAR.—We have received from the editorial committee, L. S. D. Pool, of the Goldsboro' News, a Calendar of Dates for the Christian Era, combining the Julian and Gregorian Modes of Reckoning time. A perusal of this unique production, we have carefully examined it, and find it to be one of the least pretentious and most useful publications of the day. By its use we can readily find, by the Gregorian or Julian style, the day of the week, an answer to any question of the month, or the day of the week, from the year 1600 to any future period, while the Gregorian calendar remains unaltered; and can find the same by the Julian, or Old Style, any former year of our era or in any year to come.

The Doctrinal letters of the Julian calendar are introduced into the table, and the calendar is in use in this country and Great Britain until September, 1752, and was in use in Christian countries until these countries adopted the Gregorian calendar, and actually is now in use in Russia. Although we have the inclination, we have not space to speak of this excellent chart as we would like, but we will say that the established reputation of Col. Pool, as a superior scholar, will not suffer by its publication under his auspices.

The author is Mr. James Kumly of the town of N. C. who, during the war, undertook its production as a labor of love, and presented it to his friends, Col. Pool a token of his friendship and esteem, the price fifty cents, and it is for sale at Col. Pool's.

None can object to the value of the work, and the value of the work could be added, and necessary, but we deem the only objection to bring to the attention of the public. When we examined its merits are at once disclosed.

W. E. On Large cards 10x14, neatly printed, the Counting room, Office, or Library; fifty cents per single copy; Four Dollars per ten copies; Thirty five dollars per hundred.
