The raising of pepperment has become a considerable industry in Southwestern Michigan, where a large acreage is devoted to its cultivation. The English or black mint has been the chief crop for several years; but better prices are offered for the American plant, and that is to be the leader this year. Greater areas also are to be planted this year than heretofore.

A farmer of Clare county, Mich., says The New York Sun, has found that he can increase the egg-laying abilities of his hens by feeding to them old newspapers torn to pieces and soaked being made safe and sound. For the in sour milk until the whole becomes' accomplishment of this it is not necesa pulp. The hens, it is said, like the new food and the inventor expects to see almost any day one of the freak papers come out with the picture of a hen that sets type.

Keep Your Own Counsel.

It is an old saying among school boys and college men that the fellow who keeps his mouth shut is the big man; that he who deliberately says little quickly wins for himself the name for wisdom. Such statements are quite as true in the outer world, to a certain degree, as they are in college. The pith of the matter is that if in any way you arrive at a position of importance, the less you talk to every one the more credit you recive for care, for thoughtfulness, for sound, well considered opinions. Here is nothing which urges a boy to have no opinions or to never express them; and, in fact, this "wise silence" at school and college as often. perhaps, covers up an empty mind as R. S. Graham, her tackle, apparel and it does the wisdom of Solomon. There is, however, a good rule to follow, which may be given briefly, to the effect that it is well to say little until you have thoroughly made up """ mind, and then not to hesitate ' statements. The temptation of te man is to express some opi e, but if that is changed later force of the final opinion is lo will have all the moreuence if you come out strong with it at the close of the discussion, when not only are the others in doubt as to what they do want, but you also have the advantage of hearing many sides of the case. In your behavior towards the others in school it is well to keep your "talk" in reserve. It is a habit easily acquired, and one that in the end works both ways. It adds both to the value of your advice, because the advice is better considered, and it gives the ad-vice an added value so far as the others Vice an added value so far as the others of your advice, because the advice is are concerned, because when you say a | at all times. ford the protection they should, they will require every company chartered under them to have sufficient assets to enable it to redeem its pledges, and they will enforce such supervision from time to time to make sure that these assets are solvent. If the minimum amount of assets required were from $50,000 to $100,000 this could hardly cut off any deserving insurance enterprise, and with such supervision from the state's insurance officer as will maintain the solvency of these assets, and with reasonably conservative underwriting, there need be no more losses sustained by the policy holders of southern insurance companies, and there will be no more distrust of our own institutions, and the business of southern insurance will be made successful by sary to create expensive separate state insurance departments, but merely to make this supervision the duty of some state officer.

That the southern people are capable of conducting the business of insurance successfuly has been fully demonstrated. There are three or four companies in the south whose success has been without precedent. They confine their underwriting to the respective state under whose laws they are organized, and they have reduced the cost of insurance to a smaller figure than has been reached in any other section of this country. With conservative management (and no southern company with conservative management will undertake to perate out of thes outh) and such supervision under state laws as will discourage irresponsible insurance enterprises, this generation should witness the bulk of insurance in the south carried by southern companies.
