Yesterday's Cotton Market. [Secial to the Messenger.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 2 .- The interior receipts of cotton at the South showed falling off compared with last week, and many advices here indicated that it was a natural one, due to exhaustion of stocks. This was at once reflected in the market to-day, which scored a sharp adyance. It opened 2 to 4 points higher and, after a slight reaction, prices were marked up 10 to 15 points with quick demand from the shorts and considerable investment buying. The advance was too quick, however, and the market eased off again 6 to 8 points under selling to take profits. But the market again turned steadier and, with a firm undertone, closed steady at 15 to 17 points net advance.

States

part in the revolution.

Liverpool responded to the reports of light movement and the market there closed at an advance.

Private cables say Manchester will probably be an active buyer of spot cotton in Liverpool on any signs of tightening movement here, and there is more disposition to take stock in the short crop figures. Talk on the Cotton Exhange is altogether more cheerful than has been, and while speculative buying is not large, more interest is shown by investors

Hubbard, Price & Co., publish a large number of answers by Southern correspondents of prominent exporters here who mostly agree that stocks are light and the movement will probably fall off.

Large movements at Wilmington and West Point to-day made port recipts exceed estimates, being 25,000 instead 20,000.
