Boston, June 26 .- The Boston-Baltimore game today was a pitchers' contest. Both were remarkably effective. Nichols allowed only one hit in the last five innings and that was in the ninth. Stivetts was the only Boston player who could bat Corbett at all. Attendance 16,000. The score:

Batteries: Nichols and Ganzel; Corbett and Bowerman. Umpires Emslie and O'Day. Time 2:04.

Brooklyn, June 26.-Brooklyn won the third and last game of treir series with the Philadelphias through timely stickwork. Both sides fielded well and the few errors were excusable. Kennedy had the Quakers at his mercy until the ninth, when he eased up. Attendance 5.651 The score:

Sherman's Reply to Japan Washington, June 26.-The reply of the secretary of state to the protest of the Japanese government against the to liquidation, and the market turned annexation of Hawaii has been forwarded to the Japanese legation here and by them cabled to Tokio. The le-gation probably will file a supplemental statement upon receiving instructions from the home government. It is expected that this will take some time as the note of the state department is worded in a most careful and diplomatic manner and its meaning is somewhat obscure as to the points raised by the Japanese officials.

Senator Pettigrew Rallied.

Washington, June 26 .- Senator Pettigrew rallied and this evening chatted pleasantly with his family and a few friends who called at his home. He was still a little weak from the effect of the attack but was greatly improved and said he felt quite well. There was no fever nor any unpleasant symptoms growing out of the attack and he wanted his friends assured that he was not in a dangerous condition. His physician anticipates no serious results.

Energetic Attitude Toward the United

State's Demand Madrid, June 26 .- Don Francisco Silvela, the leader of the dissident con-servatives, has published a manifesto demanding the adoption by the Spanish government of an energetic attitude toward the United States in regard to Cuba. He equally condemns the scheme of reforms for Cuba drawn up by Senor Canovas del Castillo, the premier, and the autonomy scheme advocated by the liberals.

Ornament Defeats Typhoon II St. Louis, June 26.-Kentucky beat

Missouri. Ornament outran Typhoon II at the fairgrounds today in the St, Louis Derby, a $12,000 sweep stake for 3-year-olds, and several thousand St. Louisians walked home. The much played Typhoon II was beaten not only by Ornament, of Kentucky, but also by Buckvidere, a 12 to 1 shot, who came near getting into first place, Aside from the reassertment of Ornament's superiority, the race was a disappointment Orament's price, 19 to 20 and out, prevented any heavy play on him by the visitors, while Typhoon, at 11 to 10, was hardly more attractive. A very large sum of money was made on the race, but it was not done by Ornament. It was made by a select coterie, which had apparently very excellent reasons for knowing that Buckvidere would run second and the component parts of the coterie found 2 to 1 for place about as good a thing as they wanted.

The day opened with a clear sky, a cool wind and a track like an unbaked brick. Three races passed through that stew of clay before the Derby was called, and the churning did not improve it any.

The only good going on the track was around the outside edge, but apparently the only man who recognized the fact and used his knowledge was C. T. Patterson, the owner of Ornament. Mr. Patterson took a cane and unostentatiously sat down near the mile post while the three starters paraded before the grand stand. Buckvidere, ridden by Slaughter, came first, Typhoon, ridden by Garner next and Ornament, with Clayton in the saddle, last .The crowded grand stand gave them the usual encouraging howl and they went to the post.

Starter Kit Chinn sent them away to a flying start with Buckvidere a nose in front. Force of habit sent every jockey over to the rail at the turn. right in the heaviest going of the track. Owen .Patterson, at the mile post, smiled sweetly and sat still. As they came around Typhoon was in the lead with Ornament at his ear. Buckvidere was close up and each slinging mud like a politician. As the three neared the quiet Patterson, the owner of Ornament, rose and signalled with his cane. At the instant Clayton shot Ornament clear across the ground and before the other jockey's could gasp the race was practically won. Cotton Futures.

