A Bad State of Affairs.

The people of the South are being deceived in the purchase of imitation medicines. It's your consolation to a sick man to be told that the medicine offered him certainly won't do him any harm. Wrong! It will do great harm. It allows the disease to progress instead of stopping it, and this is most dangerous because the disease will soon be beyond cure. This is the best reason why you should be sure to get the right medicine. Don't risk your health trying any of the many Liver Medicines which have sprung up in the South to be sold in the name of Simons Liver Regulator, put up by J. H. Zolfin & Co. with the Red Z on every package; this was the medicine of your fathers, and they lived long. Have nothing to do with anything else, or any druggist or dealer who would persuade you that the many imitations under different names are just as good. It's not true. The people who say they can help up their miseries, beware!

NEW LIFE

Keep it Movin'!

No matter what's the load, Keep it movin' on. In the middle of the road, Night time or day time, Winter time or May time, Hurry up the horses, And keep 'em in the road! Keep the wagon movin'! If the horses "stall," Put a shoulder to the wheel, An' pull together all! Night time or day time, Don't stop for play time; Hurry up the horses, Summer time an' fall! Keep the wagon movin'! Life is goin' by, In the rain it falls, Weather'll soon be dry! Night time or day time, Winter time or May time, Hurry up the horses, An' you'll get there by an' by! — F. L. STANTON.

The Blight of Populism.

Populism comes high in Colorado, where the rule of Governor Waite has had the effect to consume not less than $200,000,000 of values in the State. This is the testimony of the Denver Business Men's League, composed of five thousand business men, partly Republicans, partly Democrats, and partly recent Populists. Populist rule in Colorado is compared by the League to a devastating forest fire, which, by destroying the forest of the State, has caused values to shrink two thirds. So blighting has been this influence that it is impossible to borrow on a gold mine one dollar on five dollars' worth of ore in sight, and men with money to invest in agriculture or manufacturing avoid Colorado as they would a pest house.

The lesson of Colorado is worth careful study by the voters of other States with a leaning towards Populism. Upon Colorado has fallen the heaviest penalties of Populism, for the two-fold reason that its Government was the earliest cradle of the entire list of Populist Governors, and that its chief industry, mining for the chief precious metals, could not be carried on without large capital. Kansas, another of the Populist States, has suffered in credit only in a slightly lesser degree, however, and both States are rightfully regarded by men with capital to lend or invest in business as the two States in all the Union most to be avoided.

Populism has proved the most costly craze ever entertained by the people of either, and it is no wonder that the business men of Denver are calling for the overthrow of Populism as the only means of restoring prosperity to Colorado. If the effects of Populism have been so baneful as to reduce the credit of a State, the borrowing power of whose property once ranked next to New York, to a condition of actual paralysis, what guarantee has Georgia or North Carolina or Illinois or any other State, North, South, East or West, of immunity from like destruction of credit and prosperity in case of Populist success?

Steal a Horse While Drunk.

Last Friday night Sheriff Griffith arrested Robert Moore, who was wanted in Wake county for stealing a horse. According to Moore's statement, he had taken the horse while he was drunk, and after riding it until he became sober, he left it with a woman near Hillsboro, and was trying to get away from the scene of his crime. Deputy Sheriff Walters, who came here after Moore, says that the latter is an ex-convict and that he stole the horse and tried to sell it two or three times. At the next term of Wake Superior court Moore will have an opportunity to explain the matter.

A Rejected Lover's Rash Act.

News was brought here from Kinston this week that Mr. Joseph Turnage attempted suicide there a few nights ago because his proposition of marriage was not accepted. The lady is Miss Minnie Humphreys. It was said that the young man walked home with the young lady and pressing his suit as they reached the steps he was rejected. Turning away he fired his pistol. The lady ran in doors and he fired another shot. The first shot took no effect but the second cut across the young man's forehead, but he did not succeed in killing himself.

The house of Mrs. Elizabeth Story in Caldwell county was burglarized Saturday night, and the savings of a life-time, $270 in gold, taken therefrom.

Make and nurse.

