Is Life Worth Living?

That depends upon the liver. If the liver is inactive the whole system is out of order—the breath is bad, digestion poor, head dull or aching, energy and hopefulness gone, the spirit is depressed, a heavy weight exists after eating, with general dependency and the blues. The liver is the housekeeper of the health; and a harmless, simple remedy that acts like nature, does not constipate afterwards or require constant taking, does not interfere with business or pleasure during its use, makes Simmons Liver Regulator a medical perfection.

The Standard's Award.

Richmond, Va.

Mr. S. B. Lucy, Southern Manager of the Standard Sewing Machine Agency, located in this city, has received the welcome news that "The Standard" has come out on top at the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago. The following letter tells the story:

Cleveland, O., Oct. 24, 1893.

S. B. Lucy, Manager of the Standard Sewing Machine for the South Atlantic States, Richmond, Va. We are happy to announce that the Standard has received, at the World's Fair, a medal for "rotary shuttle machines" and a medal for "work on machines." These were given on the exhibits in Liberal Art Hall. We are just in receipt of a telegram from Mr. B. W. Whitney, who has charge of the exhibit in Machinery Hall, as follows:

Standard Company have now received highest awards on all exhibits. The above speaks for itself.

Yours truly,

The Standard Sewing Machine Co., D. E. Cole, Secretary.

Mr. Lucy, who has represented the Standard during the seven years that this admirable machine has been manufactured, was justly proud of the great distinction awarded it.

The Standard machine has had a remarkable history from its beginning, and the laurels it has won at this highest tribunal of art and mechanics, is the triumph of excellent construction and inventive genius.

The Standard is a rotary-shuttle machine—the only one on the market. The principle of its movement throughout in all its parts—which almost precludes friction and wear, and makes it light and noiseless. These are the points of superiority recognized at the great Exposition and on them was given the handsome awards over all competitors.

It was a proud day for the Standard. The machine is so light that it can be run with a piece of No. 100 spun cotton as a band.

It has all solid steel, self-adjusting attachments, cabinet bent built up woodwork, automatic drawer locks, and all the joints are milled down until the fittings are perfect, and they range in price from $40 to $100 according to finish.

Mr. S. B. Lucy, a native Virginian, is the manager of the South Atlantic States, with headquarters at 123 East Broad street in Richmond. He has grown up with the machine "as it were," and had a large part in its achievements and successes.

Starting seven years ago as the Southern agent of the then unknown competitor for public favor in a small frame building, he rapidly enlarged his retail business and made such a fine place in the esteem of the company that he was made their manager for the South Atlantic States. Two years ago he moved to the present commodious three-story brick building, No. 123 East Broad street, from which, with the aid of eight assistants, he sends out daily into the by-ways of Richmond and vicinity fifteen wagons and teams for the retail business established.

This is exclusive of the wholesale trade in the South, which engages the attention of 200 dealers, including some of the wealthiest and most representative firms in all the Southern section. Among these are J. W. Burke & Co., Macon, Ga.; L. F. Thompson & Co., Thomasville, Ga.; J. B. Boutwell, Quitman, Ga.; W. A. McCarty, Saundersville, Ga.; Cleo-Ham Fur Company, Savannah; T. J. Stowers, Atlanta; W. S. Archer, Jonesboro, Ga.; G. A. Almond, Lawrenceville; J. B. Tommer, Athens; R. D. Smith, Douglasville; Turner & Swearingin, Elberton; Thomas & Barton, Augusta; L. C. Thompson & Co., Thomaston; E. M. Andrews & Co., Charlotte, N. C.; J. C. Eason, Goldsboro, N. C.; T. R. Huffines, Rocky Mount, N. C.; P. W. Mellick, Elizabeth City; Spaight & Son, Hertford; E. S. Norman, Edenton; T. E. Young, Salisbury; Geo. W. Crouse, Lexington; J. D. Sledge, Lewisville; D. G. Green & Co., Wilson; J. W. Ellyson, Danville, Va.; J. F. Forsythe, Front Royal, Va.; S. C. McGrath, Onancock; Richard & Thomas, Harrisonburg; Melton Vetter, Woodstock; W. J. McGhee, Hodges, S. C., and many others.

