Hardly Breathe at Night-One Nostril Mr. A. M. Ramsey, of De Leon, Texas, was a sufferer from Catarrh in its worst form. Truly, his description of his sufferings seem little short of marvelous. Instead of seeking his couch, glad for the night's coming, he went to it with terror, realizing that another long, weary, wakeful night and a struggle to breathe was before him.

(Special to The Messenger.) New York, April 10.-This week has been another remarkably quiet one in the cotton market and has not fulfilled the indications of activity that were so promising last Saturday. The most encouraging feature has been the good export demand in this market, which has acted as a pillar of strength to prices. The steady selling by Europe and the south of the fall and winter months has continued and has been a stumbling block in the way of any advance. Today the market declined chiefly as a result of this selling The Liverpool market was a little higher, and the opening here was also better on the near positions. But when the late months were reached on the call, all the houses with foreign connections seemed to have orders to sell them and as buyers were scarce, they opened from 3 to i points down. The agricultural bureau's estimate of this year's yield of 8,534,870 was announced at 11 o'clock, but failed to arouse any interest or to have any effect upon the market. Our advances from the south indicate anything but a favorable manting outlook thus far, but the season is yet in its infancy and southern operators appear to be eager to sell any of the next crop months upon the slightest advance, and if no advance be forthcoming, they are quite ready, it seems, to sel them at concessions. As an indication of crop probabilities, this tendency is not calculated to inspire confidence. The Frossing of the Turkish frontier by some tregular Grecian soldiers caused very lituneasiness. We can see nothing in the developments up to this time that warrants modification of our bullish views. The advance may and probably will be a reluctant one, but we regard it none the less likely for that reason.

RIORDAN & CO. (By Associated Press.) New York, April 10.—The cotton market closed at a net decline of 2 to 7 points, after opening at an advance of 1 to o 3 points on late months. The marke weakened immediately after the first call and closed at the lowest point. The weak-ness was partly acounted for by fears of olitical trouble in the Levant. This led to some liquidation in connection with the lecline in British consols and a belief that the disaster reports from the lower Mis sissippi valley may have been largely exaggerated than generally Trading was in good part for Liv erpool and continental accounts, with the orders for selling out quite numerous. New York Stock Market. New York, April 10.-There was quite marked undertone of firmness on the stock exchange today, but the market felt the reflected depression of the Lonof hostilities on the Greek-Turkish from London, and there were sales for foreign account of the international shares. The prices of these were brought down to the ondon level soon after the opening. The onditon of business in the stock marke s closely parallel to that which prevailed previous to the announcement of the Lake Shore refunding operations early in March, and the notable buying of railroad which followed. Transactions in bonds were largely contracted and the market displayed little feature. Values generally moved in sympathy with the share speculation and operations were mainly in the speculative issues. Comparative prices are mainly below last week's final prices, but the recessions are triffing. The aggregate sales were $5,337,000. Government bonds moved steadily the state of th ly upward on light purchases with the new 4's attaining the top level. The sale The Chicago Markets. Firemen who have to enter smoke, and miners who have to breathe afterdamp, will not need to fear these dangers when a recent Viennese invention comes to be used by them. It is called pneumatophor," and enables a man o inhale noxious fumes with impunity. Chevalier de Walcher-Uysday and Dr. Gaertner, profesosr at the University of Vienna, are the inventors. It consists of an air-tight India rubper bag, containing first, a steel bottle holding sixty liters of pure oxygen at a pressure of 100 atmospheres, and secondly, a glass bottle (protected by a metal one) containing 425 cubic centimeters of 5 per cent. solution of caustic soda. By means of a handscrew outside the bag, the oxygen can be let into the bag at intervals, as required for breathing, while the turning of another handscrew breaks the glass bottle inside and allows the caustic soda to flow out and be absorbed by the network of knitted strips of dimity in the bag. Then there are an India rub ber breathing tube, with a mouthpiece and two nose-clips (one a square

After strapping the apparatus on to his chest, the user lets some oxygen into the bag, breaks the caustic soda bottle, takes the mouth-piece between his lips and puts on a nose-clip, so as to breathe only through his mouth. He inhales pure oxygen, while the caustic soda absorbs the carbolic acid he exhales, and thus sets the oxygen free to be rebreathed. This makes it suffice for more than half an hour, if he is right foundation, it builds on the debris moving, and an hour and a half if at rest.-New York Press.

