

THE COMING SOLAR ECLIPSE.

Request for Cooperation - Valuable Data Can be Secured by Anyone Without Apparatus.

Professor R. W. Wood, of the University of Wisconsin, in Science for April 27th, makes a request for co-operation by amateur observers in the eclipse belt.

There is a very singular phenomenon observing during the moments immediately preceding and following total solar eclipses, that has, up to the present time, never been satisfactorily explained so far as I know. Just before totality, usually about one minute before (alternate bright and dark bands are observed sweeping across the country. These have been called shadow bands by some observers, and diffraction bands by others.

In some eclipse reports they are styled "diffraction bands bordering the moon's shadow." Fringes bordering a shadow should, however, move in the speed of the shadow. Observations show that the dark bands move quite slowly, from ten to twenty feet per second, while the shadow of the moon rushes across the country at cannon ball speed. Moreover, they move in one direction before the eclipse, and in the opposite direction after. The only half way plausible explanation that I have ever heard offered for the shadow bands is that they may be light diffraction in the atmosphere. This would bring them under the head of the scintillation phenomena treated of somewhat extensively in advanced works on optics, but it is not possible that the width of the bands is a function of the location of the point of observation, that is to say of its distance from the center of the eclipse track.

I desire to secure, if possible, a complete record of the appearance of the bands over the entire country, together with statements regarding the direction of the wind, condition of the air, etc. The bands to be observed by spreading a sheet or other large white cloth on the ground. As soon as the moving shadows appear, which will probably be about a minute before totality, lay the sheet parallel to the shadows, with as great accuracy as possible. Then try to estimate the width of the bands, and the velocity with which they are moving, also the direction in which they are going, that is whether from east to west, or west to east. The width of the bands can be best determined, I imagine (I have never seen them), by estimating the width of a group, say five or six, or wider a band as the eye can grasp and follow with certainty as to the number of dark bands in it. A scale for reference, preferably a white board with feet and half feet marked with strong black lines, will be of assistance at the moment of totality, and the direction of the bands perpendicular to the shadows, that is at right angles to the lath. The speed can be estimated by trying to keep up with the moving shadows, and may be recorded as slow walk, fast walk, slow run, etc. Those who are accustomed to counting quarter seconds, can probably make a fair estimate of the speed by noting the time of transit of a band across the sheet. The shadows will disappear at the moment of totality, but will reappear again as soon as the sun's edge emerges from behind the moon. A second lath should be laid on the sheet, parallel to the bands unless their direction is the same, and the same observations repeated, noting whether the direction of motion is reversed. After the eclipse is over, determine the direction of the two laths as accurately as possible with the compass, and measure the angle between them. Note the direction of the wind before and after the eclipse, and record the general atmospheric conditions.

BEFORE TOTALITY. 1. Direction of the bands. 2. Width of bands. Give all data, that is, number of dark bands in given width of the system. 3. Estimate speed. State how estimated. 4. Direction of motion. Whether from east to west, west to east. 5. General appearance. Whether sharp or hazy, whether contrast between light and shadow is considerable. If possible estimate relative intensity of illumination in dark and light areas. 6. Direction of wind. Temperature and general atmospheric conditions. AFTER TOTALITY. Repetition of the above. Actual angle between the laths. General remarks, and location of point of observation. Reports should be sent to Professor R. W. Wood, Physical Laboratory of the University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wisconsin.

High Tribute to Skill. The following is a letter from Dr. Wright Hall, of this city, to Dr. O. F. Dingelhoff, Oculist, No. 123 Market street. Dr. Dingelhoff does not treat medically or surgically, his profession being of the scientific adjustment of glasses to the eye: Dear Doctor - On coming to you I could not see the large headlines in the newspapers. My eyes were in a very bad condition and steadily growing worse. I really believe that I would have been totally blind ere this had I not consulted you. Thanks to your skill I am able to do my work with comparative ease, seeing everything perfectly. I also suffered incessantly with headache, neuralgia and inflamed eyes, which your glasses have entirely relieved. With the distant glasses, I am able to see as far as I ever could, with perfect ease and comfort. I am now able to read the finest print either by day or artificial light, your glasses, and can even read without them during the day, so much have they improved. I am writing this letter without the aid of the finest print, and can readily see the wonderful improvement in my vision. I am more than pleased with your work and wish you continued success in your profession.

Have that piano tuned by the most thorough and competent man we ever employed. Ludden & Bates, 109 Market street, Bell phone 599.

AMERICA IN PARIS

Our Pavilion Formally Turned Over to the Exposition Authorities.

Paris, May 12.—The American pavilion at the exposition was formally turned over to the authorities and public this afternoon. The inauguration took place in the presence of embassy and consulate officials, a number of high French functionaries, foreign diplomats and commissioners and such a concourse of American citizens that many who were provided with tickets were unable to gain admittance to the building.

Before the hour set for the ceremony the crowd became so dense that orders were given to the police to keep the people at a respectful distance from the doors. The French officers adhered so strictly to the letter of their instructions that even guests holding invitation tickets were not allowed to pass. Considerable confusion resulted from this cause and the United States ambassador, General Horace Porter, with his party, found their passage barred until an official perceiving him from the building hastened to meet him, and the ambassador's party scrambled through the States.

