II Samuel xii, 23, "I shall go to him." There is a very sick child in the abode of David the king. Disease, which and nostrils of the wan and wasted, also mounts the palace stairs and bendand death. Tears are wine to the king He can neither sleep nor eat and lies prostrate on his face weeping and outery of woe.

What are courtly attendants, or vicorious armies, or conquered provinces under such circumstances? What to any parent is all splendid surrounding when his child is sick? Seven days have passed on. There in that great little hands folded, two little feet quiet, one heart still. The servants come to bear the tidings to the king, but they cannot make up their minds to tell nim, and they stand at the door whisering about the matter, and David nears them, and he looks up and says o them, "Is the child dead?" "Yes, he

David rouses himself up, washes himelf, puts on new apparel and sits down What power hushed that tempest? What strength was it that lifted up that king whom grief had dethroned? Oh, it was the thought that he would come again into the possession of that darling child. No gravedigger's spade could hide him. The wintry blasts of death could not put out the bright light. There would be a forge somewhere that with silver ammer would weld the broken In a city where the hoofs of the pale horse never strike the pavement he would clasp his lost treasure. He wipes away the tears from his eyes, and he clears the choking grief from his throat and exclaims, "I shall go to him."

THE HEAVENLY THRONG Was David right or wrong? If we part on earth, will we meet again in dies, his servant sometimes slays him-the next world? "Well," says some self that he may serve the master in ne, "that seems to be an impossibility. Heaven is so large a place we never could find our kindred there." Going into some city, without having appointed a time and place for meeting, you might wander around for weeks and for months, and perhaps for years, and mentioned, but with my dear Cato, the never see each other, and harming vaster than all earthly cities together. And how are you going to find y parted friend in that country? It is so not most sensibly feel the loss I had vast a realm. John went up on one mountain of inspiration, and he looked ported by the consoling reflection that off upon the multitude, and he said, we could not long be senarated." "Thousands of thousands." Then he came upon a greater altitude of inspithousand." And then he came higher mount of inspiration and looked is adopted, and so I say a principle off again, and he said, "A, hundred and forty, and four thousand and thousands of thousands." And he came on a still argument is irresistible. greater height of inspiration, and he looked off again and exclaimed, "A

Now, I ask, how are you going to find your friends in such a throng as that? Is not this idea we have been enteraining, after all, a falsity? Is this docrine of future recognition of friends in neaven a guess, a myth, a whim, or s it a granitic foundation upon which the soul pierced of all ages may build glorious hope? Intense question! Every heart in this audience throbs right into it. There is in every soul here the temb of at least one dead. mendous question! quiver, and the cheek flush, and the ntire nature thrill. Shall we know each other there? I get letters almost every month asking me to discuss this subject. I get a letter in a bold, scholarly hand, on gilt edged paper, asking ne to discuss the question and Isav "Ah that is a curious man, and he wants a question solved!" But I get anther letter. It is written with a trembng hand and on whatseems to be a torn leaf out of a book, and there and here s the mark of a tear, and I say, "Oh, that is a broken heart, and it wants to be comforted!"

The object of this sermon is to take this theory out of the region of surmise and speculation into the region of posiive certainty. People say: very pleasant if that doctrine were rue. I hope it may be true. Perhans believe that I can bring an accumulation of argument to hear upon this there is any heaven at all, and that the kiss of reunion at the celestial gate will door of the sepulcher.

FACTS FOR PROOF. Now, when you are going to built a ship you must get the right kind of timber. You lay the keel and make the frame work of the very best materials -the keelson, stanchions, plank shear, ounter timber, knees, transoms-all ron or solid oak. You may build a ship of lighter material, but when the cyclone comes on it will go down. Now, we may have a great many beautiful theories about the future world built out of our own fancy, and they may do very well as long as we have smooth sailing in the world, but when the storms of sorrow come upon us, and the hurricane of death, we will be swamped-we will be foundered. We want a theory built out of God's eternal word. The doctrine of future recognition is not so often positively stated n the word of God as implied, and you know, my friends, that that is, after all, the strongest mode of affirmation. Your friend travels in foreign lands. He comes home. He does not begin by arguing with you to prove that there are such places as London and Stockolm and Paris and Dresden and Berlin, but his conversation implies it. And so this Bible does not so positively state this theory as, all up and down its chapters, take it for granted. What does my text imply? "I shall go o him." What consolation would it be to David to go to his child if he would not know him? Would David have been allowed to record this anticpation for the inspection of all ages if t were a groundless anticipation? We read in the first book of the Bible: Abraham died and was gathered to his eople. Jacob died and was gathered to his people. Moses died and was gathered to his people. What people? Why, their friends, their comrades, their old companions. Of course it means that. It cannot mean anything else. So in the very beginning of the Bible four times that is taken for granted. The whole New Testament is an arbor over which this doctrine creeps like a luxuriant vine full of the purple cluster of consolation. James, John and Peter followed Christ into the mountain. A light falls from heaven on that mountain and lifts it into the glories of the celesshines like the sun. The door of heaven swings open. Two spirits come down not be able to recognize those who have again that the angels know each other, and then the Bible says that we are to be higher than the angels, and if the angels have the power of recognition. It accept this doctrine of the rest shall not we, who are to be higher than they in the next realm, have as good they in the next realm, have as good eyesight and as good capacity? What been delirious in their last moment and did Christ mean in his conversation knew not what they were about, but the war and Martha when he said of persons who died in calmness and "Thy brother shall rise again?" It was placidity, and who were not naturally as much as to say: "Don't cry. Don't superstitious. Often the glories of wear yourselves out with this trouble. heaven have struck the dying pillow. You will see him again. Thy brother and the departing man has said he say shall rise again."

tnow each other before we go to sleep, hall we not know each other after we wake up? Oh, yes. We will know ach other a great deal better then than now, "For now," says the apostle. "we see through a glass darkly, but then face to face. It shall be my puriled, enthroned and glorified body gazing on your purified, enthroned and slorified body. REASONS FOR BELIEF.

