Children's Valuable Opportunities. The Southern Realty Exchange. REAL ESTATE BOUGHT, SOLD AND EXCHANGED. Have you Property for Sale? Do you wish to Invest? Have you Property for Sale? Do you wish to Invest? Have you Property for Sale? Do you wish to Invest?

Bide Your Time. When fortune treats you slightly and everything goes wrong. Remember that you are still free. To labor and be strong. To him who bravely does his part. Misfortune is no crime. Just hold your grip and keep up heart. And learn to bide your time. The street road to greatness lies through hard and patient work. The glorious name that never dies. Comes not into the shirk. Fame sits upon an eminence. A plume sublime. He who would win must seek her throne. Strive on and bide his time. Who goes of hope and energy. Who keeps one goal in sight. Who goes his way with constancy. Will some time win the fight. The man whose life a glory bends To every age and clime. Is he whose purpose never bends. Who works and bides his time. Go onward. O'er the hills and swales. The dawn falls cool and sweet. Go onward. You can win who will. And losses not to feel. Go onward, though your path may lie Through canyon and arid plain. The way will brighten by and by. Go on and bide your time. And when the light at last is o'er The toll at last is done. When standing on the farther shore, Beneath her setting sun; Beyond the future's unbarred gate. The bells of heaven chime. And jewels, love and glory wait For him who bides his time. - J. A. EDGEMONT, Franklins.

The form of oath adopted by court - the witness being required to tell "the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth" - is indicative of the quibbles and evasions to which some men accounted honest are prone to resort. They can satisfy their consciences by telling the truth, though it may not be the whole truth, or by mixing the truth with a wrong impression. It is to guard against such juggling with the truth that the oath is made specific and exclusive. The demand for the truth should be sufficient, but it is not, and even the well-guarded oath sometimes fails to elicit it. In such the same way that truth is garbled by omissions and evasions, honesty is juggled with men who are not frank.

There are very many men who would rather lie than tell the truth, and who, nevertheless, are not quite upright. They do not tell lies, but they withhold a part of the truth; they do not cheat, but they take advantage of another's ignorance; they do not rob, but having obtained possession of another's property under color of law they hold on to it. Such men are never frank, and by their insincerity they may be known. One may not be able to successfully impeach their honesty, yet a watch should be kept on them. The old saying that "every man has his price" is fortunately not altogether true, but it is true when applied to men whose honesty is not spontaneous and outspoken. The frank man cannot be otherwise than honest, and his frankness helps to preserve him from temptation.

It is the insincere, tricky man, who plays a part and works in devious ways, who is to be dreaded, no matter what his reputation for honesty may be. Such a man is usually cold blooded; he has no real friendliness, being cordial only as a matter of good policy, that he may serve his own interests. His want of frankness gives him an advantage in some of his dealings with other men. He learns of their projects without disclosing his own; advises with them in operations in which he is their enemy, and plays the part of a hypocrite if not that of a traitor. In the long run he gains nothing, it is true, for "corruption was not more than honesty," and in the course of a long course of chicanery he earns nothing but the contempt of his fellow-men, and this, from the moralist standpoint, represents failure in life, no matter what fortune may have been won or high place gained.

Every young man should school himself to be not only honest, but frank, and resist all temptations to gain advancement by fraud of any kind or even the appearance of his grand against men whom he finds to be two-faced or lacking in the frankness which is the sure sign of spontaneous honesty of mind. Experience will teach him that such dishonesty may co-exist with a good reputation, but it is then especially dangerous. The only safe plan is to have no dealings with a man who, though honest in the ordinary sense, is tricky, deceitful and silent when he should speak. It is for such men the oath was devised requiring them to tell "the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth."

There are people who claim to be praying for the poor, who never do anything else for them. No Room for Doubt. Proof, yes overwhelming proof can be furnished of the excellent curative qualities of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. "I caught a cold which led to a cough and pain in the chest, (common) I bought Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, and after taking one bottle of it, the cough began to disappear; when I finished taking the second bottle I was cured. Gustav Thurnmaster, 40 Hickory St., Cleveland, O." Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup costs but 25 cents. Take only Bull's.

