DYSPEPSIA

Is that misery experienced when suddenly made aware that you possess a diabolical arrangement called stomach. No two dyspeptics have the same predominant symptoms, but whatever form dyspepsia takes and one thing is certain no one will remain a dyspeptic who will Start the Liver working and all bodily ailments will disappear.

The underlying cause is in the LIVER.

For more than three years I suffered with Dyspepsia in its worst form. I tried several doctors, but they afforded no relief. At last I tried Dr. J. C. Zeller's Liver Regulator, and after a short time, it is a good medicine. I would not be without it. -JAMES A. ROSS, Philad., Pa.

ARP'S REGULAR CHAT.

The Old Philosopher Discusses the Negro Question.

We see that there has been another negro burned—burned in Georgia—burned mainly by his own race. That last is a good sign—a sign that they are beginning to appreciate the sin of those horrible crimes that almost every day are committed somewhere by the villainous black tramps who are to be found in almost every community. When the negro, as a race, begins to preach against these horrible crimes in his own pulpit and to write against them in his own newspaper and to talk against them by the fireside and in the field, these outrages will cease. But all the negro papers I have seen make large capital out of the lynchings and burnings and breathe out threats of retaliation, but attach little importance to the crimes. In this they have the sympathy of Northern fanatics and Northern politicians who have for thirty years encouraged their revenge by fire and assassination.

In Southern negro schools and colleges that have been established with Northern money the white imported teachers have made their pupils believe that they were an oppressed race, and were kept under the ban of persecution; and if they had their rights they would have social equality with the whites in churches and schools, and some of the Northern religious papers have openly advocated the settling of the negro problem by miscegenation. Even so great and good a man as Rev. John Hall, D. D., and LL. D., came out in a column philippic against the "Horrible Tragedy" at Paris, Texas, and all along through his article used the large type head lines such as, "Red hot irons—soaked with oil—cast into the flames," and so forth, and he appealed to the friends of the freedmen to help them to avert these awful outrages. He says the World's Fair is to be visited by all nations, and how can we hold up the great exhibition and have our civilization in the face of the head lines, "Texans burn a negro overboard at the stake?"

Will Dr. Hall never learn to put himself in our place? Will the Northern people never let us and the negro alone? Are we to have no credit for humanity or intelligence? Have we not lived with the negro all our lives, and do we not know him better than those who see him afar off? Shall we be panned up with them on a limited space and under the most foolish and malignant federal laws and not be allowed to protect ourselves and our wives and our daughters? I say it with all the sincerity that the mistaken interference of our Northern brethren with the negro problem has been the prime cause of all the negro's misfortunes, of all the outrages and all the lynchings and burnings. Senator Ingalls, being at last out of a job, has laid aside his hobby and says there will be no more politics founded on the negro. He ought to know, for he rode that horse for twenty-five years and raveled his sides until the ribs were bare and his friend Tourgee rode behind until his crupper was sore and it is a fit time to turn the old ripout to die. Now let Northern philanthropists shilly on their own side and look after the poor and wretched in their own cities. If it could be done we would gladly put a million of our poorest negroes against a million of their poorest whites on exhibition at Chicago and let the world see the difference—the difference in flesh and health and contentment and hilarity. Here is the happiest race upon earth and the easiest to control if let alone by their corrupted or pretended Northern friends.

But what I was going to say to Dr. Hall and all of his sort—your legislation has penned us up with these people and we are going to protect ourselves. If we find a rattlesnake, or a mad dog, or a hyena going about loose, shall we not kill him? I have lived in the country for years and felt the common apprehension—the apprehension of some awful grief, and I say now that if it had come I would have joined my neighbors and burned the vile brute at the stake with as much serenity as I would kill a gopher. I have read Governor Hogg's proclamation and Governor Northern's and the editorials in some of our papers and have wondered what was the matter with me. Why can't I feel that these lynchings and burnings are horrible and barbarous? Maybe I am like the poor fellow at camp meeting who said he would like to get religion but he couldn't feel that way. I had been at Paris where I could realize the awful brutality of that negro's crime upon that poor little innocent child I should have joined the mob. Yes, I could have seen the brute torn limb from limb and his flesh eaten by the dogs. I felt just that way when the negro cut the school girl's throat near Madison in my own State and threw her mangled body in the ditch. Such a negro or such a white man is no more to me than a wild beast that has no soul. You

A Hundred Years to Come. Wouldn't you like to live until the year A. D. 2000, just to see the people and the world generally? Who knows but you might, if you observe the laws of health, and keep the stomach, liver and bowels in full action. The best medicine known for this is Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are small, sugar-coated granules, but powerful to cure: produce no nausea or griping; easy to take, and a sure cure for biliousness, constipation, headache and diseases produced by an inactive liver. A convenient vest-pocket remedy.

THE BILLVILLE BANNER.

We have bought a cylinder press, and our old handpress is for sale. It can be used either as a corn-sheller or a gridiron.

We have just returned from hearing Riley read "That Old Sweetheart o' Mine," and we ain't quarreled with our wife in six hours.

Billville's only physician has moved his office next door to the coffin factory. You ring the night bell and the undertaker does the rest.

The Billville postoffice is still seeking the man, and the man is still running away from it. It's $6 and a government inspector every year.

We have sent three alligators and a petrified negro as Billville's exhibit to the World's Fair. The nigger was lynched before he was petrified.

There are sixteen male candidates for the Billville postoffice, and they're every one trying to marry the widow in order to get her to resign.

Our better half is kept busy these days bending barrel staves to make crinolines. She is the leading milliner of Billville—been leading us for years.

Telegraphic communication with Billville is off for the present, the women having cut the wires to make crinolines with. Fashion is a terrible thing!

A foreign appointment would be most acceptable to us, just at this time. The white caps have suggested it and have given us twenty-four hours to get it in.

Our relations came to Billville in order to hear Riley read, and they are now spending the summer with us. All groceries and live stock thankfully received.

We were short of wood when the winter struck us last week, and we had to do all our writing with hot bricks at our feet and a mustard plaster in the middle.

Our appointment still hangs fire at Washington, notwithstanding we stated in a recent editorial that we wished Cleveland was twins, so's there'd be more of him.

We have received an invitation to spend the summer at a seaside hotel, and our wife has bought a quarter of a yard of blue flannel to make bathing suits for the girls.

The Billville band screamed us on our return from Washington, but as soon as they found out that we had missed an office they charged us $6 for corn liquor and expenses.

Major Jones delivers his famous lecture on "Lynching" at the town hall Monday night. The major knows what he is talking about. He has made a success of every man he lynched.

We intended to give our lecture on "The Georgia Colonel" at the town hall Wednesday night, but as the colonel is looking for us with a shotgun we have postponed it on account of the weather.

Last week our minister converted three men who have been owing us $3 a piece for six years; but when we called on 'em to settle up, they answered us by singing: "Religion's paid it all—the debt I owe!"

Our oldest mule broke loose Friday night and is now on his way to Washington. We suspect that he is after a government pension, having thrown a Confederate during the war and brayed like thunder at the surrender.

Bad luck seems to follow us; our office took fire last week, but the miserable fire department extinguished the flames before we could get a chance at the insurance. The paper, therefore, will not be enlarged, unless the next fire is more successful.
