WHAT THE SUGAR TRUST WILL MAKE.

Aldrich, in his opening The Messenger at once denounced the It is an outrage in both particulars because it taxes the poor man's comforts | ster) had written to Judge Story, and luxuries-whiskey, brandy, beer, ale, to be both common sense and common fairness in levying taxes. Senator Aldrich said this:

"Assuming that the necessity for ad ditional revenue exists, there can be no question, no economic reason, and none that affects the public interests, why beer and tobacco should not bear their share of additional taxation."

Rut the pressure was brought to bear upon him and he backed square down. The trusts must have their $8,000,000 or $10,000,000 of gain each year and some $40,000,000 more must be raised on sugar. The beer saloons kicked, the farmers who do not pay one cent of the tax on tobacco, etc., kicked, and there possible trust gains to be rich favored and reported. The howl efit of the foul trust. The able, in formed Philadelphia American says:

And the new schedule is, indeed, a considerable improvement over the old. The old would have assisted the trust in exacting a tribute from our people or from something less than two-fifths of a cent a pound on every pound of sugar sold; the new extends but half as much governmental aid. What is more, the new schedule gives the protection to the sugar trust is purports to give. It means what it says. Just what the abandoned schedule meant it took an expert to deci-

WEBSTER AND BADGER.

The scholarly editor of The Asheville

Citizen says this: "What a change since the days when Daniel Webster gave to Senator Badger, of North Carolina, a letter of introduction to Rufus Choate, of Massachusetts, somewhat as follows: 'Kindly let this introduce to you Senator Badger, of North Carolina-your equal and my superior.' Then the best talent was at the service of the state." If he will allow us, having some knowledge of the matter, we will state that it was a letter to Judge Story, of Massachusetts, to whom Mr. Webster addressed the letter of introduction in behalf of Mr. Badger, who was not then in the senate. It occurred before our great North Carolinian had been either in the cabinet or senate. Mr. Badger had been associated with Mr. Webster in a law case before the supreme court of the United States in this way. Mr. Badger was thoroughly acquainted with the case and had gone to Washington to consult with the great New England lawyer. At Webster's request Badger prepared a brief of the case. He was not then a practitioner before the court and Webster was to make the argument. Badger handed the brief to him and left the city for home. The cadets received Mr. Webster at the old Raleigh and Gaston depot and were his escort through the town to the opposite side where Governor Graham resided in the old "Governor's palace," as it was called, most striking misnomer. Because of this we were invited to attend a levee or reception ball given to Mr. and Mrs. Webster by United States Senator William H. Haywood-the only cadet present. Early in the evening Mr. Webster came into the front hall from the dancing room. He was escorted by Mr. Weston R. Gales, editor of The Register, Colonel John H. Manly, and Major Charles H. Hinton, treasurer of the state. There was a large bowl of punch on the sideboard. They were all seated a few feet distant and Manly was master of ceremonies. The Charlotte Observer publishes an outline account of addresses made at Providence in Mecklenburg county, by Professor Alexander Graham, of that town, and President McIver, of the Greensboro normal. Professor Graham handled Boston Page's statements as to North Carolina with ungloved hands, using effectively some of the facts and figures of The Messenger and The Reidsville Weekly.
