were a Turkish sultan, hard and unsympathetic and listening not to the cry of his subjects. A man told me he saw in one of the eastern lands a king riding along, and two men were in alteration, and one charged the other with having eaten his rice, and the king said, "Then slay the man, and by post mortem examination find whether he has eaten the rice." And he was slain. Ah, the cruelty of a scene like that! Our God is not a sultan not a desput but a Father kind sultan, not a despot, but a Father, kind, loving, forgiving, and he makes all heaven was there again watching the advance of the train, watching the departure. At night he was there again watching the coming, watching the going, for ten years. He was sure his son would come back. God has been watching and waiting for some of you, my brothers. 10 years, 29 years, 39 years, 40 years, perhaps 50 years, waiting, waiting, watching watching, and if now the predigal should come home what a scene of gladness and festivity, and how the great father's heart would rejoice at your coming home! You will come, some of you, will you not? You will, you will. was there again watching the advance of Christ, I felt a joy something akin to that which the apostle describes when he says:

"Whether in the body I cannot tell, or out of the body I cannot tell; Ged knoweth." Oh, have not ministers a right to rejoice when a prodigal comes home? They blew the trumpet, and ought they not be glad of the gathering of the host? not be glad of the gathering of the host? They pointed to the full supply, and ought they not rejoice when thirsty souls plunge as the hart for the water brooks? They came forth, saying. "All things are now ready." Ought they not to rejoice when the prodigal sits down at the banquet? Life insurance men will all tell you that ministers of religion as a class live longer than any other. It is the statistics of all those who calculate upon human longevity that ministers of religion as a class. ty that ministers of religion as a class live longer than any other. Why it it? There is more draft upon the nervous system than in any other profession, and their toil is most exhausting. I have seen ministers kept on miserable stipends by parsimonious congregations who wond ered at the duliness of the sermon when the men of God were perplexed almost to death by questions of liveltheod and had not enough nutritious food to keep any fire in their temperament. No fuel, no fire. I have sometimes seen the inside of the life of many of the American clergymen, never accepting their hospitality because they cannot afford it, but I have seen them struggle on with selection seen them struggle on with salaries of $500 or $600 a year-the average less than that-their struggle well depicted by the western missionary, who says in a letter: "Thank you for the last remittance. Until it came we had not any meat in our house for one year, and all last winter, although it was a severe winter, our children wore their summer clothes." And these men of God I find in different parts of the land struggling against annoyance and exas-perations innumerable, some of them week after week entertaining agents who have maps or lightning rods to sell and submitting themselves to all styles of nnovance and yet without complaint and heerful of soul. How do you account for the fact that these life insurance men tell us that min-isters as a class live longer than any other? It is because of the lov of their ork, the joy of the harvest field, the to greeting prodigals home to their Fath-'s house. Oh, we are in sympathy with earty song, and we can be merry with he merriest, but those of us who have iled in the service are ready to testify that all these jovs are tame compared with the satisfaction of seeing men enter the kingdom of God. The great eras of every ministry are the outnourings of the Holy Ghost, and I thank God I have seen 16 of them. Thank God, thank God!

SHORT PRAYERS. back all earnest Christians rejoice. If you stood on Montauk point and there was a hurricane at sea, and it was blowing toward the shore, and a vessel crash-ed into the rocks, and you saw people get ashore in the lifeboats, and the very last man got on the rocks in safety, you could not control your joy. And it is a glad time when the church of God sees men who are tossed on the ocean of their sins plant their feet on the rock Christ Jesus. Oh, when prodigals come home, just hear the Christians sing! Just hear the Chris-

"That's my son," "That's the one I used to pray for," "That's the one for whom I wept so many tears," and one soul would say, "Hosanna!" and another would say,

In songs their tongues employ. Beyond the skies the tidings go, And heaven is filled with joy.

Nor angels can their joy contain, But kindle with new fire. The sinner lost is found, they sing, And strike the sounding lyre.

At the banquet of Lucullus sat Cicero the orator, at the Macedonian festival sat Philip the conqueror, at the Grecian banquet sat Socrates the philosopher, but at our Father's table sit all the returned prodigals, more than conquerors. The table is so wide its leaves reach across seas and lands, Its guests are the redeemed of earth and the glorified of heaven. The ring of God's forgiveness on every hand. The robe of a Saviour's righteousness a-droop from every shoulder. The wine that grows in the cups is from the bowls of 10,000 sacraments. Let all the redeemed of earth and all the glorified of heaven rise and with gleaming chalices drink to the return of a thousand prodigals. Sing, sing, sing! "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive blessing and riches and honor and glory and chalices drink to the return of a thousand prodigals. Sing, sing, sing! "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive blessing and riches and honor and glory and power, world without end!" That scene of jubilance comes out before me this moment as in a sort of picture gallery. All heaven in pictures.