The Standard Company have made and sold in seven years 225,000 of their machines. W. A. Mack, the inventor of the original Domestic machine is the genius whose wonderful mechanical mind fashioned the incomparable Standard, and the best years of his life have been placed on this ideal sewing machine. The Standard Company's works at Cleveland, Ohio, have a capacity of 200 machines a day, and a capital of $1,500,000.

The award just made to the Standard by the commissioners at the Columbian Exposition is a recognition of merit well deserved.

ABOUT PUBLIC HANGINGS.

App Says Executions Should Be Carried Out Privately.

The Legislature is in session. Most of the members are politicians, of course, and will keep an eye on their own personal advantage, but we trust they will keep the other on the public welfare. Tote fair gentlemen, tote fair with us. We want no fooling around. Do your work and do it quickly and go home. The people are already burdened with taxation. The plain truth is there are thousands who can't pay their taxes, and the newspapers will be full of sheriff sales. Have mercy upon the people. You will have more applications for all sorts of appropriations, but I wouldn't grant a single one outside of maintaining the government on the most economical basis. Wait until we recover from the present distress. Some things are needed very bad right now, but we can't afford them.

One thing we ought to have above all others, if we could afford it, and that is a reformatory prison with workshops and other attachments for criminals under sixteen years of age. What are we to do with the boys who are going to destruction? A few years ago Mrs. Lou Gordon visited Elmira, N. Y., to see the reformatory there and she wrote a very interesting and instructive letter about it. Two thousand boys under sixteen working like heroes in the shops at different trades, and every few months a number discharged as reformed and good places found for them among the farmers or the mechanics. Boys of that tender age can be reformed, but not when serving a sentence in the chain-gang with hardened criminals.

We had that system in our old penitentiary. I remember well a man who stole some money when only sixteen years old. He was sent to the penitentiary for four years and learned a trade. Four years of work painting wagons made him a good artisan, and he stuck to it and kept a good name and was respected. When the war came on he was among the first to volunteer. He joined a Rome company and fell with his face to the foe at the first battle of Manassas. He used to tell me how kind the principal keeper of the penitentiary was to him and how he got new ideas of life, and its duties from that good man and resolved to come out from there reformed. That good man was Dr. Alexander, the father of my friend, Dr. Jim. That is the way to do it. The boys want kind words. They want a friend. Most of these young criminals have had a hard life with no friends to encourage them—perhaps an intemperate father and a miserable mother and poverty in the place called home.

What can we do to stop the progress of crime in our State? It is increasing in ratio every year—increasing much faster than population—increasing among a rising generation. The chief causes seem to be idleness and the lack of parental restraint. "Idleness is the parent of vice," said Ben Franklin, and he knew, for he liked to have turned out a vagabond. Work was all that saved him. The most striking difference between the parents of the present day and those of fifty years ago is in the way they control their children. In the olden times children feared their parents, but now the parents fear the children. "Why don't you stop that boy of yours from smoking cigars?" "Because I can't. I have talked to him and so has his mother, but it don't do any good."

Yes, talked to him. Fifty years ago a father would have taken that boy behind the smokehouse and talked to him with a rod about three feet long. There was no fooling around with the boys. Obedience to parents was a cardinal principle in the household. I remember a boy who got a good thrashing for speaking disrespectfully to his mother. He answered her back, that was all, but his father heard it and then his back answered for the disrespect. The poor mother cried and when the father had gone she rubbed the marks with liniment, and that was all. If Solomon didn't know, who did? He must have had several hundred boys to look after, and I reckon he had an acre or two of switches. If a school teacher whips a boy nowadays he is threatened with prosecution and a big fuss is made over it in the newspapers, and the boy comes out a martyr and a hero. When Dr. Jim and I were boys we were afraid to let our fathers know that we got a whipping at school. One day Jim Wilson ran away from John Norton to keep from a whipping. Old Dr. Wilson, the preacher, found it out that night and next morning marched Jim up to the schoolhouse and he took his medicine like a little man. But I know some preachers' sons who need medicine, but they don't get it anywhere. The teachers and the fathers are afraid of the boys.