The interior of the building was brightly decorated with American flags and tri-color bunting, with which the balconies were draped, while from the eagle flew the Stars and Stripes and the French flag. The balconies were occupied exclusively by invited guests, while on the floor of the building a double line of American guards, with white summer helmets, formed an aisle through which the official party passed from the main entrance to the spot where the presentation took place. Behind the guards, the Americans who secured admittance, stood and witnessed the proceedings.

The ceremony of transferring the pavilion was quite simple, consisting of an address by Ferdinand W. Peck, commissioner of the United States, handing over the building to M. Alfred Picard as the head of the exposition, and the latter's response in accepting the ceremony. Sousa's band provided music, and the selections played were composed purely of American airs except for the "Marseillaise." Mr. Peck reached the pavilion about 2 o'clock to await the arrival of M. Picard, who, escorted by B. D. Woodward, assistant United States commissioner, entered the exposition gates at the Invalides bridge at 2:30 o'clock and proceeded immediately along the Quai d'Orsay to the entrance of the American building, which faces the Seine. After a brief glance at the equestrian statue of Washington, which guards the portals of the American national pavilion, M. Picard ascended the steps leading to the door. Here Mr. Peck stood surrounded by the members of the United States commission, and as he welcomed the French commissioner General Sousa's band struck up the "Marseillaise."

All the spectators at once uncovered, and amid the strains of the French hymn, M. Picard conducted Mr. Peck to the centre of the rotunda. The audience greeted the conclusion of the air with cheers, which M. Picard acknowledged. No time was lost in the proceedings with the ceremony, Mr. Peck delivering his address and M. Picard replying in a brief, but eloquent speech, which evoked enthusiastic hurrahs from the audience. At the conclusion of M. Picard's remarks a general reception was held. Sousa's band gave a concert during the remainder of the afternoon.

COTTON GROWERS' CONFERENCE

Meeting of the Cotton Growers at Macon to Take Action for Self Protection.

Macon, Ga., May 12.—The cotton growers' convention held at Macon today was one of the largest conventions of representative planters and business men ever held in Georgia. The convention was called for the purpose of affecting an organization of the cotton planters which would enable them to secure better price for cotton. Five hundred delegates were present, representing every county in the state, and including planters, warehousemen, manufacturers, bankers, merchants and lawyers.

The convention was addressed by Hon. Hoke Smith, Hon. Pope Brown, president of the State Agricultural Society; Hon. J. F. Hanson, Harvey Jordan, I. B. English and others. Mr. Smith in his address said in substance that the south's cotton crop is further-reaching in its effect than any other product of the soil, its aggregate annual value being over $300,000,000. He stated that during the last 100 years the money paid for cotton raised in the United States amounted to fifty billion dollars; of this amount, eleven billion dollars was received for cotton exported. He said that in fifty years the consumption of cotton had increased from 2,500,000 bales annually to 18,000,000 annually, an increase of 700 per cent. He advised the farmers of the south to organize so as to control the marketing of their crop on such a basis as would secure to them its real value.

The convention concluded with the organization of the Georgia Cotton Growers' Association. The plan upon which the work of organizing the farmers is to be effected was referred to the committee on organization and the executive committee jointly—the convention ratifying, in advance, any plan that might be adopted. Macon was chosen as permanent headquarters of the association.

Close calculation has put the number of Veterans at the Confederate Reunion at Louisville, May 20th-June 3rd, at 40,000, and the number of visitors at 100,000. The bulk of them will travel part of the way by the Seaboard Air Line Railway, because it carries them through the battle-fields.

"Mr. P. H. Walsh, 713 Princess street, city, says, I purchased a Mathushek Piano six years ago and have had the instrument in constant use ever since. It has given perfect satisfaction and is as good now as the day it was bought. I would not exchange it for any instrument of another make." Ludden & Bates, 109 Market street.

Proceedings Against the Ice Trust.

New York, May 12.—In police court today Magistrate Zeller issued summonses against the officers and directors of the American Ice Company, commonly known as the ice trust, ordering them to appear on Monday next to show cause why they should not be proceeded against for conspiracy, in combining to control the price and product of ice, contrary to law.

THE GOLD COAST REBELLION.

Accra, May 11.—There is no news from Kumasi. Troops from Lagos and Sierra Leone are massing at Prashu in Ashanti, as a base of operations against the natives who are in a state of revolt. It is supposed that the Belwas have joined the Ashanti confederation, after having been armed by the government.

is the wonderful mechanism of the human eye. But so carefully has it been studied that the most serious as well as the slightest defects can be remedied. And let us impress upon you that our testing is not a matter of guesswork; nor is it a matter of trying on pairs of ready-made glasses. Eye testing is a science governed by principles which none but a person who has studied the anatomy of the eye can understand. Treat your eyes properly, they are your best friends. Abuse them and they will forsake you. No charge for telling you the cause of your eye trouble and how to cure it. If we supply the cure, charges will be moderate.