Look, look! There is Christ! Cuyp painted him for earthly galleries, and Correggio and Tintoretto and Benjamin West and Dore painted him for earthly galleries, but all those pictures are eclipsed by this masterpiece of heaven. Christ! There is Paul, the hero of the sanhedrin, and of Agrippa's courtrooom christ! There is Paul, the hero of the sanhedrin, and of Agrippa's courtrooom and of Mars hill, and of Nero's infamy, shaking his chained fist in the very face of teeth chattering royalty. Here is Joshua, the fighter of Betharan and Gibeon, the man that postponed sundown. And here is Vashti, the profligacy of the Persian court unable to remove her veil of modesty or rend it or lift it. And along the corridors of this picture gallery I find other great heroes and heroines—David with his harp, and Miriam with the cymbals, and Zechariah with the scroll, and St. John with the seven vials, and the resurrection angel with the trumpet. On, farther in the corridors, see the faces of our loved ones. The cough gone from the throat, the wanness gone from the limbs, the languor gone from the eye. Let us go up and greet them. Let us go up and the languor gone from the eye. Let us go up and greet them. Let us go up and embrace them. Let us go up and live with them. We will, we will!

From this hilltop I catch a glimpse of those hilltops where all sorrow and sighing shall be done away. Oh, that God would make that world to us a reality! Faith in that world helped old Dr. Tyng when he stood by the casket of his dead son whose arm had been torn off in the thrashing machine, death ensuing, and Dr. Tyng, with infinite composure, preached the funeral sermon of his own beloved son. invited to be guests. The text is Luke xv. 23, "Bring hither the fatted calf and kill it."

In all ages of the world it has been customary to celebrate joyful events by festivity—the signing of treaties, the proctivity—the signing of treaties, the proclamation of peace, the inauguration of presidents, the coronation of kings, the Christmas, the coronation of kings, the Christmas, the marriage. However much on other days of the year our table may have a stinted supply, on Thanksgiving day there must be something bounteous. And all the comfortable homes of Christendom have at some time celebrated joyful events by banquet and festivity. Something has happened on the old homestead greater than anything that has ever happened before. A favorite son whom the world supposed would become a vagabond and outlaw forever has got tired of sightseeing and has returned to his father's house. The world said he never would come back. The old man always said his son would come back. The old man always said his son would come back. He had been looking for him day after day and year after year. He knew he would come back. Now, having returned to his father's house, the father proclaims celebration. There is in the resident and difference the sin. When the white horses of clifference the sin. When the white horses of Christ's victory are brought out to celebrate the eternal triumph, you may ride one of them, and, as God is greater than all, his joy is greater, and when a soul comes back there is in his heart the surging of an infinite ocean of gladness, and to express that gladness it takes all the rivers of pleasure, all the thrones of pomp and all the ages of eternity. It is a joy deeper than all depth, and higher than all height, and wider than all width, and vaster than all immensity. It oversteps, it undergirds, it outweighs all the united splendor and joy of the universe, and when a soul comes back there is in his particle. The had been looking for him day arter day and year after year. He knew he would come back. Now, having returned to his father's house, the father proclaims celebration. There is in the paddock a calf that has been kept up and fed to utmost capacity, so as to be ready for some occasion of joy that might come along. Ah, there never would be a grander day on the old homestead than this day. Let the butchers do their work and the house-keepers bring in to the table the smoking meat. The musicians will take their places, and the gay groups will move up and down the floor. All the friends and neighbors are gathered in, and an extra supply is sent out to the table of the servants. The father presides at the table and says grace and t...anks God that his long absent boy is home again. Oh, how they missed him! How glad they are to have him back!

