FACTS THE SITUATION.

Relatively few people have courage enough to really face the situation that confronts them. They allow their hopes to mislead them rather than look at the facts. Men in business may know in a general way that they are going behindhand, but they are afraid to make a thorough examination of their affairs. They prefer to go on, hoping against hope that a change will come about after awhile and relieve them of their difficulties. Failure could often be averted by facing the situation in time. An examination of one's accounts at least discloses the true state of affairs in detail and may suggest means of economizing. When, however, a man has screwed his courage up to the point of facing the situation, he does not always do so fairly, but allows his hopes or his desires to sway his judgment. Men should be hopeful; it is an important factor in enabling them to accomplish their tasks, but they should also be reasonable and watchful, and they should not shut their eyes to facts as they exist.

Politicians are always optimistic. They feel sure that the public must be with them. This is particularly the case with men of strong convictions, founded upon principle, and explains why they enter so cheerfully upon a losing campaign. But the really shrewd politician does not allow himself to be altogether misled by his hopes or his faith in the ultimate triumph of the right—which right is always represented by his own party. While trying to inspire his fellows with confidence, he nevertheless carefully examines the situation and seeks to ascertain the drift of public sentiment. He cannot learn this from his political friends, nor by a canvass of voters in a particular district or State, but must seek information from fairly representative men in various parts of the country. Just as a chemist seeks to analyze a product gets various samples to guard against local variations, so the politician, whose analysis should be made with as little interference from personal feeling or desire, must get indications of the drift of popular sentiment in all quarters of the country.

He may find the drift one way in the cities, another way in the rural districts, strong in one State, weak in another; but if he wants to carry on an intelligent campaign he must face the situation and learn the facts, even though they should be discouraging. No matter how cool he may be or how determined to look the situation in the face, he is liable to be misled by his hopes and desires, which give color to everything he views. His calculations based on previous returns are quite flexible, and if he does not guard himself he will be sure to make allowances in his own favor and against his opponents. To correct this tendency he should consider the calculations of the enemy in a judicial spirit. Nothing is to be gained by misrepresentation to one's self of the real situation; on the other hand, much may be gained by a realization of the dangers ahead. The situation having been ascertained in a judicial spirit, hope may be allowed to have full play, for without hope there can be no confidence, and confidence is needed to inspire to effort.

That which is true of politics and politicians is true also of business and business men, and in the humblest affairs of life, it is well to face the situation. It will not grow any worse from being understood. Hope is such a strong factor in enabling a patient to rally from disease that it has been deemed wise by physicians to keep sick persons in general ignorance of their real condition, as if they should be called upon to face the situation in their weakened condition, despair might meet upon them and rob them of their chance of recovery. But a sick person is not in a normal condition and forms an exception to the rule. Those who are strong in mind and body should learn to face the situation and employ hope upon the foundation of knowledge.

WHAT WAR AND FINANCE HAVE SPREAD in Cuba is now threatened by pestilence. Nor is it to be surmised that "Yellow Jack," who is now slaying the Spanish troops in the towns, is not also laying low the insurgents in their dank moccasins and thick forests. If the fever were only an ally of the army of Maceo there might be some consolation for the patriotic Cubans in that fact; but the disease is an enemy, knowing neither friend nor foe.

National Capital Matters.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 25, 1896. Senator Faulkner, chairman of the Democratic Congressional committee, is being daily astonished at the extraordinary increase in silver sentiment in the middle and eastern States, as shown by letters written to the committee asking for information and literature on the subject. He is also surprised to see that a majority of these seekers after silver documents, instead of being farmers, are professional and business men residing in towns and cities. Speaking on the subject Senator Faulkner said: "I am astounded at the tone of some of the letters I am receiving, and it appears to me that the silver wave is sweeping over the East with as much force as it has shown in the West and South. It may be permanent or it may be only temporary, but that it exists now is certain." Senator Faulkner is not the sort of man to allow his enthusiasm to bias his judgment; hence his declaration of his belief, that unless some great reaction takes place, which will change existing public sentiment before election day, Bryan will be elected by a large majority, carries great weight.