ARP LOCKS HIS DOORS.

Burglars and Thieves Greatly Distrust the Georgia Philosopher. "Hark, hark, the dogs do bark; The burglars have come to town." For fifteen years this has been an orderly, peaceable and honest town. Ever since the saloons were abolished there has been no disturbance of the public tranquillity. During all that time our doors have not been locked at night nor has our chicken roost been robbed by the towel invader. The presence of our faithful dog may have been our protection, for there have been some few chickens stolen in these parts. Our neighbor, Charles Patterson, suffered some of this way until he bought the old gallop on which a man was hung a few years ago and built a chicken house of the timber. Since then he can hardly get a ducky to put chickens in it by day, much less to take them out by night. But our negroes in and around Cartersville are a clever, industrious people and as honest as mankind are generally. The domestic servants will take some liberties with little things that they think we won't miss, but they have many good traits that are a set off, and so we compromise on general principles.

But now the burglars have come to town and alarmed the whole community. I believe they come from up north every bad thing comes from, even to bad weather. The other day a tramp came to our house and asked for something to eat. He was fairly good looking and well dressed. My wife got him a lunch and asked him where his home was, and where he was going. He smiled and said he had no home and was raised in an orphan asylum up north and was going to Atlanta in search of work. "How do you travel," said she, "if you have no money?"

"Well, I ride on the freights until they put me off," he said, "and then I wait for another one and ride some more. I am just taking a little trip now to see the country."

There were two or three of these fellows in town and they took the rounds asking for something to eat and always got it. My opinion is that they are professional thieves and their purpose in calling at so many houses is to prospect the premises. The night after they were at our house burglars entered four houses and stole money. They took $90 from under a sleeping man's pillow and smaller sums from the pockets of other men. A few nights after they entered three houses and took a fine gold watch from under a banker's pillow and the next night a watch and some money at another place. They take no clothing nor anything to eat. They are white folks, I tell you and are experts in their business. Well, of course the whole community is aroused, and especially the women. My wife is not a timid woman. She is more afraid of snakes than of men, but she, too, got alarmed and made me get the hammer and screwdriver and some bolts and nails and fix up every door and window. She held the lamp and watched me all round from room to room, and I mashed a great blood blister on my finger and it hurts yet. When all was done to her satisfaction and we got ready to retire, she suddenly told me not to lock the back door, for Uncle Sam had to come in there in the morning to make a fire. Considerate woman! She knew that I didn't like to get up out of a warm bed to unlock the door. Reckon she thinks the burglars wouldn't be so impolite as to come in at the back door. But they don't get any watch from under my pillow, for I haven't got any. Forty years ago they got mine just that way in old Dr. Thompson's hotel in Atlanta, and I have never carried one since. They got my pocket book, too, and a little money and some valuable papers. They were from up north and very clever men, considering, far in about a week they sent me all my papers back through the mail and the letter was postmarked Philadelphia. They will give a man back everything they can't use. Bill Fort told me that they were a kind hearted set of thieves and he had known them to lean over and kiss a sleeping man after they had robbed him.

No, it is white folks who are stealing these valuable things. Negroes haven't got above chickens and turkeys yet. I heard the other day of an old darkey who prayed every night during Christmas for the Lord to send a turkey to him, but the turkey didn't come, and so he changed his prayer and asked the Lord to send him to a turkey and his prayer was answered that very night. A negro don't hanker after gold watches. He wants something to eat.