We had a first-class Southern outrage in our town the other day, and I am surprised that it hasn't got in the Northern papers. A negro boy

Last Week in Trade Circles.

Special Correspondence.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6, 1893. Business during the last week has improved but slightly. The victory for the repeal bill has removed the chief obstacle to the return of confidence and the revival of business. There is no longer any uncertainty about the security of currency conditions, and public and private credit has been greatly strengthened. But the immediate response of business has been of a negative character. The progress of the trade disturbance has been arrested and the process of recovery has begun. That it has not been more rapid has been a disappointment to the over-anguine; but it could not proceed faster and be healthful. Commercial and industrial interests have been severely strained by the prolonged disturbance of credit and confidence. The losses that have been entailed by several months of increasing depression cannot be instantly repaired. The business structure has been severely strained, and the work of strengthening the weak places and rebuilding the fallen portions cannot be instantaneously completed. It is encouraging to know that the storm has passed, and that the work of repair may now be pushed ahead with vigor and confidence.

The apparently contradictory course of the stock exchange markets since the passage of the repeal bill scarcely needs explanation. Speculators always discount events, and the rise in values last week anticipated the effects of legislation; as this week's realizations and declines have paved the way for a more substantial recovery in values when the full effect of restored confidence and stable financial conditions shall have been felt in the business world. Monetary conditions are favorable. It is significant that the last of the emergency issues of the New York Clearing House were cancelled at the same time that the law which had necessitated their employment ceased to be operative.

Business men are now able to secure all needed accommodation at bank; and the effect of this change in the situation has been already evidenced in the more prompt settlement of obligations, the partial resumption of industries, and a moderate enlargement of the distribution of manufactured goods. Gold imports have begun; and rising trade balances and renewed European confidence in American investments indicate that the return flow of the yellow metal will continue. At New York alone the gain in merchandise exports last month was over $3,000,000, and the decline in imports over $19,000,000—changes which suggest at least $20,000,000 excess of exports for October, and which would make the balance for four months of the fiscal year about $75,000,000. The failures during the last week through-out the United States and Canada aggregated 396; a decrease of 11 from the total of the preceding week.

Cotton prices have recovered 1 of a cent of the recent decline, owing to the improved outlook for demand and greater speculative confidence in the market. Receipts have continued to exceed those of last season, but have been smaller than they were last week. Northern spinners' takings are increasing; but so far this season have been only 26,664 bales weekly, as against 36,728 bales last year, and 59,725 bales in 1891. Exports of cotton continue liberal, and for two months of this season have been 43,725 bales in excess of the shipments for the corresponding period last year. Demand for cotton goods is gradually improving, but is still very conservative, and is gauged closely by actual jobbing wares.

The price of wheat has declined 2 to 21 cents per bushel, as a result of heavy stocks and an indifferent foreign demand. Although receipts are still running thirty per cent. below those of last season, the movement to commercial centres exceeds the outgo; and there will be little encouragement for bullish speculation so long as there shall be large weekly additions to the already excessive stocks. Exports, although liberal, continue to fall below the shipments for the corresponding period last year; and new demand is comparatively light. Values of corn have advanced 1 to 1 of a cent per bushel, owing to a bullish sentiment in the markets, which has been strengthened by a falling off in the interior movement and fairly liberal exports. Values of provisions have been generally well maintained, owing to moderate stocks and comparatively light packing operations in the West, where hog packing has largely decreased.

The explosion of a bomb startled all within hearing. So the pains which arise from derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels, quickly alarm those who experience them. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets afford a speedy and inexpensive cure. Sick headache, bilious headache, constipation, indigestion, bilious attacks yield like magic to this wonderful specific. ALL OVER THE STATE.

A Summary of Current Events for the Past Seven Days.

Durham has the "mad dog" scare. Another rich gold mine has been discovered in Stanly county.

The Raleigh electric street railway has suspended operations temporarily.

Peg-leg Williams, "The Emigrants' Friend," as he calls himself, has made his appearance in Union county.

The residence of Will Estes, at Henderson, was burglarized Tuesday night and many valuables were carried off.

A little child of Ann Kendall, colored, was burned to death in Stanly county, Monday, while being left alone by its mother.