Representative Hart, of Pennsylvania, says his district (the eighth) will roll up a good majority for Bryan and Sewall. He says there are very few Democrats in the district who have said they would not support the Chicago ticket and platform, but that a great many Republicans have come out for Bryan and Sewall and free silver. He says that the tariff question cuts no figure at all among his people, but that they are all anxious to learn everything possible about the silver question. It was largely to satisfy their yearnings in that line that Mr. Hart came to Washington. He has arranged with the Congressional committee to send a lot of silver literature to his constituents. Among the documents to be sent is the Chicago speech of Mr. Bryan, which Senator Faulkner says "is about the best statement of the silver question from our standpoint that has been made."

Hon. William J. Hendrick, ex-Attorney General of Kentucky, said in Washington this week: "In the fierce contest that has been waged in Kentucky between the gold and silver partisans my voice and influence have ever been on the side of sound money. I still adhere to the opinion that free silver coinage by this government, independently of the other great nations, would be a mistake. But I am a Democrat, and Democracy stands for so many other things besides free silver that it is impossible for me to renounce my party allegiance, and I shall cheerfully do all in my power to promote the success of the Chicago ticket. With all the faults of the platform it is infinitely better than McKinleyism. Bryan and Sewall will unquestionably carry Kentucky."

There is some talk of establishing a Democratic daily newspaper in Washington which will support Bryan and Sewall and the Chicago platform. Perhaps such a paper might make some votes, but, in my opinion, it would not make one per cent of the votes that could be made by spending the amount of money that it would cost to run a Washington daily during the campaign in circulating the Democratic dailies and weeklies already established and enjoying more prestige in their localities than a Washington paper could possibly get.

Mr. S. D. Weaver, city attorney of Burlington, Kansas, who is now visiting Washington, says: "It is the opinion of conservative men that Bryan will carry Kansas. It is true that some Democrats who believe in sound money will not support him, and yet more of these will vote for him than will support McKinley. There are also a great many silver Republicans in the State who will vote for Bryan."

Theoretical men are as a rule good judges of the drift of public sentiment. Mr. J. W. Morrissey, widely known as a manager, says of a coming event: "Bryan's descent on New York will be a stupendous affair. He will peak Madison Square Garden to its limit—16,000 people—about 10,000 more will be in the streets to give him welcome. Only a fraction of that number gathering will be able to hear a word he utters, but few will fail to read it afterwards. Already there is a big change of sentiment in New York favorable to silver, and Bryan's coming will make converts by the thousand."

The sugar bounty claims, aggregating $5,000,000, will now probably be paid without further delay at the rate of about 54 cents on the dollar of claims filed. To-day Secretary Carlisle approved the decision of Commissioner Miller disallowing three claims aggregating about $15,000. These claims were filed by General John O. Seavill, Frank Webb and Walter Southern, all of Alabama. The Treasury gold reserve this afternoon stood $163,951,391.

Some Old State Happenings.

—A Gaston county goose, whose age was of record, has just died at the age of 25 years.

—At Roxobel, Bertie county, Wednesday, Frank Bazemore, aged 83, the oldest citizen in that section, was married to Mrs. Sarah Cullifer, aged 72.

—Mrs. Susan Kimmons is suing the town of Salisbury for $10,000 damages. Her husband was burned to death in the Salisbury lock-up last November.

—According to the Wilkesboro Chronicle, "Uncle Jim" Cheatham on the Irishies, passed his one hundredth milestone, on Tuesday, in perfect health. He has a mule over thirty years old.

—The Greenville Reflector says that a Pitt county man obtained his third marriage license, Saturday, and that every time the bride have been first cousins to each other—all three of them grand-daughters of the same man.