Many persons of slender means have seen the savings of years swallowed up in a few weeks by exorbitant doctor bills. Sections illness and its result, heavy bills, may almost be prevented if taken in time. When the system seems to be run down, the blood weak, and impure, causing eruptions, headache, weakness and lassitude, backache, scrofula, biliousness, chill, aversion to work, etc., there is reason for belief that serious illness is threatened. A bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will drive the impurities from the system, enrich the blood, bringing sound health, energy, strength and ambition. All dealers in medicines.

ARP ON THE PREACHER.

Bill's Homily on the Combination of Humility and Poverty.

In every community that has population enough to divide there are circles of society, circles of politics, circles of secret associations and circles of the church. The first and last named especially embrace the wives and daughters of the community. Women make up society and are more particular than men about who they admit into their circles. These circles are graded like the pupils at a public school—graded according to wealth or education. The dividing lines are not fixed nor well defined, for sometimes a poor woman who is smart and well-mannered and of good family, is admitted into a higher circle.

I know a very bright and beautiful lady who once was rich, but is now a milliner, and yet she is never omitted, never slighted by the charming circle, as it is called. She mingles freely with those above her and those below her. This is the tribute that all classes pay to refinement and good breeding. A good woman who has been well raised and has a good education can live in a place that is higher than the aristocracy of wealth. She has more social influence in the church or out of it than all the swells whose diamonds are their chief assets, and when she dies she has more mourners at her funeral.

But I was ruminating about the church society—the good will and charity that prevails in church circles among its members. If they do not mingle together on week days they do on Sundays, for the charity the church teaches brings all its members on a level. Among Christians (I don't mean pretenders or hypocrites) there is no aristocracy. A soul is a soul and the humblest on earth will take the highest place in heaven. I am not going to preach a sermon. These thoughts were provoked by a little episode that happened in our church last week. Our preacher and his sister went to keep house. They didn't have much to start on and we were behind with his salary.

Our country churches are all ways behind. For forty years I have been hunting for a church that was not behind. So it was whispered around that our preacher had to borrow money to buy a cooking stove and he didn't have no more furniture than Eliza had in his little room that the Shannanite woman fixed up for him by the wall. He is a sort of half yankee—born North and educated South, and his sister has been teaching school up there. He is smart and handsome and humble and the most devoted man in his calling I ever saw. The poorest people in the town and vicinity know him, for he has been to see them, and everybody loves him just because he loves everybody.

He was a balance on his education and has gone in debt for some books, but we didn't know it. All of a sudden we found out that he was distressed financially. We told him when he came that if the Lord would keep him humble we would keep him poor. But at last our church people became aroused. The ladies improvised a donation party and the men hustled around and raised his back pay and so last Friday evening the good things began to roll in to the preacher's house. The ladies of the town sent flour and coffee and tea and rice and oatmeal and sugar and syrup and canned goods and some furniture and everything else, nearly and the country members sent chickens and turkeys and potatoes, pickles and jellies and all sorts of good things even to popcorn and persimmons from the children. I never saw the like to two people. We are afraid he will quit preaching and open a family grocery. Our preacher can beat anybody marrying anybody except himself that I ever heard of. But he is young yet and will find a life in the sweet by and by if not before.

Preachers and doctors have to be married to be a grand success. Saving life and saving souls are the highest callings in the world, and if people didn't get married there wouldn't be any fit to be saved. Every unmarried man who has passed the meridian of life is a comparative failure. He is incomplete. He is a suspect and he'll be watched. David Bennett Hill may get to be President, but he is incomplete. So was Buchanan and Fillmore. The first lady of the land should be a President's wife—not his niece. But a preacher should be very careful in his choice for the poor woman who will be criticised as much as her husband, and won't have any chance to fight back in the pulpit. She should not be a leader of society—that is of its fashions and frivolities. But she should be social and cheerful and bright. Nobody likes a meek and sad-eyed woman. I know a minister in a distant city who married a very fashionable woman and it hurts his influence in the church.

But still a minister's wife may smile

Once or twice in a while.

And still be a woman without guile.

—BILL ARR.

The State's Fate in Your Power.

