

TELEGRAPHIC SUMMARY.

The Japanese have defeated the Chinese in two engagements—Two hundred persons were drowned by the wrecking of the Chinese troopship Chean—The Chinese soldiers who murdered the Presbyterian missionary, Rev. James Wylie, while on the march to Corea, have been executed and the chapels destroyed are to be rebuilt at the expense of the people living in the locality—Secretary Carlisle calls for the resignation of two treasury officials and dismisses thirty clerks, out of 160 to be dismissed by October 1st—The Peary expedition arrives from Falcon harbor at St. Johns, Peary, with others, remained at the latter place. In March the party experienced a storm for four days, the temperature going down to 60 degrees below zero and the wind blowing forty-eight miles an hour for thirty-four consecutive hours. Mr. and Mrs. Peary made a long sledge ride, having their baby, who was not a year old, with them—In the Republican county convention at Raleigh yesterday the tie was passed between Loge Harris and John Nichols. Harris struck Nichols with a cane and Nichols attempted to cut Harris, who was chairman. Later on, a white delegate cursed a reverend delegate of color. The convention endorsed the Populist candidates and refused to pledge support to the Republican nominee for Congress—The Wake Democratic convention nominates a Legislative ticket and instructs the nominees to vote for Capt. S. A. Ashe for the short Senatorial term. It ordered a Senatorial primary and instructed the nominees to observe its instructions—A girl in India tries to commit suicide because one brother, a slave trader, threatened to sell her to another brother, of the same calling—Out of 71,000 men in the British army in India 33,000 are incapacitated from one cause alone—The Indian Government is coining a new trade dollar.—The Fall River weavers and spinners decide not to go to work at reduced wages. The mill owners say they have no idea of attempting to start up—Two Texas editors have an impromptu street duel, ending in the death of both and the fatal wounding of a bystander.—Secretary Carlisle reiterates his determination to pay no more sugar bounties—Secretary Herbert returns from his trip of the navy yards along the North Atlantic coast. He was much pleased at what he saw, especially at Norfolk—Col. Breckinridge's friends concede his defeat. Owens claims a majority of about 470—Desha Breckinridge and an Owens man had a lively fight yesterday—Around the colonel's headquarters last night everything was silent, while a square above, at the Owens headquarters, there was wild excitement. The colonel takes his defeat greatly to heart—There is no sickness among the officers, and men on the Columbia and the Marblehead, now at Bluefields—A dangerous new counterfeit $20 silver certificate has been discovered—Twenty five of the anti-Tillman county primaries in South Carolina are heard from. The convention will contain a large minority opposed to making nominations—Several fights occurred in the Breckinridge district yesterday but no serious difficulties occurred. In Lexington a prayer meeting was held. The latest despatches state that both sides are claiming the victory, with the latest returns showing that Owens is nominated. There were wild rumors of the returns from two counties being declared by Owens men.

WAKE DEMOCRATS

Order a Senatorial Primary—Legislative Nominees—Capt. S. A. Ashe Endorsed for the Senate. [Special to the Messenger.] RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 15.—The Democratic county convention here to-day adopted resolutions ordering a primary for United States Senators, on the first Tuesday in December, the registrars and Democratic poll-holders at the November election to serve. The convention instructed its legislative nominees to vote for the candidates for Senator who received the majority of votes cast at the said primaries. The convention renominated the county officers, and Ed. Chambers Smith for the S-nate, and Alex. Stronach, John P. Brek and H. E. Norris for the House. It unanimously adopted a resolution commending Capt. Samuel A. Ashe for the United States Senate, to succeed Senator Vance.

Two Editors Kill Each Other. WACO, Tex., Sept. 15.—At Gateville, forty-three miles west of here, to-day a fatal street duel took place between J. T. Goodman, editor of the People's Voice, and B. G. Armstrong, editor of the Star, both weekly papers. The duel grew out of a personal controversy in the papers over the Ed. Cash lynching a few months ago. The two men opened fire on each other just as they met in front of Goodman's office. The latter was shot through the heart and Armstrong through the bowels, both dying at once. J. G. Beeman, a bystander, was fatally wounded in the neck by a stray shot. All leave families and were well known in this section of the State.

