MITCHELL COMES TO TIME.

He Signs the Amended Agreement-Corbett Angry at the Change as to Gloves-Rumors as to Plans of the Managers.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan 3.—Charles Mitchell signed the amended articles of agreement to day under pressure from the officials of the Duval Athletic club, and thus relieves himself of the charge of being a "rank quitter." The amended take place in Duval or St. John's county, Mitchell's training quarters are located. Mitchell also insisted on a change in the clause regarding the furnishing of the cles provided for five-ounce gloves, to be ander's comments before the committee | furnished by Corbett. The Englishman insisted that the clause should be changed so as to read that the gloves should be furnished by "Corbett or Mitchell." Mr. Bowden yielded this point, and the articles were changed accordingly.

Manager Bowden, of the club, had a long conference with Mitchell at his training quarters. "Bat" Masterson, the well-known Colorado sport, was day was held for the purpose of taking present. Mitchell said that his objectup the nominations which have been retion to signing the amended articles was ported from committees and to which no not because he wanted to "crawfish but due to the fact that he was there was not a quorum present, a single foreigner and did not want to violate the law of the State. When Manager Bowden of the club got back to Jacksonville from Mitcheli's training quarters, he found Corbett in When the champion was shown the amended articles signed by Mitchell he "cut up rough" about the change in the clause relating to gloves. Corbett claims that as champion, he has the undoubted right to furnish the gloves and says that Bowden been led into a trap by Mitchell by which the latter hopes to get out of fighting at the last moment by raising a dispute about the gloves. Corbett was in a great passion and swore that he would not sign the amended articles unless it was stipulated that in case of dispute each principal might furnish his than five ounces. To pacify Corbett this additional amendment was made and Mitchell, when informed of the change by wire, answered that it was satisfactory. Corbett seems to fear some trick by which Mitchell may evade meeting him at the last moment. The ordinance passed by the city council last night opens up another re-course for the club, so its members claim. The effect of the ordinance is to license glove contests. The club proposes to get a license and demand police protection from the city in the carrying ont of what it claims is a lawful pro gramme. If the county authorities interfere and stop the contest the city will be sued for heavy damages for not preventing any interference with what it licenses as lawful.

Regarding the change in the articles leaving the place for the contest to be selected, the Southern Associated Press correspondent asked Manager Bowden if the desire of the club to have the privilege of naming any place meant that the club might find it necessary to name a