(Special to The Messenger.) New York, June 26 .- The strong statis- patience of everybody, including the tical position has grown stronger. The large spot sales in Liverpool and the good spot demand here have continued and there has been no change in the cheerful news of the general business outlook during this week, yet the cotton market has almost exactly reversed its course of the week previous, and the great improvement in crop prospects then ignored has outweighed as an influence upon the market. These factors were the all important contributors to the advance then. The healthy aspect of the market was still present early in the week, but the government's splendid crop bulletin of last Tuesday, followed by the weakness of Liverpool when the market reopened after the jubilee holidays, took all heart out of the bulls, and prices have surely but slowly receded. Today the market was very dull. Liverpool was steady and unchanged. The Chronicle's report on the crop was good but some ceomplaints of too dry weather were noted. Our market opened 3 to 5 points higher. Good rains were reported in the dry section and prices eased again. August opened at 7.27, advanced to 7.28, declined to 7.23 and closed at 7.23 to 7.24, with the tone of the market steady. The trading during the week has been very light and largely local. In spite of this and the loss in values, the bullish sentiment here continued unabated. The fear of a repetition of last season's drought is ever present to deter short selling. The lesson taught to those, who sold the market on magnificent June prospects, by the great rise last summer, is not easily forgotten. The exceeding slimness and rapid diminution of stocks everywhere, the certainty received at early dates and the possibility of crop scares or real crop damage coupled with the reasonable price at which cotton is now selling, all tend to make bull ventures most attractive. Many converts to this way of thinking have been made. But the cold fact is present that with a fair season the south will make a monster crop of cotton. There is no general speculation to help the mar-ket up. The reports now being received from fields are as favorable as can be, and we think that if the prospects continue it will for the present prove profit-able to sell the market on all good bulges. RIORDAN & CO.

(By Associated Press.) New York, June 26.-The cotton market today, after opening quiet and firm at an advance of 2 to 4 points, further advanced 1 to 4 points and then turned easier, closing steady, at a net advance of 1 to 3 points. The early firmness was the rebetter cables than had been expected. For a time shorts were anxious to cover and sellers were scarce. Generally favorable crop accounts and the ab-sence of outside speculative support led quite weak, losing most of the advance.

Death of Rev. O. S. Barton

Norfolk, Va., June 26.-Rev. O. S. Barten, D. D., rector of Christ church, died here this afternoon, aged 67 years. Dr. Barten was one of the most prominent divines in the Southern diocese. He had been rector of Christ church since 1865 and was rector for Jefferson Davis during his incarceration at Fort Monroe immediately after the war. He was born in Hamburg, Germany, and getting involved in the revolution of '48 and 49, came to this country changing his name, which was Siever, to Barten. Afterwards he signed his name always Siever-Barten. In addition to being one of the most learned divines in the south, he was also perhaps the most accomplished music and art critic in the state.

Harry Thurston Peck, in the Bookman.

"George," exclaimed Mrs. Lawson, according to the Cleveland Leader, "let me see that paper a minute. Thre's something in Fugleman's advertisement on the last page, about giving something away to Mr. Lawson handed the paper over to his sweet little wife, and went on eating annum. The queen receives, instead his breakfast.

"I hope they won't all be gone," she said aloud, as she read the announcement 'before I can get there." "What are they going to give away?"

her husband asked.

"What do you intend to buy?" he in-"Oh, I don't know yet. But there are lots of things I can find to make up the dollar's worth. A tea caddy's the very thing I've been wanting this long time, and I wouldn't miss the chance for a good deal."

He kissed her and went away, but when he got home again, at night, he found in place of the happy wife he had left that morning a little woman who was the pic-

"What's the mater?" George Lawson He had forgotten about the tea caddy, and feared that bad news of some kind had preceded him.

"I shall never buy another cent's worth of anything in Fugleman's store as long as I live," his darling replied.
"Oh," he said, remembering the advertisement in the morning paper, "didn't they give you a tea caddy after all?" "Yes," she replied in scarnful tones,

"they gave one but look at it!" Then she handed out a little earthen jar with a nick in it, that if it had been perfect, might have been worth 8 or 10 "Why didn't you make them give you a good one?" he asked patting her cheek,

"The wretch!" hissed George Lawson. Then he told her not to care, and kissed her, and made her think that he didn't object to the squandering of a dollar at all, and at length her gloom disappeared. As they sat down to tea she suddenly said, with a glad look upon her face: "I'd feel awfully bad about it, dear if I of the other women got. They were all cracked, or damaged in some way." But her husband made no reply. He was thinking.

Couldn't Spank Her Son

People never get an encouragement for doing the good Samaritan act in the interest of the public, as the man decided who offered to assist a distracted woman and ameliorate the sufferings of a lot of respectable people on a suburban car, says the Chicago

Times-Herald. The boy who howls was in evidence, the curled darling of his only own mother and the terror of everybody else, and he had kept the car in a state of wild excitement and exhausted the doting parent. "Oh, if your father were only here!" she had said for the fiftieth time, as she tried vainly to restrain the howling At that he stopped howling long enough to beat the air with his small shins, and the woman on the other side of him remarked audibly that a cage was the proper place for savages like man living dare lay a finger on that boy-his own father or any other ugly old catamount who thinks he knows it all," and she effectually shut off debate by going into the next car and taking the sweet infant with her.