The 6th of November is but a little more than one week off, and these few days are big with the fate of North Carolina. If the Democratic party wins on that day all will be well; if it loses, and the combination effected by the Populist and Radical schemes wins, it will be a calamity such as North Carolina has not seen since the Radical car ran over the land in the dark and unhappy days of reconstruction.

The combiners are desperate, they are playing for big stakes and are utterly unscrupulous as to the means they employ to win. They are appealing to the passions and prejudices, and playing upon the ignorance and credulity of those whom they can influence and use. If they succeed they will be masters in North Carolina, there is no telling how long, for they will have it in their power to so frame the election laws, and so control the boards of county commissioners, magistrates, etc., that they can do about anything they want to.

If they succeed, your county government system is gone, for they will appoint their own adherents as magistrates, and these will elect partisan commissioners. Partisanship will be the qualification in both cases for appointment and we will again have the rule of ignorance and hate from which we were rescued twenty-two years ago by a supreme effort of the patriotic people of the State.

Every Democrat in the State should work with tireless zeal from this time until the polls close on the day of election, for the fate—the happiness or misery—of North Carolina is in the ballots cast on that day, and the Democratic ballots that are cast will depend upon the work done by earnest Democrats between now and then. Every true son of North Carolina should do his duty and no true son will be indifferent or take any chances.

Narrow Escape From Drowning.

Our town was thrown into much excitement last Friday morning about 10 o'clock, when it was announced that two men had been thrown from the embankment into the water beyond the river which was very deep during the freshet, and that they were about to be drowned. The men were Mr. John W. Talton and his son Johnnie. Mr. Talton had started to an association in Wilson county. He was about half way between the highland bridge and the river bridge when his horse became frightened and in an attempt to turn around on the embankment plunged off into the water.

The buggy fell on Mr. Talton and his son and it was some time before they could get out from under it. After they got out Mr. Talton says the lines got around his body and it was some time before he could extricate himself from them. He says his son was so exhausted after getting out from under the buggy that he sank several times and that it seemed that he would be drowned. Mr. Talton could not get to him to render him any aid.

After much difficulty, however, they both succeeded in getting to some small trees to which they could hold. As soon as it was found out that they were there a large number of people from town went over to help them out. Mr. John A. Baughtry went into the water, swam over to where they were carrying a rope with him, by which they were drawn out. In a few minutes afterwards they were brought safe to land. Mr. Talton's horse was drowned. His buggy was saved.

A Serious Cutting Affair.

A bad cutting affray came off at Tish Manning's, about six miles northwest from Danbury, Saturday of last week. The parties were neighbors, Edward Manning, son of Tish Manning, and Bob Bennett, son of W. B. Bennett. These young Buck Islanders had been out together the night before drinking, when bragging about their manhood report says they got into a scuffle when Ed Manning popped his knife into Bob Bennett, cutting through the left side into the lung. Bennett ran, when Manning followed cutting him at two other places on the back. There is some hope that Bennett will recover. Manning is in jail here, captured Sunday night.

Last Week in Trade Circles.

Special Correspondence.
NEW YORK, Oct. 22, 1894.
Business conditions have not materially changed. The pace of the improvement which has now been in progress for nearly two months is not rapid, but it is steady. Trade expansion has halted a little in some lines because mild weather has retarded the absorption of early purchases by consumers, or because the operations of interior buyers in anticipation of spring wants have been unfavorably influenced by the persistent fall in prices of wheat and cotton; but the general tendency of business is in the direction of greater activity. The decline in prices makes the statistical comparisons less favorable than they would be under other conditions. The comparative gain of 5.6 per cent. in the daily average payments through banks so far this month would have been considerably larger but for the fall in prices.

The figures of railroad earnings indicate a substantial increase in the West-bound freight movement, and in the traffic over Southern and Pacific railroad systems. Low rates for money in New York and unsatisfactory foreign trade conditions have led to the shipment of $1,000,000 of gold last week, but the outgo has had no important influence on the markets. Exports in two weeks of October from New York alone have been valued at $1,859,709 less than the shipments for the corresponding period last year, while imports in the same time have shown a comparative increase of $3,452,792. Business failures continue to be few in number and of minor importance, the total for the week in the United States and Canada having been 296, as against 370 for the corresponding period last year.

