E. Chrisman had already been taken away. tian, of New York, having asked an intimate and well-informed friend of the defendent what the probable effect of the trial would be on Col. Breckinridge's political future, was answered as follows: "He is quite confident of re-election. He has about 35,000 voters in his district, of which he received about 20,000 the last election, a majority of some 6,000. His election three times has taken place during Presithe State, which I understand I am author-ized to do, The emergency is great. If I have not this authority I call upon you to order said troops to Cripple Creek immedi-ately, for there is at said camp a body of men acting together, doing violence to per-sons and property, by force and violence, breaking and resisting the laws of this State, and I must have the troops to ald in the sup-pression of riot and insurrection dential years and twice in off years. In the off years he has had no opponents, the vote having been only some 6,000 or 7,000 all told. This being an off year, there will be no opposition exact in his own party, and that only as to his renomination. Two gentlemen who are striving for the nomination pression of riot and insurrection are E. E. Settle and Wm. C. Owens. Mr. Settle is from the celebrated county of Owen, representing 4,000 votes; Mr. Owens from the county of Scott, representing some 1,800 votes. Thus far, there has been only one primary in which adherence to him could be tested. This was held on the 6th day of March, at Frankfort, when three distinctly and personally Breckinridge men were nominated. Congressional nominations take place in August, and it is the custom in this district to give the sitting member a chance for canvassing after the close of the session of Congress, he will go back to Kentucky and speak in every precinct. sisted on firmly believe that he will be returned by onstituents.

"How long do you suppose this trial will last?" "The witnesses for the plaintiff should be through by Monflay night. The colonel's evidence will be all in by the following Wednesday night. Then there will be two speeches on each side and it is not improb-able that the case will go to the jury at the end of next week. It is likely the speeches end of next week. It is likely the speeches on the colonel's side will be made by his comrade, Col. Thompson, and his warm personal friend, Maj. Ben Butterworth." "Will the colonel speak?"

THE STILL ALARM. A Great Realistic Drama at the Opera House To-morrow Evening.

The opera house management makes the following announcement: In Joseph Arthur's "Still Alarm," his hero is drawn from real life and is a repre-sentative of those brave men who fight our tremendous fires with unfaltering courage and who so often go to their death fearlessly, heroicly trying to save some other human being from the very fate to which they themselves fall victims. There are no braver men than the firemen of America's big cities, no class who fight longer, harder and more valorously, or who save more lives, hone who take greater chances and none who receive less reward. Mr. Arthur's theme is, therefore, a popular one and the great prosperity the play has enjoyed is not so surprising. With the company are the two intelligent Arabian horses, Pegasus and ollowing announcement:

Nitze, and contains the results of he examinations of the more important iron ore deposits known to occur in the State. The total area examined amounts to 6,000 square miles, being distributed through twenty-three counties in the central and western portions of the State. The ore deposits receiving most attention are the following: The magnetic and specu-lar ores of Granville county; the brown hematites of Ore Hill, in Chatham county; the magnetic ores of Stokes, Surry and Yadkin counties; the magnetite and brown hematite ores of Catawba, Lincoln and Gas-

"He did not. Why should Col. Breckin-ridge ask Mrs. Blackburn to protect a young woman with whom she had been already on terms of intimacy for two years and who had participated in her receptions? The fact that she came under Mrs. Blackburn's protection was one that antedates the conversation you refer to. You will re-member, moreover, that Mrs. Blackburn threatened to withdraw her protection unless the colonel agreed to this or that condition. Mrs. Blackburn's mind? Mrs. Fillette had been telling Mrs. Blackburn stories about the plaintiff which had no doubt weakened her to complete the operation, which was done without the young man experiencing the painless operations in dental surgery. The ubject on whom the operation was performed is Arthur Chapman, a young man 7 years old. Chapman had previously had two teeth filled, but the pain was such that further operation was discontinued, as his nervous system was entirely unstrung. In conversation with Sam Everett, Macon's well-known hypnotist, he mentioned the weil-known hypnotist, he mentioned the painful operation and Everett told him by means of hypnotism could be rendered painless. The young man consented, and while under the influence, had the doctor