The Enchantment of the Moonlight and Nehemiah's Resolve-Love of the Church of God - Ruin and Redemption - 'the Great Good That Comes From Trouble.

From the weird and midnight experiences of one of ancient times Dr. Talmage in his sermon draws lessons startlingly appropriate. His text was Nehemiah i 15, "Then went I up in the night by the brook and viewed the wall and turned back and entered by the gate of the valley and so returned." A dead city is more suggestive than a living city-past Rome than present Rome -ruins rather than newly frescoed cathedral. But the best time to visit a ruin is by moonlight. The Coliseum is far more fascinating to the traveler after sundown than before. You may stand by daylight amid the monastic ruins of Melrose abbey and study shafted oriel and rosetted stone and mullion, but they throw their strongest witchery by moonlight. Some of you remember what the enchanter of Scotland said in the "Lay of the Last Minstrel:" Wouldst thou view fair Melrose aright, Go visit it by the pale moonlight. Washington Irving describes the Andausian moonlight upon the Alhambra ruins as amounting to an enchantment. My text presents you Jerusalem in ruins. The tower down. The gates down. The walls down. Everything down. Nehemiah on horseback by moonlight looking upon the ruins. While he rides there are som friends on foot going with him, for they to not want the many horses to disturb the suspicions of the people. These peopl do not know the secret of Nehemiah' heart, but they are going as a sort of bodyguard. I hear the clicking hoofs of the horse on which Nehemiah rides as he guides it this way and that, into this gate and out of that, winding through that gate amid the debris of once great leaving lem.

REBUILDING THE CITY. Now the horse comes to dead halt at the numbled masonry where he cannot pass. Now he shies off at the charred timbers. Now he comes along where the water un-der the moonlight flashes from the mouth of the brazen dragon after which the gate was named. Heavy hearted Nehemiah! Riding in and out, now by his old home desolated, now by the defaced temple, now amid the sears of the city that had gone own under battering ram and conflagra ion. The escorting party knows not what Nehemiah means. Is he getting crazy? Have his own personal sorrows, added to the sorrows of the nation, unbalanced his intellect? Still the midnight exploration goes on. Nehemiah on horseback rides through the fish gate, by the tower of the furnaces, by the king's pool, by the dragon well, in and out, in and out, until the midnight ride is completed, and Nehemiah dismounts from his horse, and to the amazed and confounded and incredulous bodyguard declares the dead secret of his heart when he says, "Come, now, let us build Jerusalem." "What, Nehemiah, have you any money?" "No." "Have you any kingly authority?" "No." "Have you any eloquence?" "No." Yet that mid-night, moonlight ride of Nehemiah resulted in the glorious rebuilding of the city of Jerusalem .The people knew not how the thing was to be done, but with great enthusiasm they cried out, "Let us rise up now and build the city." Some people laughed and said it could not be done. Some people were infuriated and offered physical violence, saying the thing should not be done. But the workmen went right on, standing on the wall, trowel in one hand, sword in the other, until the work was gloriously completed. At that very time in Greece Xenophon was writing a did not do so much for the world as this idnight, moonlight ride of praying,