Cotton prices have further declined 1/4 of a cent per pound, and at 5 1/2-16 for middlings at New York are the lowest ever recorded under the present system of classification of grades, although in 1849 and prior to that year there were records of cotton sales at 5 cents per pound and lower. The continued weakness is due to the large receipts and the general anticipation of a big crop yield. The movement since September 1 has been larger than that of 1893 and 1892, but not quite equal to that of the big crop season which began in September, 1891. Spinners are represented as cautious buyers, owing to continued lack of confidence that prices have touched bottom; but the takings of Northern mills so far during the crop season have been nearly double what they were in 1893 and a little larger than they were in 1892 at the corresponding period. Exports of the staple are of good volume, and the weekly outgo continues to exceed that of the season of 1893.

There has been a slightly increased business in wool, and prices have ruled steady. The mills are busy, and the consumption of wool is steadily increasing; but many manufacturers are still drawing upon stocks bought earlier in the season. There has been an improved demand for iron and steel products in the principal markets, although the rapid increase in production has thus far prevented recovery in prices. It is a gratifying evidence of the steady increase in consumption that while the output of the furnaces has expanded until it is now at a rate equal to within about 1,000,000 tons of the largest annual production, the stocks have thus far continued to decline. The boot and shoe factories continue busy, and Eastern shipments, according to the Shoe and Leather Reporter, have been for three weeks 252,585 cases, as against 169,564 last year, and 243,899 in 1892 for the corresponding period.

Seaboard wheat prices are 1/4 of a cent lower than they were a week ago, and have made a new "low record" both for the actual grain and for the options. The depression has been the result of the continued accumulation of visible stocks, supplemented by an uneasy feeling with regard to the condition of much of the old wheat now in store in New York and Chicago. New crop wheat commands a premium of 1 cent per bushel in New York on account of the fear of weevil in the old stock.

Corn prices show no important change. The Western movement of old corn is small, and stocks are running down; but the prospect of an early marketing of the new crop and a prevalent belief that the yield will be larger than had been recently expected have combined to prevent a revival of bullish speculation in this cereal. Exports of corn are very small. There is a fair export trade in provisions, but the domestic distribution is moderate.

A Song of Three Ps.
Let me sing you a song of three Ps.
That for work as busy as bees.
They insure you what's worth more than wealth.
A most blessed abundance of health.
The first they investigate.
And get they do not saltate.
The bilious and dyspeptic too.
They quickly make to feel like new.
But pills and constipation go.
Before this remedy you know.
But I will stop, for you have probably guessed what I am driving at. Who does not know that Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure all the complaints mentioned and many more. Small, sure, safe, pleasant. Satisfaction guaranteed or money returned.

ALL OVER THE STATE.

A Summary of Current Events for the Past Seven Days.

A new gold mining company has begun operations at Ita, Halifax county.

A small colored boy in Cabarrus county found a nugget of gold, Saturday, that weighed six penny-weights.

Thieves tore away the corner-stone of a church in Rowan county, Saturday night, and took away all the contents, including some money.

A negro named Freeman was killed by a train in Edgecombe county, Monday night. It is supposed that he fell from a car while in motion.

While in a delirium from illness, Mrs. Julius Settlemyre, of Catawba county, got her husband's razor, on Wednesday, and cut her throat from ear to ear.

Two citizens of Salisbury made attempts Monday to end their earthly careers—one with strychnine and the other with laudanum. Both were pulled through.

The postal authorities, on Saturday, arrested W. G. Harrell, postmaster at Old Sparta, Edgecombe county, for embezzling money orders and registered letters.

Will Wilson, a machinist, of Charlotte, while engaged at the Victor cotton mill, Friday, got his hand caught in the lathe, and instantly three of his fingers were wrenched off.

Berry Saunders, a white man, working at a gin in Wake county, was killed Monday by a scantling striking him on the head while a bale of cotton was being hoisted in the gin.

