The Old-Time Easter Bonnets.

Don't like these Easter bonnets—the ones they call the new. With flowers, an' birds that seem to sing a Easter song to you? They're mighty fine in fixin'—with rain-lower-ribbons an' things. They're nuthin' like the ones they wore when you an' me wuz young? The ol'-time Easter bonnet—as plain as plain could be. With just two ribbons on it—wuz sweet enough for me. You never see that bonnet now in Easter windows hung—The bonnet that the dear girls wore when you an' me wuz young? I've seen 'em on the meetin'-way—those girls that wore 'em, sweet As all the April violets that blossomed at their feet. An' talk 'bout Easter lilies—wuzn't none of 'em as fair As the faces 'neath them bonnets that the ol' girls used to wear! The new girls—'course they're beautiful—like dreams they come and go; They're 'bleeged to follow fashion, fer styles must change, you know; But this is my contendin'—though I contends in vain: Beauty's more beautiful beneath a bonnet plain! I reckon I'm ol'-fashioned—fer Time, it slips away; An' Easter girls we used to love are wrinkled now and gray—Yet, no—they're young forever! an' Memory's lights are hung Bright on the bonnets that they wore when you an' me wuz young! —FRANK L. STANTON.

Easter Days at Billville.

There are numerous angels pictured on the Easter cards, but they are all scantily clothed, and not one of 'em wears a twelve dollar hat. Times are not exactly as flush as they might be, so yesterday we took our ride and killed four jaybirds for our wife to trim her hat with. There is just this about it: These Easter trimmings not only cover the ground, but certainly fill the bill. We have been kept very busy of late. We are running an Easter military establishment in connection with our newspaper. We have sold enough Easter lilies this season to pay off the mortgage on our mule.

The Easter weather is so clear and beautiful you can see a bill collector approaching a quarter of a mile away. The Easter hats will cut short the collection to-morrow and the heathen will have to starve next week. The impudence of these foreign heathen is remarkable. A recently converted cannibal writes to ask if we can't send him an Easter beaver and a box of cigars! All the Easter cards that we have received so far bore the inscription, "Please settle your bill early and avoid the rush!" An Easter supper will be given to-morrow night and we have been living in daily expectation of an invitation to say grace. We ran a military establishment in connection with our paper last week and did such a rushing business that there isn't enough ribbon left to make plow-lines for the mule. The local candidates have given all the voters in the county Easter hats, which they will be expected to throw up for them when they're elected.

Easter in the New Century.

In the century just begun there will be 5,217 Sundays. In that which we have hardly yet learned to speak of as the last Easter Sunday has occurred once on its earliest possible date, March 22, 1818; but this will not recur till the twenty-third century. The earliest Easter in the new century will be March 23, 1913. Easter Sunday will fall once on its latest day, April 25, in 1943. This also occurred once in the century just passed—in 1866. Ascension day is practically always in May, but on three occasions in the past century it occurred in June, and in the new century this will happen four times.

The Feast of Easter.

The name Easter is derived, as some suppose, from Eostre, the title of a Saxon deity, whose feast was celebrated every year in the spring about the same time as the Christian festival, the name being retained when the character of the feast was changed, or, as others suppose, from Oster, which signifies rising. If the latter supposition be correct, Easter is in name as well as reality the feast of the resurrection.

His Easter Musings.

He picked up the Easter statement and read: To one Easter dress, $40. To one Easter hat, $12. To Easter shoes and gloves, $9. And slowly and thoughtfully he drew his check for the amount, he muttered: "And next Sunday Jenny expects me to go to church and sing 'Old Hundred' with a thankful heart!"

Caught a Dreadful Cold.

Marion Kooke, manager for T. M. Thompson, a large importer of fine linens at 1638 Milwaukee Avenue, Chicago, says: "During the late severe winter I caught a dreadful cold which kept me awake at night and made me unfit to attend my work during the day. One of my milliners was taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a severe cold at that time, which seemed to relieve her so quickly that I bought some for myself. It acted like magic and I began to improve at once. I am now entirely well and feel very pleased to acknowledge its merits." For sale by M. E. Robinson & Bro., J. F. Miller's Drug Store, Goldsboro; J. R. Smith, Mt. Olive.