LOVE OF THE CHURCH. My subject first impresses me with the lea, what an intense thing is church afection. Seize the bridle of that horse and life here in the night? umble over these ruins and fall on you. Stop this useless exposure of your No. Nehemiah will not stop. He at last tells us the whole story. He lets us know he was an exile in a far distant land, and he was a servant a cupbearer in the palace of Artaxerxes Longimanus, and day, while he was handing the cup of vine to the king the king said to him: What is the matter with you? You are not sick. I know you must have some great trouble. What is the matter with you? Then he told the king how that beloved Jerusalem was broken down; how that his father's tomb had been dese-crated; how that the temple had been dishonored and defaced; how that the walls were scattered and broken. "Well," says King Artaxerxes, "what do you want?" "Well," said the cupbearer Nehemiah, "I want to go home. I want to fix up the grave of my father. I want to restore the beauty of the temple. I want to rebuild the masonry of the city wall. Bebuild the masonry of the city wall. Besides I want passports so that I shall not be hindered in my journey. And besides that," as you will find in the centext,
"I want an order on the man who keeps your forest for just so much timber as I may need for the rebuilding of the city."
"How long shall you be gone?" said the king. The time of absence is arranged.
In hot haste this seeming adventurer In hot haste this seeming adventure comes to Jerusalem, and in my taxt we find him on horseback in the midnight riding around the ruins. It is through the spectacles of this scene that we discover the ardent attachment of Nehemial for sacred Jerusalem, which in all ages has been the type of the church of God, our Jerusalem, which we love just as much as Nehemiah loved his Jerusalem. The fact is that you love the church of God so much that there is no spat er earth so sacred, unless it be your own VIEWING THE RUINS. The church has been to you so much comfort and illumination that there is nothing that makes you so trate as to have it talked against. If there have been times when you have been carried into captivity by sickness, you longed for the hurch our holy Jerusalem, just as much as Nehemiah longed for his Jerusalem as Nehemiah longed for his Jerusalem, and the first day you camp out to the house of the Lord. When the temple was in ruins, like Nehemiah, you walked around and looked at it, and in the moonlight you stood listening if you could not hear the voice of the dead organ, the psalm of the expired Sabbaths. What Jerusalem was to Nehemiah, the church of God is to you. Skeetics and infidely may od is to you. Skeptics and infidels ma scoff at the church as an obsolete affair as a relic of the dark ages, as a convention of goody goody people, but all the impression they have ever made on your mind against the church of God is absolutely nothing. You would make more sacrifices for it today than any other institution, and if it were needful you would die in its defense. You can take the words of the kingly poet as he said, "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget ther cunning." You understand in your own experience the pathos, the homesickness, the courage, the holy en-thusiasm of Nehemiah in his midnight, coonlight ride around the ruins of his EXPLORATION NECESSARY. Again, my text impresses me with the fact that before reconstruction there must be an exploration of ruins. Why was not Nehemiah asleep under the covers? Why was not his horse stabled in the midnight? Let the police of the city arrest this midnight rider, out on some mischief. No. Nehemiah is going to rebuil the city, and he is making the preliminary exploration. In this gate, out that gate, east, west, north, south. All through the ruins. The ruins must be explored before the work of reconstruction can begin. The reason that so many people in this day, apparently converted, do not stay converted is because they did not first explore the ruins of their own heart. The reason that there are so many professed Christians who in this day lie and forge and steal, and commit abominations, and go to the penitentiary, is because they first do not learn the ruin of their own heart. They have not found out that "the heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked." They had an idea that they were almost right, and they built religion as a sort of extension, as an ornamental cupola. There was a su-perstructure of religion built on a substratum of unrepented sins. The

A man tells me that some one is a member of the church. It makes no impregation on my mind at all. I simply won to know whether he was converted in the low fashioned way, or waether he was converted in the low fashioned way, he will stand. If he was converted in the low fashioned way, he will not stand. That is all there is about it. A man comes to me to talk about religion. The first question I ask him is, "Do you feel yourself to be a sinner?" If he says, "Well, I—yes," the hesitancy makes me feel that that man wants a ride on Nehemiah's horse by midnight through the ruins—in by the gate of his affections, out by the gate of his will—and before he has got through with that midnight ride he will drop the reins on the horse's neck, and will take his right hand and smite on his heart and say, "God be merciful to me a sinner," and before he has stabled his horse he will take his feet out of the stirrups, and he will kneel, crying: "Have mercy on me, O God, according to thy loving kindness, according unto the multitude of thy tender mercies. Blot out my transgressions, and my sins are ever before thee." Ah, my friends, you see this is not a complimentary gosyou see this is not a complimentary gospel. That is what makes some people so mad. It comes to a man of a million dollars, and impenitent in his sins and says: "You'e a pauper." It comes to a woman of fairest cheek, who has never repented, and says, "You're a minner." It comes to a man priding himself on his independence, and says, "You're bound band and foot by the devil!." It comes to our entire race, and says, "You're a ruin, a ghastly ruin, an illimitable ruin." Satan sometimes says to me: "Why do you preach that truth? Why don't you preach a gospel with no repentence in it? Why don't you flatter men's hearts so that you make them feel all right? Why don't you preach a humanitarian gospel, with no you see this is not a complimentary gospreach a humanitarian gospel, with no repentence in it, saying nothing about the ruin, talking all the time about the Re-REDEMPTION A FORCE WITHOUT RUIN. I say, "Get thee behind me, satan."

