THE CASE OF HENRY WYATT AND OTHERS

It is strange how long an error once started and obtaining a foothold, can retain its place in the minds of people. The old saw about falsehood wearing seven-leagued boots, is true as to biographical and historical errors. There is probably not a Virginian living who does not believe that the North Carolinians ran on the third day at Gettysburg, and thereby helped by R. R. Bellamy. to lose the victory no little. The absolute truth is that the North Carolintans lost far more men than the Virthe enemy's position than the Virginthis city, temporarily with Colonel W. L. DeRosset, from northern officers bearing on the splendid fighting qualities of the North Carolina soldiers, and particurlarly their great bravery at Gettysburg. Would that Captain tysburg and two or three great battles. We must consider the Wyatt claim.

Henry Wyatt was born in Richmond, Va., and came to Tarboro when a youth. That is well known in Tarboro known to hundreds of North Carolin-Hill, Trimble, Heth, A. P. Hill, Cocke

In the Virginia State Library the files of The Richmond Dispatch show of June, 1861, there is a full account of an engagement at Fairfax Court House, Ya., between the Warrenton (Va.) Rifles, which occurred on the 1st of June, 1861. In that fight Captain J. Q. Marr, commanding the Rifles, was killed. This shows clearly that

We get | ment. these facts and dates from a communication that appeared in The Richmond Dispatch recently and signed "W." The records were found by him in the old files of that paper. So really Henry Wyatt was by no manner of means the first soldier to fall in bat- had honored him by keeping him in tle on the southern side. Remember that the little battle of Bethel occurred on the 10th of June, 1861. Wyatt was the only man killed on the con-

it let us make it conclusive:

Richmond Times of 18th ult., of young justly. Wyatt. He and others knew him when a boy, and they knew that he is not a North Carolinian, but was born in Richmond, Va. He says he was 10 or 12 years old before he left Richmond, and went to North Carolina. . He says: scotches a wiggling snake-like rumor family, being about the same age as date in the Rockingham judicial disyoung Wyatt and has lived all his life within three to five squares of the trict. It says of a "false rumor:" place that the family lived. At the time they moved from Richmond they were living in a house on Carrington street, between. The fact was not disputed at the time he was killed; that he was a Richmond boy; there was no question as to his birth place at that

There is no occasion to make a boast when it rightfully belongs to another state. North Carolina is no pauper, that it must gather its glory from the sons of other states. It has surely enough of its own heroes, but it is tardily conceded by people in other states, who ought to know better and to be more generous and fair.

TURNING ON THE LIGHT

N. Y. Tribune, both supporters of President McKinley and greatly helped to elect him, begin to turn on the light as to condition of the army that is to be sent to Cuba it is time to pause and reflect. Why hurry our brave soldier boys to the enemy's country when they are in no way ready for the invasion. They are not equipped in the first place, and are not yet made into soldiers by thorough drill and experience. There is no doubting the willingness of the people of all sections to respond, and the loyalty displayed was enthusiastic and prompt, but of what avail so long as the government is unable to clothe and arm them. After three weeks of delay the Second North Carolina regiment is neither clothed nor armed. and Edgecombe county, and has been And that too with sixty-five other white companies asking to be received for the war. When so sympathetic a newspaper with the republican administration as the N. Y.
