Ashville Goes to Work to Secure the Encampment This Summer-The Troops Of Other States Also Invited.

The Asheville Citizen of Wednesday says the movement to secure the encampment of the North Carolina State guard there this summer starts off well. At a large meeting of citizens on Wednesday Mayor Patton presided and addresse the meeting. The Citizen says:

Chas. T. Rawls stated the object of the meeting to be the taking of initiatory steps to bring the troops of North Carolina and adjacent States to Ashewille in an inter state encampment. Duff Merrick, Esq., inquired if the deed-ing of the land at Wrightsville for the use of troops would interfere with the holding of an encampment elsewhere, and Capt. White G. Smith of the Asheville Light Infantry replied that the Wrightsville grounds had been aban-doned. W. T. Herritage added the statement that the Quartermaster General had informed him there would be no trouble in getting the encampment

Capt. Natt Atkinson introduced a resolution that the city of Asheville invite Mitchell argued that the injunction of the troops of the State, or such portion of them as may wish to come, to hold of the treaty, and there was no good their summer encampment here, and that military companies from adjacent Senate should not be conducted so that States be also requested to come at that everybody could know what was done

But to make the statistical position stronger, we have exported 1,057,000 more than last year, or say 270,000 more than the excess of this crop over the last. Our exports to Great Britain have been 2,547,000 bales, against 1,889,000 last year, and yet the stock of Amarican at Liverpool and afloat for that market yesterday was only 132,000 larger than last year, while, as we see above, the exports to Liverpool have been 658,-000 more than last year. Then again, we find that while the world's supply of American is only 42,000 more than last year at the same time, we have exported 1,057,000 more. This would not have rendered the position so critical, but the successive divisions taken in the House that night show that the Liberal whips cannot, with any degree of certainty, rely upon their men responding promptly, if at all, to their imons. From the twenty-four mentioned, the Government majority dropped to eighteen through absenteeism then to fifteen, and was finally wiped out in the division on the East London Water bill.

The Liberals made a great outcry of dissension on the part of the McCarthyites, but this was disproved by an analyfrom taking part in the division. The ratio of the vote of McCarthyites exceeded that of the Liberals.

This change in the programme will be made on motion of John Morley. A very large majority of the Liberal members are eager for immediate action against the House of Lords and earnestly desire to obtain a decisive expression of opinion on the subject on the part of the House, such as will force the hand of the Government, but the Ministers are not so eager. Just now they are anxious for delay and will make an effort to secure it.

sight. DR. M. SCHWAB's Glasses correct all