ARP AND HIS BIBLE.

He Likes To Read the Apocrypha—Quotes Some of the Book.

The family is the most important institution upon the earth. It is the hope of the world. Its influence is greater than that of kings, emperors or cabinets. Parents and children gathered around the hearthstones in separate families make up communities, and they make states and nations and choose their rulers. As the families are, so is the government—good or bad—men—unmarried men are merely individuals and feel no great responsibility outside of their individual comfort and welfare. But parents are concerned for their children. We live for them and would die for them, consequently we would good government that will protect them. But it is not every family who feels this deep concern. From my window I see the homes of many neighbors and can count on my fingers those whose presence is a safeguard to the community, and the rest are of but little consequence. If they were to move away it would not add to our peril.

So it is in all communities. The few protect the many. So it is in church and state. Twenty members of our legislature control its legislation. Ten members of an average church membership give the church its character. Sodom was destroyed because ten good men could not be found. If all men were good we would have no need of courts or prisons. But for every church that is set on a hill there is a jail in the valley. I hear the preacher calling and the bell tolling from the one, and imagine I hear the devil calling from the other, and he cries out as the sergeants did in the old master language, "Oh, yes! Oh, yes! All who belong to Captain Satan's company parade here. And the people are going and coming all the time some to one call and more to the other. But as the devil can't be heard afar off, he goes about calling, and even invades the sanctuary and calls aloud while the preacher is preaching.

"Man never enters a house of prayer but what the devil builds a pulpit there, and 'twill be found upon examination The devil has the largest congregation."

His pulpit is always at the rear end where the young people love to sit, and you can tell how popular he is by the number who sit there. I was ruminating about this family institution and its great importance in the world because I have been reading about it in the Apocrypha, which is one of our family Bibles. I heard a preacher say once that a Bible with the Apocrypha in it should not stay in his house. Well, it took 1,826 years to exclude it from the Protestant Bible, and most of it is in the Roman Catholic Bible yet. What is called a sacred canon was not established until the sixteenth century, and for centuries before that almost every great theologian had his own catalogue of inspired books as he believed them. For 300 years only ten of Paul's epistles were admitted. The Book of St. James and the Revelation of St. John were excluded. So were Esther and Daniel and Jonah in the Old Testament. Luther tried to have Hebrews, and James, and Jude, and the Revelations of St. John excluded, but failed. But all differences of opinion seem to have been harmonized at the council of Trent by all Christians and the Apocrypha was left in, not as an inspired part, but to be read for religious instruction. In 1826 it was excluded from the Protestant Bible, but it remains in many of the old time family Bibles and is in one of mine. I dare to peruse it sometimes, especially "The Wisdom of Jesus the Son of Sirach," which is called Ecclesiasticus, which has fifty chapters and is as full of maxims and morals and instruction for the family as are the Proverbs of Solomon.

Addison says that if this book had been left in the canon, or if it had the name of some great Greek philosopher, it would have commanded the admiration of mankind. To my mind it is the condensation of wisdom for family government. It is as pointed and pungent as anything that Solomon ever wrote. This Jesus was a better man than Solomon. He lived and wrote 300 years after Malachi, the last of the prophets. In the close of his narrative concerning Moses and the prophets, he says of Solomon: "By his body he was brought into subjection and did stain his honor and pollute his seed and brought wrath upon his children, and his kingdom was divided." I never did have a profound admiration for a man who said, "Rejoice, Oh, young man, in the wife of thy youth, and be thou always ravished with her love," and then goes off and marries 300 wives and takes 700 concubines. His precepts were good, but his example was bad, very bad. My doctrine has always been that a man has no more right to two wives than a woman has to two husbands. Let him stand by his marriage vows. This is the injunction of Jesus, the son of Sirach. As a sample of his wisdom let me quote:

"A man that breaketh his wedlock, saying, 'Who seeth me: am I not compassed about with darkness, he forgetteth that the eyes of the Lord are ten thousand times brighter than the sun.'"

