WASHINGTON, March 2.-The Treasury Department is informed that $1,250,000 of gold was engaged in New York to-day for export to-morrow. The gold is furnished by the banks in New York. The rate of exchange now is sufficiently high to permit gold to be exported at a profit, and further exportation of gold, if the present rate keeps up, is expected.

The Senate Finance committee put in another day on the task of framing a Tariff bill that will conciliate all factions in Rio number 111 drily. Senator Hill was before the Finance committee almost the whole morning and remained during much of the afterneon. He made a speech in favor of incidental protection for many of the inlustries in New York and also reiterated his previous remarks in the caucus concerning the income tax. He declined to talk about the conference, but intimated that he believed the committee would see the necessity of reporting a bill that was satisfactory and that would yield sufficient revenue to meet the necessities of the Government.

The commissioner also gave the committee some information concerning the amounts that would be received by a tax on sugar on some of the tentative propositions that have been made. The whiskey tax appears to have been lost sight of entirely, so little is it discussed.

Senat r Voorhees said this afternoon that he hoped the bill would be ready to lay before the full committee Monday and, at all events, would be completed as speedily as possible. > The Pension Bill Before the House-Made a Subject of Personal Attacks-The Fortifications Bill Passed - Ex-Speaker Grow Sworn in as a Member of the House of Representatives.

WASHINGTON, March 2.- The calm after the storm was particularly noticeable in the appearance of the House this morning. The galleries were comparatively deserted, and the floors were almost positively bare of members. A general air of listlessness marked the demeanor of the two or three score Republicans in their seats. They did not even seem to be interested in their mail or the morning papers, in which they made a pretense of engaging themselves. At the request of Mr. Dockery, the report of the auditor of the World's Fair, showing receipts and expenditures, was ordered to be printed in the record,

An interesting incident marked the proceedings at this point. Taking a place in the centre ai-les, Mr. Holman, the "father of the House" addressed the chair. He said that thirty-one years ago the Hon. Galusha A. Grow had left the place now filled with so much honor by the Speaker, at a period when the country was in the throes of civil war. Now, after this long period, Mr. Grow returned to the House, having been elected last week a Representative-at-Large from the State of Pennsylvania. A Gigantic Steal.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 2.—The details of the gigantic bank robbery of Minneapolis have come out in sensational quence through three days' pumping of Phil Schieg, teller of the bank up to September 2, 1892. In a few years Schieg stole over $123,000. Over $50,000 of this he embezzled prior to January 1, 1892. The bank officials found him out in his first theft and discharged him, but in a few days re-employed him at an increase of $25 a month. He resumed his stealings almost the moment he resumed his place at the teller's window and in twenty months stole $73,000 more. This drove Cashier Bofferding, who was Schieg's constant friend, to suicide. Scheig is already serving a sentence of seven years in Stillwater for his gigantic theft, and the testimony he is giving i in the case of Frank and Lou Floyd, his pals. Asked if he robbed one depositor o pay another, he said: "No, I never robbed a depositor. I robbed the bank. I took in round numbers, as I know from the books now, about $124,000. I never made out any certificates to the name of any one who had paid in no money. The first money I took was October 14th, 1886 From that time to July, 1889, I did not take a cent. I closed up the day's business and took $15,000 with me, of which about $4,000 was in gold." Schieg drew a salary of $4,900 a year. The business public is asking how it was possible that some of the bank officers did not discover the shortage of a for-tune and how the bank could pay a dividend. It is also asked how the bank made its report to the bank examiner after Schieg left, showing a shortage in cash of only $18,000.