KENTUCKY ELECTIONS.

THE RETURNS INDICATE COL. BRECKINRIDGE'S DEFEAT.

Owens Confident of Election—Col. Breckinridge Crushed and Disappointed—Many Fights but no Serious Ones—Desha Breckinridge's Encounter—A Prayer Meeting Held.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 15.—All cities in this district are heard from. Col. Breckinridge carries Lexington by about 200. Frankfort, complete, gives Owens 658, Breckinridge 276, Settle 70. Georgetown, Owens home, gives him 452, Breckinridge 28. Owenton, Mr. Settles home, goes for Col. Breckinridge. Paris goes 13 for Mr. Owens.

Woodford county, with two acknowledged Owens precincts to be heard from, gives Owens 256 over Breckinridge.

To-night Col. Breckinridge was in his headquarters surrounded by the friends who have stood by him in all his trouble. He was a crushed and disappointed man. Just as the last news was coming in he turned from the table where his son, Desha, was figuring up on the returns, and said:

"It is my own county of Fayette that gives me the greatest grief. I thought it would give me at least 800 majority, and many of my friends expected as much as 1,500. Instead of that, my majority in my own county is only 205. In Woodford we also expected a majority of several hundred, but that county has gone against me, as has Franklin, another county that I thought would give me a small majority. They are holding back the returns from Scott county, for the purpose, I believe, of doctoring them if the news from the other counties does not suit the Owens people. In this way they will probably defeat me. I had expected Scott to go for Owens by about 1,200 majority, but of course they can fix the returns to suit themselves.

The colonel's headquarters seemed almost like a tomb, but the colonel himself held up well under his defeat, which he did not fully acknowledge and talking about his future plans said:

"I expect to live out my days right here in Kentucky and will continue to go in and out among these people until I am laid away in the beautiful Lexington cemetery where sleep all that is mortal of my ancestors. As I said to these people on the stump, if they do not choose to send me back to Congress I will find some other sphere to labor for."

Col. Breckinridge is in splendid health, but he presents a sad sight. To-night around his headquarters everything was as silent as the grave and one square further down the street at Owens' headquarters thousands of young men, and old ones too, were making night hideous with their yells, blowing tin horns and shouting for Owens. Gen. Gentry proposed three cheers for the women in the district, and they were given with such a will as to almost deafen people who were standing on the other side of the street. They then gave three cheers for the newspaper correspondents who kept before the world the sins of Breckinridge.

LEXINGTON, Sept. 15.—Owens won his victory to-day by a superb organization. At every precinct his voters were on hand early and forced the voting. This news spread over the district and had a wonderfully discouraging effect on the Breckinridge people. Some of to-day's happenings have been amusing, others dramatic and in one or two instances there has been a deeply touching picture in the panorama of events.

At the downtown precinct this morning, Capt. B. J. Tracey, president of the Owens club, and his son-in-law, James C. Rogers, clerk of the Circuit court, were ranged upon opposite sides in the duty of challenging votes. Both these men are prominent horsemen, known all over the United States. They have been intimate friends for years, but the bitterness of the contest has perhaps decided the peace of these families forever. Several times to-day these two men nearly came to blows, and it was only the presence of cooler heads that prevented an unfortunate affair. Capt. Tracey has determined to change every Breckinridge vote. He had blanks already prepared and upon these he had written the names of the entire list of the Congressman's supporters in the precinct. As each offered to vote the captain handed in to the election officers the printed challenge, and then a furious wrangle followed. His son-in-law, Rogers, undertook to retaliate by challenging all Owens' followers, and the voting was delayed in many instances for half an hour while the enraged men fought it out.