Home Making.

There is an ocean of difference beween housekeeping and home-making. One is a business, the other is an art. Many women make great success in the business who fail absolutely in the art. Their houses are perfectly kept. Every department is run with care and exactness. There is never a failure to meet demand; but it is not a home. A home exists for the comfort, happiness, and health of the family. There is no department of housekeeping that is not made to yield to the needs of any member. There is never a crisis of temper if a meal is late or the convenience of a member demands a change in the hour. A few minutes-yea, even a number of minutes-spent in kindly converse in the morning, the call of a friend, or the sudden desire for an hour's outing, never seems to the homemaker a violation of the moral code. Dust does not cause nightmare, nor disorder a display which love and charity agree to call nervousness. Not things, but souls, are the objects of the homemaker's care. She values peace more than system, happiness more than regularity, content more than work accomplished. Yet, with it all, her house, when she touches perfection, is the essence of regularity, order, and quiet. It is this that makes home-making an art. And she alone is a home-maker who has a true sense of proportion .-The Outlook.

Judge Marshall

Once when Chief Justice John Marshall was driving, the hub of his wheel caught on a small sapling growing by the roadside. After striving unsuccessfully for some moments to extricate the wheel, he heard the sound of an ax in the woods, and saw a negro approaching. Hailing him, he said: "If you will get that ax and cut down this tree I'll give you a dollar." "I c'n git yer by 'thout no ax, ef dat's all yer want." "Yes, that's all," said the judge. The man simply backed the horse until the wheel was clear of the sapling, and then brought the vehicle safely around it. "You don't charge a dollar for that, do you?" asked the aston-ished chief justice. "No, massa, but it's wuf a dollar to larn some folks sense." The quick-witted darky got his dollar without further questioning.-New York Mail and Express.

The Last of Monarchy

The chancellor of the exchequer went out of his way recently, says Labouchere in London Truth, to explain how little the monarchy costs England. The crown lands, he said, belong to the sovereign and produce $2,000,000 per of this revenue, $1,060,000. Therefore the total cost of monarchy to the taxpayer is $925,000. The circulation proceeds on the assumption that the crown lands are the private property of the sovereign. This they are not. They originally formed a portion of the general revenue of the country, out of which came the maintenance of the sovereign. Lord Bute, wishing to curry favor with George III, inserted in the civil list act, which was passed on that monarch's accession, a renunciation by him of the crown lands, and this renunciation by a sovereign of what he did not possess is the basis of the theory of these crown lands being the private property of the occpant of the throne. According, therefore, to Sir Michael Hicks-Beach's own figures, monarchy cost England $2,985,000. The real amount is, however, much higher, for there are numberless expenses incidental to the institution which he does not include.

Just a Little of the Gravy An Ex-Confederate soldier of South Carolina tells this story: "I had a friend who was a chaplain in our army -a good man, as such men should be. Several of his own church members were in the same regiment. He kepta sharp eye on us, and tried to train us in the way we should go. When we were rather short for rations some of the boys brought in a fine young porker. 'Now, boys, that's wrong,' said he; 'it is simply stealing, and you ought not to do it.' "'Well, our consciences don't trouble us, and your's won't trouble you when we get this meat cooked; you will want some of it too.'

"'No. I won't eat it. I'd as soon eat stolen meat.' "But we divided it among the boys, and proceeded to cook a ham in the best possible style. The smell of it fairly made our teeth water, and when it was cooked we were more than ready for it.

"'There's a fine piece; cut that off for the chaplain,' said one. "'No, I thank you,' said he. 'I said I wouldn't eat it, and I won't, but'passing up his plate-I'll take a little of the gravy." -Detroit Journal.

An Unsolved Mystery

(From the Detroit Free Press.) "And now, my brave fellow," said the man who had collected a hatful of money from the passengers on the train and presented it to the hero, "here is a slight testimonial of our gratitude for your having saved our lives. Your discovery of the tree some miscreant had felled across the track and flagging the train has prevented a serious catastrophe. One of your eyes seems swollen and inflamed. Have you been hurt?" "Not much," said the hero. "It's just where a chip flew up and hit me-I mean it's a cinder I got in my eye." And the villain who attempted the foul deed was never discovered.
