

Z. W. WHITEHEAD, ED. AND PROP.
I. H. MYROVER, ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

The DAILY EVENING PATRIOT will be published every day except Sunday, and will be served to our city subscribers at the following rates:
1 week, 12 1/2 cts.
1 month, 50
3 months, $1 25
6 months, $2 50
1 year, $5 00

Remittances must be made by check, draft, postal money order, express, or in registered letter. Only such remittances will be at the risk of the publisher.

THE PATRIOT is devoted to the great and diversified business interests of progressive Greensboro; the Agricultural, Industrial and Horticultural interests of Guilford county, the Fifth Congressional District and the "Old North State" forever.

No attention given to anonymous correspondence, and rejected communications not returned by mail unless postage is sent for that purpose.

Communications on local topics earnestly solicited from every postoffice in the Fifth District.

The editor is in no wise responsible for views expressed by correspondents.

Notices of marriages and deaths inserted free of charge.

Politically, THE PATRIOT is Democratic to the core, but is not blind to the faults and shortcomings of any man, and will expose such when it comes to the surface. It furthermore believes that "to the victor belongs the spoils."

Advertisements discontinued before the time contracted for has expired, charged transient rates for the time actually published. Advertising rates furnished on application at this office.

N. B.—All announcements and recommendations of candidates for office, will be charged for as advertisements.

WHAT A CONTRAST!

President Cleveland has just sent a message to the United States Senate which is a scathing rebuke and unanswerable argument to the partisan action of that body in the rejection of the fisheries treaty, and of which the leading Northern journals—such as the New York Herald and Times, the Boston Globe, the Philadelphia Record, etc.—speak in terms of unstinted praise, eulogizing its patriotism, statesmanship and ability. Up holding in this finished state paper the honor and dignity of the great republic of which he is the chief magistrate, this is but one of the many acts of Mr. Cleveland's administration which have enabled his people to form a correct judgment of his admirable character—a rare combination of the qualities which fit men for high and responsible position: unflinching firmness, exalted love of country and a clear and unprejudiced sense of right and justice.

Among the people of the great West the Democratic candidate for the Vice Presidency is addressing immense audiences of his fellow-citizens, and more remarkable speeches have never been reported through the columns of the press. Plain, practical, forceful; rendered impressive by the wisdom, and fortified by the extensive information, of a long life devoted to the public service, Mr. Thurman's utterances are entirely free from the wiles of the demagogue, appeals to passion or the ad captandum method of argument practiced by his opponents. Incapable of a perversion of facts, he lays before his hearers the plain, all-convincing truth, carried home to every mind by the invincible power of true eloquence and incisive reasoning. Is there any wonder that unparalleled enthusiasm meets him everywhere, and that his journey has been an ovation from beginning to end?

What a refreshing contrast to the attitude of our political foes! Can anyone adequately portray it? Can human ingenuity diagnose its present condition? Of the Republican majority in the Senate, the New York Herald pithily says that they have for months been engaged in digging a pit for the Democratic administration, only to find themselves hurled therein by his recent message, covered up and decently buried before they had time to draw breath.

Except the partisan Radical press, whose bitterness and appeals to passion are no longer heeded by the great masses of either party, Mr. Blaine seems now to be the only active, militant leader of the party, and his time is occupied in advocating the very worst measures of Republicanism, and in defending the obnoxious and crying abuses of corrupt and overgrown monopoly.

A WITTY PHYSICIAN.—There is a great and celebrated physician who invariably prescribes for his patients one dish and one glass of wine. The other evening he chanced to find himself dining with a patient on one hand and a staunch teetotaler on the other. The patient, who through many weary weeks had followed the dreary curriculum of a dish and a glass, watched his physician to see in what manner he dined, and was highly incensed to find that the doctor ate and drank heartily of everything that came before him. At last he burst forth:

"Well, sir, you certainly do not practice what you preach. Why, you have eaten of everything on the menu."

"Yes, yes," said the doctor testily, "but what is a man to do who runs about all day and comes home at night with twenty or forty letters to answer? He must have a bottle of champagne."

Here the teetotaler burst in angrily, saying:

"But, doctor, do you mean to tell me that a man is better able to answer twenty or forty letters when he has had a bottle of champagne?"

"No," said the doctor, "but when he has had a bottle of champagne he does not care a d—n whether they are answered or not."—St. Louis Republic.

SQUELCHED.—"When I was young and callow," said Mr. Brent Good this morning, "I fell in love with a winsome little lass of 17. She seemed to me to be the perfection of grace and beauty, and I, in the flush of love, deliberately set to work to win her affections. My suit progressed favorably, and I was in the habit of 'settling' in with her in the parlor of her mother's house. One Wednesday night about 11 o'clock I was sitting on the sofa very close to my darling when her mother came to the head of the stairs and shouted: 'Maria!'