The four-year-old daughter of Richard Davis, colored, was burned to death in Mecklenburg county, Friday, by her clothing becoming ignited while playing about a wash-pot.

While pulling fodder in Wilkes county, Thursday, Irvin Gray, colored, accidentally dropped a pistol when it discharged, shooting him through the heart, killing him instantly.

Thomas Covington and Elam Josey, two cotton mill employees of Catawba county, were jailed at Newton Wednesday night, charged with the recent murder of their superintendent, James Brown.

Hillary Petty and Jim Calloway had a falling out Sunday at a Baptist church in Wilkes county, and Petty cut Calloway across the throat with a knife, wounding him seriously, perhaps fatally.

At Charlotte, Tuesday, an 11-year-old daughter of policeman Rigger swallowed a lot of broken glass which was in a jar of preserves, and as a result will probably die. Her mother broke the jar but forgot to tell the child. The glass is in the latter's stomach.

Charged With Seven Offences.

Thomas Jackson was brought here last Saturday and placed in jail. He had just served his time out in the penitentiary, and was released Oct. 24. He was convicted for an offence committed in Moore county and sent to the pen about Jan. 1st, 1893. He stands charged now with seven offences committed in this county, among them being the stealing of a horse from Mr. J. W. Strickland, near Four Oaks. He will be tried at the next term of the Superior court here, and will, no doubt, be sentenced for a number of years to the penitentiary again.

Killed by His Brother.

On Monday last, James Foster was accidentally shot and killed by his brother John, while the two were out turkey hunting on Tabor Knob or Pinnacle, near the Swain and Macon line. They had stopped to rest and John's gun went off while lying across his lap. James, the wounded brother, lived about twelve hours. He was carried out to the road by his brother, who then went for the father to assist in getting his brother to the house. It was a double load in the gun and passed through his right wrist and into his stomach.

Didn't Think It Was Loaded.

On Monday morning of last week Mr. S. M. Dyson, who lives in Little River township, thought he would go out squirrel hunting. He got down his gun, set the stock down on the floor, pushed the hammer back with his foot and blew into the barrel to see if it was all right. Just as he blew his foot slipped off of the hammer, which came down and the load was discharged into Mr. Dyson's mouth, making a very painful wound. He did not think the gun was loaded. He is getting along very well.

"Many of the citizens of Rainsville, Indiana, are never without a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house," says Jacob Brown, the leading merchant of the place. "This remedy has proven of so much value for colds and croup in children that few mothers who know its value are willing to be without it." For sale by J. H. Hill & Son, druggist.

SYMPTOMS OF CHRONIC CATARRH.

As Described by Dr. Hartman, one of the Greatest Authorities and Writers on Catarrh.

The symptoms of chronic catarrh vary according to the stage and exact location of the disease. The first stage of catarrh of the nose and head produces discharge from the nose, sneezing, pain in the eyes and forehead, and sometimes watery eyes, occasionally loss of memory. In the last stage the discharge ceases, and dry, offensive scabs form in the nose; polyp growths sometimes form in one or both nostrils, and the pain in the head and eye is much less. Unless something is done to prevent, the catarrh will follow the mucous membrane into the lungs, where it will be followed by cough, night sweats, rapid loss of flesh, and the other dread symptoms of consumption.

Pe-ru-na is a specific for every case of catarrh, whether the disease is located in the lungs, kidneys or stomach. The dose of Pe-ru-na should be a large tablespoonful before each meal and at bedtime. Women and some delicate men should begin with a teaspoonful, and slowly and gradually increase to the above full dose. Free books on chronic catarrh, la grippe, coughs, colds and consumption are being sent to any address by The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, of Columbus, Ohio.

A Loophole in the Law.

One of the darkeys who brought in cotton this morning, had two possums, six chickens and two partridges in his wagon. The platform men read the bird law to him, and he was terribly upset for a time, but soon rallied. "See here boss," said he, "dat law say shoot, trap or net, do it?" "Yes," he was told. "Then I'm all right," he laughed. "I killed them two partridges wid a rock." It turned out that he had really done so. The platform men got his birds for 20 cents less than he asked for them.