"Blessed is he who hath a virtuous wife, for the number of his days shall be doubled."

"A silent and loving woman is a gift from the Lord."

"A fool will peep in at the door of the house, but he that is well nurtured will stand without."

"Do not banquet upon borrowed money."

"Commend not a man for his outward appearance, for many kings have sat down upon the ground, and one that was never thought of hath worn the crown."

"A friend cannot be known in prosperity, and an enemy cannot be hid in adversity."

"Use not much the company of a woman who is a singer lest thou be captured with her voice."

"Rejoice not over thine enemy when he is dead."

"Lend not to him who is higher than thyself, but if thou ledest count it lost."

"Sit not down with the wife of another man in thine arms, for it will bring thee to destruction."

"My son, help thy father in his old age and thou shalt have joy in thine own children."

"Have no fellowship with those who are mightier and richer than thyself, for how can the earthen kettle and the pot agree?"

"When a rich man speaketh every man holdeth his tongue and extol it to the clouds, but if a poor man speak, they say, 'What fellow is this?'"

"Build not a house with another man's money, for it is like gathering stones for the tomb of thy burial."

"A thief is better than a common liar."

Accustom not thy mouth to swearing nor to the naming of the Holy One."

"Against him that is niggard of his meat his neighbors shall murmur."

"Keep a sure watch over a shameless daughter lest she make thee a laughing-stock and a byword in the city and a reproach among thy people."

Whether this book be inspired or not, it is full of devotion to God and gratitude for his goodness. The Old Testament Hebrews canon was made up and closed before this Jesus lived or perhaps Ecclesiasticus would have been embraced in it. It is certainly entitled to as much consideration as Solomon's Song, for there is not a vulgar or lascivious expression in it. This much about the Apocrypha will answer some inquiries I have received, two of them from preachers. I have a long letter from my old friend, Bishop Turner, concerning that recent publication of William Hannibal Thomas; that bill of indictment against the negroes of his own race. He denounces Thomas. His opinion is that some learned white man wrote the book and paid Thomas for the use of his name. He says this is the opinion of those in South Carolina who know this scoundrel. He says: "I am well acquainted with him; knew him during the war in front of Richmond, where some southern hero shot off one of his arms, and it is a pity he did not shoot his head off. He is now receiving an exorbitant pension from the United States government. If there ever was money paid to a dog, it is paid to him. If the white people of the south knew half as much about his rascality and villainy as he has told me, they would seek his blood. If our preachers are so bad as he represents them, what did he stop for and join the party of the devil. He was one of the preachers of my church and will be until hell opens her arms to receive him," etc., etc.

The safe in the Express office at Reform, Ala., was blown open by burglars early Friday morning, and $4,000 in money secured. The money is understood to be state funds which was sent there the day before for the quarterly payment of the public school teachers.

Burglars at New Orleans, La., entered the home of John Favalera, an Italian, on Perdido street, Monday night. They were resisted and killed Favalera and his nineteen-year-old daughter Annie. After committing the double murder the burglars ransacked the house.

At Columbus, Ga., Monday, James Little, a negro, shot and instantly killed police officer W. S. Elliott and was himself shot and killed by Officer Wood. Little had been threatening to kill his wife and started to carry out his threat. Officers were summoned and as Elliott stepped in the door he was shot in the breast. Wood, who was following, shot the negro three times, killing him instantly.

The magnificent Jefferson Hotel, the pride of Richmond, Va., was practically wiped out by fire early Saturday morning. All that remains of the splendid structure, which was built and furnished by the late Lewis Ginter at a cost of over $1,000,000, are the two clock towers and a part of the court fronting on Franklin street. The origin of the fire is attributed to defective insulation of an electric wire in a linen closet on the fourth floor. The hotel will be rebuilt at once for the insurance of $570,000.