One brother stands pouting at the back door and says:" This is a great ado about nothing. This bad boy should have been chastised instead of greeted. Veal is too good for him." But the father says. "Nothing is too good; nothing is good for him." But the father says. "Nothing is too good; nothing is good for him." But the father says. "Nothing is too good; nothing is good for him." But the father says, "Nothing is too good; nothing is good enough." There sits the young man, glad at the hearty reception, but a shadow of corrow flitting across his brow at the reat the hearty reception, but a shadow of sorrow flitting across his brow at the remembrance of the trouble he had seen.

informed that a large inheritance was his, and there was a joy amounting to bewilderment, but that is a small thing compared with the experience of one when he has put in his hands the title deed to the joys, the raptures, the splendors of heaven, and he can truly say, "Its mansions are mine; its temples are mine; its songs are mine; its God is mine!" Oh, it is no tame thing to become a Christian!
It is a merrymaking; it is the killing of the fatted calf; it is a jubilee. You know the Bible never compares it to a funeral, but always compares it to a runeral, but always compares it to something delightful. It is more apt to be compared to a banquet than anything else. It is compared in the Bible to water—bright flashing water, to the morning—roscate, fireworked, mountain transfigured morning.
I wish I could today take all the Bible I wish I could today take all the Bible and twist them into one garland and put it on the brow of the humblest child of God in the assemblage and cry, "Wear it. wear it now, wear it forever, son of God, daughter of the Lord God Almighty!" Oh, the joy of the new convert! Oh, the gladness of the Christian service! You have seen sometimes a man in a religious have seen sometimes a man in a religious assembly get up and give his experience. Well, Paul gave his experience. He arose in the presence of two churches—the church on earth and the church in heaven—and he said. "Now, this is my ex-perience, sorrowful, yet always rejoicing;

It was a circle of virtue and honor, and he foes came down, but were obliged to halt at the circle. They could not pass. But one day a temptress, with diamonded hand to the circle and or the stroke he struck down the man who had incarcerated him. Passing hand, stretched forth and crossed that along the streets of London, he wondered where his family was. tians pray! It is not a stereotyped sup-plication we have heard over and over again for 20 years, but a putting of the case in the hands of God with an imcase in the hands of God with an importunate pleading. No long prayers. Men never pray at great lengths unless they have nothing to say and their hearts are hard and cold. All the prayers in the Bible that were answered were short prayers. "God be merciful to me, a sinner." "Lord, that I may receive my sight." "Lord, save me, or I perish." The longest prayer, Solomon's prayer at the dedication of the temple, less than eight minutes, according to the ordinary rate of enunciation. And just hear them pray now that the prodigals are coming home. Just see them shake hands. No pray how that the prodigals are coming home. Just see them shake hands. No putting forth of the four tips of the fingers in a formal way, but a hearty grasp, where the muscles of the heart seem to clinch the fingers of one hand around the other hand. And then see these Christian forces how illuminated those Christian faces, how illuminated they are! And see that old man get up and with the same voice that he sang 50 years ago in the old country meeting house, say, "Now, Lord, lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, for mine eyes have seen thy salvation."

Turkish complications. This news caused additional value from the advance of over 1 per cent. in British consols in London and from the increased firmness of the continental markets. Local operators, who sold stocks freely on the closing days of last week on the war scare, covered freely at the opening and in a short time prices advanced % to 1% per cent. right through the list. It is proper to add that in a majority of instances the highest quotations of the day were attained before the expiration of the first half hour of business, following which there was a reaction on sales by small traders to realize profits. The upward movement was also checked for a time by the development of marked weakness in Manhattan and Jersey Central. The former fell from $7% to $4½ on renewed reports that the directors at their meeting tomorrow will reduce the rate of dividends from 6 to 5 or 4 per cent. per annum. Nothing definite could be learned in regard to the matter, although it was currently reported that a certain element in the board, including Russell Sage, are in favor of a reduction to 4 per cent. and wanted such reduction three months ago, but were overruled at that time. Jersey Central dropped from $4½ to $2½, partly in sympathy with a fall of 7 points in Lehigh and Wilkesbarre consols. Jersey Central dropped from $4½ to $2½, partly in sympathy with a fall of 7 points in Lehigh and Wilkesbarre consols. Jersey Central $5 also yielded about 2 points. During the afternoon the stock recovered $3%, while Delaware and Hudson advanced 1½ and Reading % per cent. The special feature, however, was Tobacco, which suddenly rose 5 per cent. on a materially increasing volume of business. The dealings in this stock as well as in most others was largely for professional account. New York Central was favorably influenced by the fact that the statement far February showed an increase as compared were strong. The sales footed up $200.