Cumberland county is to have a new court house. The corner stone was laid at Fayetteville Thursday with becoming ceremonies.

Geo. D. Hobbs, a butcher, of Winston, left home last week with $85 in his pocket and has not been heard of since. Foul play is suspected.

Kirk Gregory, an employe of the Tarboro cotton factory, had one of his fingers cut off, Monday, while being caught in the machinery.

A colored man, supposed to be under the influence of liquor, was struck by a Norfolk and Carolina train, Sunday, near Tarboro and killed.

A fourteen-year-old daughter of W. C. DeBrule, of Buncombe county, very mysteriously disappeared from her home Sunday, leaving no trace behind.

Large numbers of Ashe and Alleghany cattle are now being shipped from North Wilkesboro to different points. Seventeen car-loads were shipped last Friday.

A fire at Youngsville, Saturday, burned the Alliance cotton gin, seventy-five bales of cotton and 4,000 bushels of seed. There was no insurance on any of the property destroyed.

While temporarily insane, W. W. Church, a carpenter of North Wilkesboro, attempted suicide Monday by taking gun powder. His act was discovered in time for a physician to save his life.

The Page Hotel, at Sanford, was destroyed by fire early Thursday morning. Nearly all the contents were consumed with the building and some of the guests barely escaped with their lives.

A thief stole the pants and vest of Rev. B. F. Long, editor of the Warrenton Record, Monday night. There was no money in the pants but a gold watch, valued at $100, was in the vest pocket.

A little daughter of Peleg Woodard, in Johnston county, while picking up chips from a stump on which her little brother was chopping, Thursday, had three of her fingers cut off by a slip of the axe.

The gin and machinery belonging to C. M. Wagner, at Troutman's, Iredell county, was burned Monday with about forty bales of cotton, belonging to different farmers, causing a loss of several thousand dollars.

Two centenarians died within twenty-four hours of each other at the Wake county work house last week. One was Harriet Mordecai, aged 101, and Mary Page, aged 104. Both had full possession of their faculties to the last.

The body of L. M. Jeraigan, who mysteriously disappeared recently, from his home in Johnston county, was found Saturday floating in an old well. It is supposed that he committed suicide, being demented on the subject of religion.

A Stanly county man advertises for his lost wife, Molly Mann, alias Lilly Anderson, who left her home with "two budgets of clothes," and followed by her little black dog, Tuesday morning of last week, and has not been heard of since.

Highwaymen continue to ply their vocation in Cumberland county. Blackman Royals was waylaid and robbed on Thursday, while several Sampson county farmers shared the same fate Friday night while on their way home from Fayetteville after selling their cotton.

A white man with blackened face went to the home of James Bass, in Sampson county, Saturday, while Bass was away, and presenting a pistol, demanded of Mrs. Bass all the money in the house. The frightened woman complied with the demand and about $80, all the money the family had, was taken.

A colored fiend named Wilmer Doggett, who, on Sunday, attempted a criminal assault upon Miss Loula Davidson, of Rutherford county, came very near being lynched that night. A mob of forty called at the jail, but the prisoner had already been spirited away to Shelby for safe keeping. From there he was taken to Charlotte.

"A chemical success and medical triumph," so speaks an eminent physician in reference to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral; and the eulogy was none too strong. No other medicine is so safe and efficacious in all diseases of the throat and lungs.

The Confederate Monument.

Raleigh News-Observer-Chronicle.

The North Carolina Confederate Monumental Association, at a meeting Thursday afternoon at the State Library, decided to adopt the design for the monument submitted by Col. Muldoon, of Kentucky, who was on Gen. Morgan's staff in the Confederate army. The design is a shaft upon a pedestal, and the whole will be seventy-five feet from the base, the pedestal and shaft being about half of this measurement respectively. There are three bronze statues representing the branches of the service, one surmounting the monument and one on each side about half way up from the base. On the pedestal will be the Coat-of-Arms of the Confederacy and the Coat-of-Arms of North Carolina. On it will also be the names of the ninety-six counties. The location of the monument will be in Capitol Square, but the exact spot is still in the hands of the committee in charge.
