RALEIGH N. C. Dec. 4. The anniversary services of Bishop Ly man's consecration will be quite elaborate. They will take place in the evening. Bishop Watson is expected to preach a sermon in the morning. A number of ciergymen will be here. It is rather curious but true that next Sunday there will be only Episco pal clergymen to officiate in this city. All the Methodist and Baptist preachers will be the Methodist and Baptist preachers will be absent and the Presbyterian pastor is sick. At Edenton street M. E. church Professor Massey, of the Agricultural and Mechanical college, will preach a lay sermon. The Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley rail road has again broken the Sanford connec tion with the Seaboard Air-Line. The fact was not known here until nearly noon yesterday. Much travel to Wilmington went that way. The cause for the change is not known here.

SNOW AND SHEET.

When your correspondent heard last Thursday that the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley railway was sold a well informed an was at once asked about the matter le pronunced the statement untrue and said the cause of the rumor was the sale in Europe of the road's second mortgage bonds. It now appears that this usually well in-formed m in was not posted for once. There s something in the wind regarding this road. Director R. T. Gray was interviewed to-day. He declined to speak, but it was plain to see that something is either done or about to be done. He said some news would probably be gived out in a few days. It is quite freely said along the line of the road that a sale has been made and that the new owners take charge February 1st.

Senator Sherman said that, while he was n favor of the resolution, he thought it should not be acted on in the absence of the chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations. Senator Morgan, and it was allowed to lie over for the present.

The remainder of the day's session was consumed by a speech from Senator Dolph adverse to the administration's policy on the subject of the Hawaiian Islands. He intimated that that policy was the result of a desire on the part of the present administration to discredit the action and policy of its predccessors, and expressed the desire that President Cleveland had been a little more explicit as to how he proposed to undo the alleged wrong and to restore the former status. He assumed, however, that somestatus. He assumed, however, that some-thing more than moral suasion was to be used and he declared that no greater crime against civilization could be committed than the restoration of a dissipated, corrupt Queen. Even foreign Governments, he said, would be justified in interfering to any other work and to nterfering to prevent such an act, and to reserve the existing Government of the slands. He indorsed the declaration of John A. Kasson, made in a newspaper in-terview, that the use of force to overthrow the present Government of the islands would be worse than piracy and would re-semble assassination. He said that this was not the first time that Mr. Cleveland's foreign policy against the extension of American influence had been shown. In his first administration he had withdrawn from the Senate the Nicaragua treaty which would have secured to the United States the control of the Nicaraguan canal. If Mr. Cleveland had been friendly to that project
