Holding the Fort. For the last two weeks an unusual number of policemen have been held in reserve at the city hall both day and night, in anticipation of a movement by Mayor W. N. Harriss and his board of aldermen to wade in and take charge of the city government, in accordance with the decision of Judge court for this county, held last month. Mayor S. P. Wright and his board seem determined not to be caught napping, and some night they are so sure Mayor Harriss and his colleagues will swoop down and sit in the high places that extra vigilence is maintained and great precaution is exercised to prevent this coup on the part of the oppo-

Last night things had an ominous look around the city hall. The blinds were pulled down and the officers moved around as if they expected portentous things to happen. "A momentary attack" was what it seemed that they expected. A Messenger representative started in the city hall door but an officr headed him off with a club, held out as a bar to his entrance and he was asked if he wanted to see the chief of police.

"Well, yes," said the scribe, and the officer called for the chief. Chief Melton was on the portico and hastened up, and The Messenger mar

"What's up, chief?"

"Well, nothing much," he replied, "we are just holding the fort."

"Are you looking for Mayor Harriss and his board to step in?" the reporter asked. "We don't know what might happen," said the chief "so we are on our guard!"

THE MESSENGER.

Its Enterprise Commended and Endorsed by Scores of Its Friends, and Its Praises The Messenger has received so many cordial words of thanks and letters from delegates and others in attendance on the Southern Baptist convention, that it was contenting itself that it had done its duty to the convention, to Wilmington, to itself, and we might say the state, but when during the day more than twenty letters were received by mail and at The Messenger office from business men of Wilmington, we began to realize that our efforts in part were appreciated at home, and that others, besides ourselves, felt proud of The Messenger.

We can find room to print but a portion of these letters this morning, as it is not the policy of this paper to sound its praises to the neglect of news. We belive, however, it is a duty we owe our readers and ourselves that the letters should be published to let others at home, so that is our excuse for printing them. The Messenger is not the oldest paper in the state, but it has shown by its enterprise that it "gets there just the same," every time. Below we print some of the letters and will print the balance tomorrow: [From Mr. D. L. Gore, Grocer and Commission Merchant.] Wilmington, N. C., May 11, 1897.

of The Messenger: Goldsboro, N. C., May 11, 1897.
To the Editors of The Messenger:
You spoke of the Sunday issue of The Messenger as a "hummer." Now come Tuesday's issue which is also a "hun mer." You are to be congratulated. You have kept up with the procession and if all the enterprises of Wilmington (and God bless the old town), could put forward the push and energy you have shown in the last few days in your valuable paper, it would not be long before the great advantages your town has over many other southern towns (that are prospering) would be utilized. With your opportunities of shipments, foreign and coastwise, and as you may say, four rail-roads, running into your town, with a climate unsurpassed and the numero pleasure resorts in your immediate vicini-ty and all accessible, it does seem as though you should hear the whir of fac-tories and the hum of looms. There is no town in our state comparable to Wilmington in many respects, besides its high social status, the fine moral and religi-ous tenor that prevail and the true southern hospitality just makes one feel that the city by the sea is the place to abide.

Let your authorities send some good talker (have you not a Chesterfield) into the New England states and talk up your town and its advantages and persuade some one, if need be, to start a factory and take my word for it, others will follow; that will give an impetus to you people, and you will no more hear the toasts from old "Rip," "here is to you and all your family. May you live long and

I am proud of our city, for the handsome way in which it entertained our visitors, and right royally did our people sustain their reputation for hospitality, but no one agency did more than The Messenger to demonstrate to our guests the cordial welcome extended them. In serving the convention by expending labor without limit, and money without stint in publishing the proceedings from day to day, you rendered a service to our city that every citizen, without distinction should feel proud of, and for which I am sure all make hearty acknowledgement. I have it from those high in the councils of the convention that The Messenger's reports are the best ever given on like occasion, and that the work accomplished by you would do credit to a city many times the size of ours. But in addition to this you published much matter relative to our various industries and pleagure reserve and thus ceeds Cashier Cassin. lished much matter relative to our various industries and pleasure resorts and thus lid the city service of great value by ad vertising its resources, while adding to the pleasure of our visitors by pointing out

Permit me to suggest that those who feel an interest in the work of the con-vention, and who desire a full and accurate report of the proceedings will do well to provide themselves with copies of The Messenger covering the full term of the convention. Thanking you again for see what is thought of The Messenger | the publis spirit manifested and commend mending you for the enterprise displayed, I beg to remain,