At 1:30 o'clock this afternoon the first personal encounter occurred. It was at Precinct D, Second ward, and the participants were Desha Breckinridge, the colonel's son, and J. Walter Peak, secretary of the Owens club. The trouble occurred over the challenge of a vote. Peak had entered the polling place by permission of the officers and was proceeding to make an affidavit, when young Breckinridge appeared and declared in a boisterous manner that no man had a right to enter the precinct room. Peak paid no attention to him until Breckinridge demanded that he come out. Then a war of words followed, and finally Breckinridge rushed through the door and attacked Peak. Each received a few blows, and Breckinridge, during the melee, attempted to draw his pistol. Officers and bystanders interfered, and a shooting was prevented. Both men were taken in charge by their friends, but to-night they are looking for each other.

In precinct B, First ward, Mike Monahan and John Hafey, attempted to bulldoze the Owens men when J. D. McNamara and his brother Ed., began fighting them. Monahan's head was badly beaten and William Calvert, another Breckinridge man, was badly injured with a rock.

Two brothers had a desperate fight at one of the polling places this afternoon. Ernest Cassidy is an active Owens man, while Leslie Cassidy is a strong supporter of Settle. They became involved in a quarrel and at one time Leslie was badly hurt. He was out with a knife in the hands of his brother and taken to the family home.

On the main street in front of the Phoenix hotel this morning an express messenger, who has always been a strong Breckinridge man, was on his way to the polls when he was met by his aged mother who, with tears in her eyes, begged him not to vote for the "brazen libertine," as she called the Congressman. The boy promised that the Congress man would be the first to vote. He lives in the Third ward and as he approached the polls the crowd fell back and some of his friends cheered faintly. The colonel bowed his most graceful acknowledgments and then put in a ballot for himself.

No general effort was made in Lexington to enforce the rule requiring the voters to take an oath to support the nominee. In some parts of the district this was insisted upon, and numerous quarrels resulted. At Paris where Gen. Ezekiel Clay had declared that if any man challenged his vote there would be bloodshed, some of the officers to the extent enforced and others ignored the injunction issued by Judge Canrell.

The streets to-day were strewn with proclamations, announcements and various public statements from each of the candidates or their managers. Samuel Shouse, of Versailles, sent up thousands of flaming doggers in which he denounced the Owens men as "infamous liars" for the spreading a report that he had advised Settle's supporters to vote for the candidates from Scott.

The prayer meeting advertised to take place at Morrison chapel this morning at 11 o'clock was attended by sixty of the best ladies in Lexington. About fifteen men were present. Elder J. W. McFarren presided over the meeting and made the first prayer. It was very temperate in tone and did not come up to the expectation of the audience. He prayed God to guide the people in what they were about to do and besought him not to lay his hand too heavily upon them. He prayed for peace and for the coming of the day when no man should receive the votes of these people unless he is worthy of their support. The congregation then sang "O God Our Help in Ages Past." Dr. W. F. D. Bartlett, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, where Col. Breckinridge usually attends when in Lexington and who has generally been counted as his friend, then offered a prayer asking God to guide the people and bless the affairs of this district. He besought the Divine Ruler that when the final results of the day's contest was over that there should be sent to represent this district in the halls of the National Legislature, a man whom God could approve and one after God's own heart. He prayed that all feeling of bitterness be dissolved, and that contentment once more should settle down on the people and their homes.

Then followed the song "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," after which Elder J. B. Jones offered a prayer in which he asked God to bestow on this people that which they needed. The audience then sang "How Sweet is the Communion of Saints," to the tune of "Sweet Home," when the Benediction was pronounced.

It is reported that big frauds are being attempted, as all communication with Owens and Henry counties has been mysteriously cut. The result is still in doubt, both Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11 o'clock show the following pluralities of the chief candidates over each other in the counties so far heard from: Breckinridge and Owens claiming the victory, while the followers of Settle, who wasted their ballots, look on in grim silence. The indications are, however, that Owens has won. The returns at 11