THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

The nomination of Mr. Cleveland by the Chicago Convention is an event that was confidently expected by those who have carefully watched the drift of Democratic politics during the past few months. Hill's February "snap convention" in New York, which was intended as a radical check to the growth of Cleveland sentiment throughout the country, had the contrary effect, and every political gathering after that event only furnished cumulative proof that the ex-President was too strong in the confidence of his party to be beaten by the intrigues of dissatisfied and ambitious leaders. The fact that the nomination has been conferred upon him by more than a two-thirds majority, in the face of a most determined and persistent opposition, including every delegate from his own State, is a singular tribute to his hold upon those who constitute the following rather than the leadership of his party.

That the Democratic Convention acted wisely in the selection of Mr. Cleveland is not to be doubted. While it must be admitted that he is seriously handicapped in his own State, and that his silver and tariff views are not popular in some States that must be won to insure success, his strength is to be considered relatively to that of each of the other names that were brought before the convention. Certainly his availability will not suffer in comparison with that of any other aspirant whose name was mentioned at Chicago, and this is the standard by which the wisdom of his nomination is to be estimated.

It must be admitted that Mr. Cleveland is a tried quantity, and that the country will know exactly what to expect should he be again elevated to the Presidency—a wise and conservative administration, such as it had from 1885 to 1889—the potency of which circumstance in relation to his nomination is not to be lightly weighed. Had the Chicago Convention named any other candidate than Mr. Cleveland the selection would have been largely in the way of experiment, and the untried nominee must have been at a disadvantage against so strong an adversary as the present incumbent of the White House.

The nomination of Gen. Adlai E. Stevenson, of Illinois, was unexpected, but it is a strong one, as the development of the campaign will doubtless show. General Stevenson was First Assistant Postmaster General during the Cleveland administration, and his official record is creditable. If a proper Indianian could have been found he would probably have given a much needed strength to the ticket, but it seems that Mr. Gray did not meet the requirements of the exigency. With Stevenson on the ticket a special effort no doubt will be directed toward carrying Illinois for the Democrats.

Gen. Stevenson was born on the 23d day of October, 1835, in Christian county, Kentucky, but while still a boy his parents moved to Bloomington, Illinois. His parents formerly resided in Iredell county, this State, and several of his relatives are one of the foremost citizens, of Wilmington, Fayetteville and Statesville. He has therefore a justly warm spot in the heart of every North Carolinian.

Now that the two conventions are over with, let Congress adjourn and give the country a much needed repose.

Pronounced Hopeless, Yet Saved

From a letter written by Mrs. Ada E. Hurd, of Groton, S. D., we quote: "Was taken with a bad cold, which settled on my lungs, cough set in and finally terminated in consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Saviour, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in all, eight bottles; it has cured me, and thank God I am now a well and hearty woman." Trial bottles free at Hill's drug store, regular size, 50 cents and $1.00.

Good Looks.

If the Liver be inactive, you have a bilious look, if your stomach be disordered, you have a Dyspeptic Look and if your Kidneys be affected you have a pinched look. Secure good health and you will have good looks. Electric Bitters is the great alterative and Tonic acts directly on these vital organs. Cures pimples, blotches, boils and gives a good complexion. F. H. Hickey, 1208 Main street, Lynchburg, Va., writes: "I was broke out all over with sores, and my hair was falling out. After using a few bottles of Botanic Blood Balm my hair quit falling out and all the sores got well." For sale at Hill's drug-store.

The Spleen

—not the ill-humor you feel like venting upon some offender, but the spleen near the stomach, which supplies the proper amount of blood to the stomach during digestion. But both are affected by a torpid liver. A torpid liver excites the spleen (ill-humor) and destroys the bodily organs; by an active liver, promoted by Simmons' Liver Regulator, destroys the spleen (ill-humor) and excites to right action the digestive powers—then no more Dyspepsia, Constipation or Biliousness.