Financial and Commercial.

New York, April 2, 1901. The business situation as a whole continues satisfactory. Exception must still be made of the textile industry, but even in that branch of trade there are evidences of greater price steadiness in some lines and also of better buying. The latter development has been chiefly noticeable in the wool and woolen goods division of the trade. Other industries are in prosperous condition, and the orders already booked or in well assured prospect will keep most of the mills and factories actively employed for months to come. The spring season is so far advanced that new demand in some wholesale lines naturally shows a falling off, but the distributing movement is still very large; and the big gains in railroad earnings and in bank clearings attest the fact that the general business of the country is greater in volume than that of the corresponding season in any previous year. Business failures during the past week, according to R. G. Dun & Co., numbered 206 in the United States and 29 in Canada, against 203 in this country and 33 in Canada during the corresponding period last year.

Cotton prices show a net decline for the week of 1/2 of a cent per pound, but they have been an additional 1/2 of a cent lower in the interval. Receipts have continued to compare favorably with those of last season, and conditions in the manufacturing industry at home and abroad have been so unsatisfactory that the market for the raw staple has lacked substantial support. Northern mill takings are small, and for the season to the close of last week they showed a comparative decrease of 419,088 bales, while exports of cotton for the same period decreased 245,471 bales. The cotton goods trade has continued dull, and in a number of instances further concessions in prices have been made to quicken sales. The situation is very unsatisfactory for manufacturers, whose products have been in many cases made from cotton bought at much higher prices than those now ruling; and there is a continued tendency to curtail production rather than accumulate stocks on a declining market.

Chained in a Cellar to Die.

POULTRY, VT., April 2.—Workmen removing a cellar wall under a dilapidated building, just north of the bridge that crosses Fair Haven river, a quarter of a mile above Carver's Falls, have apparently unearthed evidence which solves the mystery of a murder which occurred 70 years ago. The discovery was made by accident, the laborers having fallen into a pit while trying to lift some heavy stones. The pit was about eight feet deep, with a solid stone wall about 20 inches thick surrounding it. In the centre of the pit was set a solid iron post attached to which was a heavy iron chain and an old fashioned pair of handcuffs. Near by was a heap of human bones.

Inquiry disclosed the fact that in 1831 Perry Borden, a young Frenchman, brought his young wife to Poultry to live in the house which the workmen are tearing down. She was witty and vivacious and attracted considerable attention. In a short time Borden became jealous of her and forbade her visiting a certain tavern nearby. The wife would not submit to be dictated to. One night in November, 1831, she was at the place when at about 10 o'clock Borden called for her. She left the place with him. She was never seen by her friends after that. Mr. Borden said his wife had deserted him and fled to Canada. After a year Borden went away and was not heard of again until 1882, when he suddenly re-appeared in town. He said he had been at sea for the 50 years he had been away. His mind seemed shattered. He went to the little house and remained two years, neighbors supplying him with provisions. He finally became sick and the town took charge of him. He died in 1887 and was buried in the Potter's field.

The discoveries made by the workmen have led every one in this vicinity to believe that Borden chained his wife in the underground cellar and left her to die a horrible death.

Dog Exposed the Murder.

GUADAJAJARA, Mexico, April 1.—The mutilated body of Francisco Gonzales Michel, one of the wealthiest citizens of the State of Jalisco, who disappeared several days ago, has been found buried under the flagging of the court of the residence occupied by his former mistress in the town of Tlapa.

The discovery of the body was due to a St. Bernard dog, which was presented to Michel some time ago by former Governor Galvano of this State. This dog led a detachment of rurales to the spot where the body was buried, and the animal would not leave the place until the excavation had been made and the body recovered. The woman and her brother have been arrested and charged with the crime.

The bosom is to be of pleated white linen. Down the front will be a row of six brass buttons and around the neck is to be a rolling collar. The star is to be placed on the left breast. The policemen are delighted with the garments.