But now I am going to know what is all this racket about that they call co-education. I thought it was just another fad and would soon pass away, but it seems to get bigger and bigger the more they talk about it. One would think that there were no female colleges in the land and that the boys were getting all the education, when the truth is there is more educational facilities for girls in this state than for boys. I don't know what it all means. Do the girls want

The entire Philadelphia fire department was called out Monday afternoon for a fire which caused $80,000 damage to the millinery and cloak establishment of Apt. Bros., on North Eighth street. At Brooklyn, N. Y., Sunday, Samuel J. Parkhill, aged 74, who took a wife recently fifty years younger than himself, shot and killed himself because of despondency over being freed to separate from her. At Rockville Ind., Thursday, Jas. T. Sturgeon was shot and instantly killed by Harry Porter, aged 16. The cause of the killing was the attentions paid to the boy's mother. Sturgeon was married, with a family. A passenger train on the Atlantic and Danville Railroad was wrecked near Gill's Station, Va., Tuesday, caused by the engine jumping the track. Engineer James Lute and fireman Frank B. Smith were instantly killed. None of the passengers were injured.

All Over the State.

The distillery of W. Corbett, near Wilson, was wrecked Thursday by an explosion. J. H. Dingelhoff, dry goods dealer, of Winston, made an assignment Saturday. Liabilities, about $12,000. Samuel Ehorn, colored, was killed in Beaufort county Monday night by a log engine while asleep on the track. After the first of January the saloons of Asheville are to close at 10 p. m., instead of midnight as at present. While out hunting in Transylvania county, Saturday, Eph Cassell was killed by the accidental discharge of his gun. Wat Lank, colored, while hunting in Richmond county, Thursday, accidentally shot himself in the neck and died instantly. Edna Thorne, colored, was crushed to death under a freight car in Wilson, Thursday noon, while attempting to cross the railroad track. A little daughter of James Ward, in Randolph county, was fatally burned Monday by her clothes catching on fire while playing about the wash-pot. The Piedmont Bank of Morganton closed its doors Thursday morning. The reason given is inability to make collections rapidly, enough to meet demands. At Greensboro, Saturday night, Soney Ryan, a fugitive from justice, shot dead his wife because she refused to give up her money collected from her boarders. The new school law makes it the duty of the county supervisor to examine the records of all magistrates in the county to see if they have turned over all fines to the school funds. In Pamlico county, Tuesday, the 13-month-old son of A. C. Brinson was burned to death, his clothing becoming ignited from a flying spark during the temporary absence of his mother. Peter Price, of Greensboro, on Monday, found $5,000 in gold coin in a pot on land he lately bought near Madison, Rockingham county. It had been buried by a miser, long dead, named Black. It is openly asserted that convicts at the Halifax State farm are allowed to go possess and earn hunting at night, contrary to all precedent and to the rules and regulations of the penitentiary. In Wilkes county, Saturday, Monroe Waddell, was standing with his gun resting on the ground, his foot resting on the hammer, and very foolishly blew into the muzzle. It was his last blow. White caps in Bancombe county forced their way into the house of Peter Woody, Monday night, and beat him with clubs. His wife fled with a baby in her arms. The mob threw her little children out of doors, where they remained all night, and then wrecked the house. The State Labor Commissioner has completed his report on the tobacco industry in North Carolina, which shows that 26,929,242 pounds were manufactured of plug and 6,300 of snuff; also, 4,029,326 cigars and 39,091,300 packages of cigarettes, during the year ended last Wednesday. While cementation was being undertaken at the new fortifications at Fort Caswell, near Southport, Monday afternoon, fifteen hundred pounds of it fell upon Rufus Murphy, of Currituck band, and crushed him to death. He was a member of the sanctified band, or Lynchites, a number of whom are working on the fort. At the Calcedonia State farm near Tillery, an order has been past compelling all convicts (whites especially) to take of their hats when they passed the guards, who are mostly negroes. A white "trusty" was recently punished and had all his privileges taken from him for failing to take off his hat to a negro guard before he knew the order had been passed. The little daughter of J. A. Misenheimer, of Rowan county, narrowly escaped death Saturday afternoon. As she was standing by the fireplace a bullet grazed her throat and knocked her to the floor. The hurt, luckily, was a very slight one. It is not known where the bullet came from, but it is likely that a cartridge exploded in the fire before which the little girl was standing.