I say, "Get thee behind me, satan." I would rather lead five souls into safety than 20,000 into perdition. The redemption of the gospel is a perfect, farce if there is no ruin. "The whole need not a physician, but they that are sick." "If any one, though he be an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel than this," says the apostle, "let him be accursed." There must be the midnight ride over the ruins before Jerusalem can be built. There must be the clicking of the hoofs before there can be the ring of the trowels. Again. My subject gives me a speci-men of busy and triumphant sadness. It there was any man in the world who had there was any man in the world who had a right to mope and give up everything as lost, it was Nehemiah. You say, "He was a cupbearer in the palace of Shushan, and it was a grand place." So it was. The hall of that palace was 200 feet square, and the roof hovered over 35 marble pillars, each pillar 60 feet high, and the intense blue of the sky, and the deep green of the forest follage, and the white of the of the forest foliage, and the deep green of the forest foliage, and the white of the driven snow, all hung trembling in the upholstery. But, my friends, you know very well that fine architecture will not put down homesickness. Yet Nehemiah put down homesickness. Yet Nehemiah did not give up. Then when you see him going among these desolated streets, and by these dismantled towers, and by the suppose that he would have been disheartened, and that he would have been disheartened, and that he would have disheartened, and that he would have dismounted from his horse and gone to his room and said: "Wee is me! My father's grave is torn up. The temple is dishonored. The walls ore broken deeps. ored. The walls are broken down. ored. The waits are broken down. I have no money with which to rebuild. I wish I had never been born. I wish I were dead." Not so says Nehemiah. Although he had a grief so intense that it excited the commentary of his king, yet that pen-niless, expatriated Nehemiah rouses him-self up to rebuild the city. He gets his permission of absence. He gets his pass-ports. He hastens away to Jerusalem. By night on horseback he rides through he ruins. He overcomes the most fer cious opposition. He arouses the and patriotism of the people, and i than two months—namely, fifty-two days, —Jerusalem was rebuilt. That's what I call busy and triumphant sadness.

THE DESIGN OF TROUBLE.

My friends, the whole temptation

with you when you have trouble to do just the opposite to the behavior of Ne-hemiah, and that is to give up. You say, "I have lost my child and can never smile again." You say, "I have lost my property, and I never can repair my fortunes." You say, "I have fallen into sin, and never can start again for a new life." satan can make you form that resoluti and make you keep it, he has ruined you. Trouble is not sent to crush you, but to arouse you, to animate you, to propel you. The blacksmith does not thrust the iron into the forge and then blow away with out on the anvil and beat with to prepare ter stroke to ruin the iron, but to prepare ter stroke to ruin the iron, but the Lord out on the anvil and beat with stroke afit for a better use. Oh, that the Lord God of Nehemiah would rouse up all broken hearted people to rebuild! Whipped betrayed, shipwrecked, imprisoned, went right on. The Italian martyr Algerius sits in his dungeon writing a letter, and he dates it, "From the delectable chard of the Leonine prison." The That is what I call triumphant sadness. I kney a mother who buried her babe on Friday and on Sabbath appeared in the house of God and said: "Give me a class. Give me a Sabbath school class. I have no child now left me, and I would like to have a class of little children. Give me a class off the back street." That, I say, is beautiful. That is triumphant sadness. At 3 pelock every Sabbath afternoon for years fn a beautiful parlor in Fhiladelphia-a parlor pictured and statuettedthere were from ten to twenty destitute children of the street. Those destitute children received religious instruction concluding with cakes and sandwiches thow do I know that that was going on for sixteen years? I know it is this way: That was the first home in Philad ciphia where I was sailed to comfort a great sorrow. They had a splendid boy, and he had been drowned at Long Branch. The father and mother almost idolined the boy and the sole and springs the sole and springs. and the sob and shrick of that father and mother as they hand over the coffin resound in my ears toway. There seemed to be no use of praying, for when I knelt down to pray the outery in the room drowned out all the prayer. But the Lord compared that sorrow. They did not for comforted that sorrow. They did not forget their trouble. If you anould go any afternoon into Laurel still, you would find a monument with the word "Walter" inscribed upon it and a wreath of fresh flowers around the name. I think there was not an hour in twenty years, winter or summer, when there was not a wreath of fresh flowers around Walter's name.