"Yes, mother," dutifully responded the daughter.

"Well," said the mother, in a loud nasal voice, "has Mrs. Good's boy gone home yet?"

"I went then, but never went back."—New York Evening Sun.

THE MASTER'S WAKENING TOUCH.

In the still air all music lies unheard, In the rough marble beauty hides unseen; To wake, the music and the beauty need The master's touch, the sculptor's chisel keen.

Great Master, touch us with thy skillful hand; Let not the music that is in us die; Great Sculptor, hew and polish us, nor let Hidden and lost, thy form within us lie.

Spare not the stroke, do to us as thou wilt, Let there be naught unfinished, broken, marred; Complete thy purpose that we may become Thy perfect image, O our God and Lord!

A STORY OF TOM CORWIN.—Recommendations do not count much in obtaining office in these days. The president and his cabinet know how easy it is to get signatures to any kind of a petition. One can get a thousand signatures in any county for the release of a murderer, and public men give letters freely to get rid of office seekers. Almost any man who has not been to the penitentiary can get an endorsement from his congressman or senator, and the majority of public men are like Tom Corwin. Corwin was too good natured to refuse anything of any man who asked it, and he indorsed the applications of all who came to him. At last he was appointed secretary of the treasury, and these indorsements began to come in. One day a man whom he did not remember called upon him in the treasury department and asked for a position. Corwin asked the man if he had any indorsements. He said that he had the best in the world, and Corwin reached out his hand for them. He opened the first paper he touched, and it was a letter to William M. Meredith, who had been secretary of the treasury before Corwin, and it strongly indorsed the bearer for a position. It was signed by Corwin's unmistakable autograph, and as he read it his dark face twitched. At last he looked up. "And did not this letter get you a position?" said he.

"No," replied the man; "It did not."

"Well," rejoined Corwin, "if this indorsement was not good enough to get you a position under Mr. Meredith it certainly will not get you one under me. Good day."—Washington Letter.

POOR SHELLS.—A good story of Prince Paskievitch, father of Prince Volkonsky, and grandfather of the charming Princess Kourakine: During the siege of Warsaw he had ordered a certain Polish battery to be silenced by his own artillery, and became perfectly will with rage on observing that the artillery fire produced no appreciable effect. Galloping to the battery, he asked: "What idiot is in charge here?" "I, sir," answered an officer. "Then down you go to the ranks this very day," said Paskievitch; "you don't begin to know your trade; your shells do not explode." "I know they don't," answered the captain; "for the best of all reasons, that they can't explode." "That's a lie," said the prince. "It is! See for yourself then," replied the officer, coolly picking up a shell from the pile and lighting the fuse, and holding it up between him and the marshal. The marshal tranquilly crossed his arms and watched till the fuse sputtered and went out. "There, sir," said the artilleryman, triumphantly, as he threw the shell on ground. "You were right after all," growled the marshal, and rode away to another point of the line, but at night the captain received at his tent the cross of St. Vladimir for bravery in the field.

NEVER SURRENDERED.—The flag of the Pelee Light Artillery was never surrendered, but when the war ended in defeat was hidden under the color bearer's coat, and by him carried back to the lady who, four years before, had given it into his keep, and by her has been religiously kept ever since, and only brought out upon occasions of the battery's reunion.

ALUMINUM.—Aluminum, the silvery metal that used to cost $240 a pound thirty-five years ago, is now produced at the Krupp gun works at Essen, Germany, for twenty-five cents a pound. Common clay everywhere contains from two to ten pounds of it in every 100 pounds, and it is likely, within the next decade or two, to become more common than iron.

MANUFACTURING. Missouri contains over 20,000 manufacturing establishments, which furnish employment for about 150,000 persons. The material annually used and worked up amounts to $300,000,000, and the product put upon the market amounts to $500,000,000, while the wages paid are nearly $100,000,000.

Mt. VERNON SPRINGS HOTEL. Summer and Winter Resort. Dr. J. C. KIRKMAN, Resident Physician. J. M. FOUST, Owner and Proprietor. Mt. Vernon Springs is situated in Chatham County, N. C., one mile West of the Hill Depot, C. P. & N. V. R. R., within two hours ride of Greensboro or Fayetteville, and is a charming place to those who seek a place of rest and recreation. Here one finds Mineral Water of fine quality in a spring five feet deep. The water is composed of Sulphates, Carbonates, Alumina, Lime, Magnesia and So. It is all so nicely blended as to make it possible to tell which predominates. It is pleasant to the taste, cool, and light as air, and cures in Dyspepsia have been effected by the use of the water, and Catarrhs of the bladder which baffled medical skill have yielded to it. The water is not surpassed by any mineral water in the South, and the location is free from all Malarial influence.