—One of the boldest thieves that we have heard of was the negro who recently stole twelve head of cattle near Spout Springs, in Harnett county, and drove them in broad daylight on the public roads to Greensboro, where he sold them, pocketed the money and escaped before the owners of the cattle could overtake him.

—Sometime ago James Tucker, of White Top, Ashe county, had a difficulty with a man named Edmiston, of Virginia, in which Tucker shot him in the leg. Edmiston had the leg extracted and carefully preserved, and declaring he would force Tucker to eat it. Last Sunday they met at preaching near White Top, when Edmiston, getting the "drop" on his man, forced him to chew up and swallow the bullet, then, knocking him down with a rock, departed to Virginia.

—M. Lafette, writing from Columbia, Tyrrell county, to the Raleigh News and Observer says: "It can no longer be said that a hen can lay only one egg at a time. A light Scotch Brahma hen, from the prize poultry yards of Phil. L. Sprull, of this place, laid two eggs at one time yesterday—one within the other—both eggs being perfect in every respect. The outer egg measured 8 1/2 inches around the long way, and 7 1/2 inches around, and weighed 5 1/2 ounces. The inner egg was a perfect shell and contents, and is the same size as an ordinary hen egg."

—The Blue Ridge Times, of Parsonville, Wilkes county, says: Mr. Lister Perkins was married to Miss Blankenship, daughter of Rev. Harrison Blankenship, a few days ago. This is Mr. Perkins' fourth wife, and she is about 18 years old while he is near 60. It is remembered that Rev. Harrison Blankenship was excommunicated from the Union Baptist church for exchanging wives with Hamilton Waters, and also lay in jail at Jefferson about six months for the same cause. The Rev. Mr. Blankenship has since organized a church of his own and has several followers.

—Fred L. Carr led his class on entrance at the University, graduated summa cum laude in class of '95. He was from the Horner School, Oxford.

—Feed the Nerves. Upon pure, rich blood you need and for nervous prostration. Nerves are weak when they are improperly and insufficiently nourished. Pure blood is their proper food, and pure blood comes by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is the greatest and best nerve tonic. It also builds up the whole system.

Youngest President Ever Nominated.

William Jennings Bryan, Democratic nominee for President, is thirty-six years old. He is the youngest man ever nominated to the Presidential office by one of the great parties, and if successful will be the youngest man ever elected.

The favorite decade in life from which to choose a President has been the sixth. Thus when they were nominated or elected by the popular voice before convention days, their ages ran in this wise: Washington, 56; Jefferson, 57; Madison, 57; Monroe, 58; John Quincy Adams, 57; Van Buren, 54; Lincoln, 51; Hayes, 54, and Benjamin Harrison, 55.

The Presidents above sixty at the time of their election were: John Adams, 61; Jackson, 61; William Henry Harrison, 67; Taylor, 62, and Buchanan, 65. Those below fifty were: Polk, 49; Pierce, 48; Grant, 46; Garfield, 49, and Cleveland, 47. Mr. Cleveland was fifty-five at his second election. The Vice-Presidents who became Presidents were at their elections of the following ages: Tyler, 50; Fillmore, 48, Johnson, 56, and Arthur, 50.

Mr. Bryan is ten years younger than Gen. Grant when he was nominated, twenty-five years younger than John Adams and Jackson, and thirty-one years younger than the elder Harrison, who was the oldest man ever yet nominated for President, though he holds the age over James Buchanan by two years only. The constitution requires the President to be thirty-five, so that Mr. Bryan just skips over the boundary line.

Poor Blood is starved blood. It shows itself in pale cheeks, white lips, weak digestion, no appetite, exhaustion, lack of nerve force, soft muscles, and, chief of all, weak muscles. Your doctor calls it Anæmia. He will tell you that the weakening weather of summer often brings it on.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites, will make poor blood rich. It is a food for over-taxed and weak digestion, so prepared that it can easily be taken in summer when Cod-liver Oil or even ordinary foods might repel.