TRIUMPHANT SADNESS. But the Christian mother who sent those flowers there, having an ehild left, Sabbath afternoons methered ten or twenty of the lost ones of the streets. That is beautiful. That is what I call busy and triumphant sadness. Here is a man who has lost his present. has lost his property. He does not go to hard drinking. He does not destroy his own life. He comes and says: "Harness ne for Christian work. My money's gone I have no treasure on earth. I want treasures in heaven. I have a voice and a heart to serve God." You say that man has failed. He has not failed—he has tri-

Oh, I wish I could persude all the peo ple who have any kind of trouble never to give up! I wish they would look a the midnight rider of the text, and that the four hoofs of that beast on which Ne-hemiah rode might cut to pieces your dis-couragements and hardships and trials. Give up! Who is going to give up when on the bosom of God he can have all his troubles hushed? Give up! Never think of giving up. Are you borne down with pov-erty? A little child was found holding her dead mother's hand in the darkness of a tenement house, and some one coming in the little girl looked up, while holding her the little girl looked up, while holding her dead mother's hand, and said, "Oh, I do wish that God had made more light for poor folks!" My dear, God will be your light, God will be your shelter, God will be your home. Are you borne down with the bereavements of life? Is the house lonely now that the child is gone? Do not give up. Think of what the old sexton said when the minister asked him why he nut so much care an the little grayes in the cemetery so much more care than on the larger graves—and the old sexton said. "Sir. you know that of such is the kingdom of heaven, and I think the Sav-iour is pleased when he sees so much white clover growing around these little strayes."

DO NOT GIVE UP But when the minister pressed the old sexton for a more satisfactory answer the old sexton said, "Sir, about these larger raves, I don't know who are the Lord's saints and whe are not, but you know, sir, it is clean different with the bairns." Oh, if you have had that keen, tender, indescribable serrow that comes from the loss of a child, do not give up. The old sexton was right. It is all well with the bairns. Or, if you have sinned, if you have sinned grievously—sinned until you have you have been cast out by society—do not give up. Perhaps there may be in this house one that could truthfully utter the

When the farmer lives away from the timber belt the supply must come by rail, whether he pur chases wood or coal. Both are very expensive, and this year few farmers have ready money. In fact, large numbers of farmers can afford barely enough fuel to keep their houses in semi-comfortable state. "In the county of Lyon many people have been experimenting with corp for fuel, and they report it a much greater success than they had reason ticipate. They are so delighted with it that they will henceforth use no other

"It gives out a very strong regular heat, as does good hard wood, and it lasts nearly as long. The maximum limits, however, would be far better than any results yet obtained, as the methods of burning it are as yet very crude. There can be no doubt, however, that inventors will be equal to the emergency and in due time create a nearly perfect corn stove or special furnace which will answer the usual requirements. As soon as this is done the farmers and others who are prepared to take advantage of the benefits may cultivate their own fuel on their own land and probably save 50 per cent, by doing so. Two tons of corn would be equivalent to about one cord of hard wood if the corn were burned economically, and corn for fuel would not need, by any means, the care that t would when grown for food.
