THE TARIFF DEBATE.

The general discussion of the Tariff bill in the House of Representatives has developed the usual amount of acrimony and partisan debate.

It is likely that much valuable time will be consumed in this way. Members of the House of Representatives, like other mortals, are filled with vanity, and each one of them feels called upon to make a speech on great public questions, and the result is that the period of talk is often extended beyond all reason.

In the case of the tariff bill nothing is to be gained by a long period of wrangling over what one administration or one party may have done over another. No one is being convinced by the set speeches made during the past few days.

A long period of talk, also, on the Tariff bill does little toward enlightening the people of America. Now and then a speech is made of more than ordinary eloquence which attracts attention, but the majority of them are not eagerly read or thoroughly studied, and the impression is growing in the minds of thoughtful observers that too much talk does no good even in Congress.

It is well that the Wilson Tariff bill should be discussed on both sides. There are citizens of the Republic who earnestly desire to have its principles enunciated and their logical conclusiveness proved or disproved, as the case may be, but the wrangling and vituperation which has marked the progress of the discussion for the last few days are neither dignified nor useful in arriving at a conclusion as to the utility of the proposed law.

THE FINANCIAL PROBLEM.

Secretary Carlisle has asked Congress to take the initiative and order the issue of sufficient bonds to relieve the United States Treasury. His recently published report gave notice that a crisis in Treasury affairs was impending, and the country is now face to face with the fact that money is needed during the next 20 days, and needed very badly.

Careful financier that he is, Secretary Carlisle would much rather that Congress would clothe him with special power to act rather than force him to resort to some extraordinary expedient for temporary use. In his letter to the chairman of the Senate Finance committee Mr. Carlisle simply states the urgent facts and laconically adds that unless Congress acts he will be obliged to do something.

What that "something" is the secretary does not state, as there are several things which he might do. But all the possibilities within the discretion of the officials of the Treasury could not meet the issue squarely. Revenues have fallen off amazingly, unprecedented demands are resting upon the Treasury, and the only permanent way out of the crisis is to issue bonds, increase the national debt and wait for better times to clear up the financial difficulty into which the nation has fallen.

Under the circumstances Congress should act promptly and wisely to relieve the situation, and to bring back the period of prosperity which is too long delayed.

We would advise our esteemed contemporary, the Richmond Dispatch, to provide itself with a truthful correspondent at this place in the future or else look to THE HEADLIGHT for its news items from this city and section. There is no enterprise in publishing untruths or wanton exaggerations and it ought to be the aim of every respectable newspaper North and South to detect and punish occasional and constitutional Munchausens as promptly as possible. Will the Dispatch do us the justice to give the name of its own bright particular liar?

National Capital Matters.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 13, 1894. President Cleveland has just given a practical demonstration of his earnestness in turning the settlement of the Hawaiian complication over to Congress, by putting the official dispatches just received from Minister Willis at its disposal.

The Democrats of the House have more than held their own in the tariff debate this week, although some of their best posted men have purposely made no speeches in favor of the Wilson bill. With the exception of Representative Tom Johnson, of Ohio, who opposes the bill because it retains too much protection and who favors free trade without any ifs and or buts, no Democrat has spoken against the underlying principle of the bill, even Representative Haines, of New York, who represents the Troy district and who has been quoted as being strongly opposed to the bill, admitted in his speech that he would vote for it if the schedule affecting the industries of Troy was amended to meet his wishes.

Next week he and others will have an opportunity to offer any amendment they may desire and the House will decide whether they shall be adopted or rejected. It is not thought probable by any member with whom I have conversed that any material amendment will be adopted before the bill is passed by the House on the 29th of January. It is in the Senate that the friends of the measure fear it will be amended almost beyond recognition. Washington is now full of parties interested in having the bill amended and they are all basing their hopes of success on the Senate and not on the House. The Senate Finance committee will begin to give hearings to those interested as soon as the bill passes the House.

The Republican leaders of the House were very cleverly taught a little lesson by the Democrats this week which would convince men with less conceit than Reed, Burrows & Co., have not secured a corner in parliamentary knowledge. It was the intention of the aforesaid Republican leaders to get at least two days debate out of the questions of the power of the House to have members arrested, and of the right of members to vote while under arrest, when the motion for the discharge of the arrested members came up. This waste of time that properly belonged to the consideration of the tariff bill was not countenanced by the Democrats who easily defeated it by having the Sergeant-at-Arms make his report at a time when the Republican leaders were off their guard. It did not take a moment for Representative Catelings to ask unanimous consent for the discharge from custody of the arrested members and for Speaker Crisp to declare them discharged, there being no objection. By that time the know-it-all Republicans had discovered what was going on, but it was too late.

Senator McPherson, of New Jersey, who has been widely advertised by Republican papers as a tariff "kicker," has been compelled by a troublesome throat affection to take a trip to Florida in search of relief, but before going he addressed a letter to Senator Voorhees which effectually disposes of any doubt as to his position towards tariff reform. He says in that letter: "In order that you and my other Democratic colleagues on the committee may know what to expect from me I here state that the Democratic side of the committee on Finance must make the tariff bill and then every member of said committee must stand by the work done. To do otherwise is to confess that we are not fit to govern. I write thus plainly, as I see the newspapers have placed me in the list of those called obstructionists. I have not denied the report, as I never deny anything the newspapers say of me, but I will always try to speak for myself when the time comes."

Secretary Carlisle explained this week to the members of the Senate Finance committee and those of the House Ways and Means Committee the immediate necessity for legislation to provide the money to meet the $50,000,000 deficit now staring the Treasury in the face. His object was not to argue in favor of the recommendations made in his annual report, but to impress upon the minds of his hearers the necessity for action, leaving them entirely free as to the nature of the legislation and asking only that it provide the money to meet payments and preserve the credit of the government.

A VETERAN'S VERDICT.

The War is Over. A Well-known Soldier, Correspondent and Journalist Makes a Disclosure.

Indiana contributed her thousands of brave soldiers to the war, and to state that a letter received in that respect than it does. In literature it is rapidly acquiring an enviable place. In war and literature Solomon Yewell, well known as a writer as "Sally," has won an honorable rank. During the late war he was a member of Co. M, 26th N. Y. Cavalry and of the 10th Indiana Infantry Volunteers. Regarding an important circumstance he writes as follows: "Several of us old veterans here are using Dr. Miles' Restorative, Nervine, Heart Cure and Nerve and Liver Pills, all of them giving splendid satisfaction. In fact, we have never used remedies that compare with them. Of the Pills we must say they are the best combination of the qualities required in a preparation of their nature we have ever known. We have none but words of praise for them. They are the outgrowth of a new principle in medicine, and tone up the system wonderfully. We say to all, try these remedies." -Solomon Yewell, Marion, Ind., Dec. 3, 1893.

These remedies are sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles $5, express prepaid. They positively contain neither opium nor any dangerous drug.