Now, I demand, if you believe the lible, that you take this theory of fuure recognition out of the realm of speculation and surmise into the region of positive certainty, and no more eep saying: "I hope it is so. I have nergy of your body, mind and soul, There are, in addition to these Bible rguments, other reasons why I accept his theory. In the first place, because the rejection of it implies the entire bliteration of our memory. Can it be possible that we shall forget forever those with whose walk, look, manner and cried out, "Mother!" Do you tell we have been so long familiar? Will death come, and with a sharp, keen blade hew away this faculty of mem-ory? Abraham said to Dives, "Son, remember." If the exiled and lost re- in the room where one of my neighbors member, will not the enthroned remem-You know very well that our joy in any circumstance is augmented by the companionship of our friends. We cannot see a picture with less than four no doubt of it." Why, we are to be eyes, or hear a song with less than four | taken up to heaven at last by minister with whom to exchange glances and that went up from Madras, or Antiod that we are to have our friends with of the blessed and when there surge un in our ear the jubilate of the saved. Heaven is not a contraction. It is an with only two eyes, but there the soul shall have a million eyes. It will be immortality gazing on immortalitysomed spirit-victor beside victor. When John Evans, the Scotch minister, was seated in his study, his wife came in and said to him, "My dear, do you think we will know each other Heaven?" He turned to her and said, "My dear, do you think we will be bigger fools in Heaven than we are here? Again, I accept this doctrine of fu-ture recognition because the world's expectancy affirms it. In all lands and ages this theory is received. No form of religion, for it is received under all forms of religion. Then, I argue, a sentiment, a feeling, an anticipation, universally implanted, must have been God implanted, and if God implanted it is rightful'v implanted. Focrates wr tes: "Who would not part with a great deal to purchase a meeting with Orpheus and Homer? If it be true that this is to be the consequence of death, I could even be able to die often." Under every sky, by universally implanted must be God implanted, and hence a right belief. The

SOUL FEATURES. Again, I adopt this theory because there are features of moral temperament and features of the soul that will distinguish us forever. How do we know each other in this world? Is it merely by the color of the eye, or the length of the hair, or the facial proportions? Oh, no. It is by the disposition as well, by natural affinity, using the word in the very best sense and not in the bad sense, and if in the dust our body should perish and lie there forever, and there should be no resurrection, still the soul has enough feature and the disposition has enough features to make us distinguishable. I can understand how in sickness a mar will become so delirious that he will be blasted with such insufferable idocy who they are? Again, I think that one reason why foot that once pressed it. And dreams we ought to accept this doctrine is because we never in this world have an had come back again, and the room opportunity to give thanks to those to seemed bright with their faces, and you whom we are spiritually indebted. The started up to greet them and in the joy of heaven, we are told, is to be inaugurated by a review of life's work. These Christian men and women who have been tolling for Christ, have they and then, hand in hand, walking up seen the full results of their work? Oh, and down in the light. No sorrow, no

He died, and died amid discouragements, and went home to God, for no one ever doubted that John Vree as certain as the dying kiss at the denburgh was a good Christian miniscame a great awakening in Somerville. and one Sabbath 200 souls stood up at the Christian altar espousing the cause of Christ, among them my own father and mother. And what was peculiar in regard to nearly all of those 200 souls pressions from the ministry of John Vredenburgh, Will that good Christian man before the throne of God never meet those souls brought to Christ through his instrumentality? Oh. of course he will know them. I remember one Sabbath afternoon, borne down with the sense of my sins and knowing not God, I took up Doddridge's "Rise and Progress." Oh, what a dark afternoon is was, and I read the chapters and I read the prayers, and I tried to make the prayers my own. Oh, I must see Philip Doddridge. A glorious old book he wrote! It is out or fashion now. There is a mother before the throne of God. You say her joy is full. It is? You say there can be no augmentation of it. Cannot there pe? Her son was a wanderer and a vagabond on the earth her old heart. She died leaving him in the wilderness of sin. She is before the that son repents of his crimes and gives his heart to God and becomes a useful Christian and dies and enters the gates of heaven. You tell me that that mother's joy cannot be augmented? Let them confront each other, the son and gels of God, "rejoice with me! The dead is alive again and the lost is found. Hlleluiah! I never expected to see this lost one come back." The Bible says nations are to be born in a day When China comes to God, will it not know Dr. Abell? When India comes will it not know Dr. John Scrudder? When the Indians come to God, will they not know David Brainerd?

SOUL MODESTY. I see a soul entering heaven at las with covered face at the idea that it has done so little for Christ and feeling borne down with unworthiness, and it says to itself. "I have no right to be here." A voice from a throne says class you invited to Christ! I was one tial. Christ's garments glowand his face of them." And another voice says "You forget that poor man to whom over the harpers, shall say, "It shall be the harvest home!" One more reason why I am disposed to accept this doctrine of future recog-

And he wades still deeper down into the waters until the flood comes to the knee, and he says, "Lord Jesus, tell me, tell me, is this death?" And Christ says, "No, no; this is not death." And he wades still farther down until the waves comes to the girdle, and the soul says, "Lord Jesus, is this death?"
"No," says Christ, "this is not." And swings open. Two spirits come down and alight on that mountain. The disciples look at them and recognize them as Moses and Elias. Now, if those disciples standing on the earth could recognize these two spirits who had been for years in heaven, do you tell me that we with our heavenly eyesight, will not be able to recognize those who have of these, you did it to me."
