WILMINGTON, N. C. THRURSCDAY, MARCH 7, 1901. SOMETHING THE INAUGURAL TEACHES.

However inclined one may be to deal with the president in admiration and mercy it is really extremely difficult to do so if one has a memory and some knowledge of facts and occurrences during the last four or eight years. The address is quite American, even something eloquent. in what he says. Blot all records and events and the address is a model of rejoicing as well as a very agreeable resume of occurrences from the imperialistic watchtower. While Americans who are Amer.cans may well rejoice in whatever of grandeur, glory and prosperity attend the history of these United States, there are unpleasant remembrances, and the song of rejoicing is forced to take on a strain of lamentation at more than one turn in the musical jubilee. An elaborte, critical examination of the address would reveal many things to be sorrowful for as well as occasions for fear and apprehension as to the future of our country. The address abounds in salient utterances that will attract and cause the crowd of hero-worshippers to hurrah with many bowings and genuffections. How well he speaks when he declares that "we should not permit our great prosperity to lead us to reckless ventures in business or profligacy in expenditures." How that must have fallen on leaden-ears of the expiring congress, with its nearly billion and a half of expenditures, the most senseless, the most reckless, the most indefensible, the most profligate in all American history. And yet the president spoke of a "reduct.on" of $40,000,000 of taxes, in the face of an actual increase of nearly a half billion in expenditures. Read the following and while you may admire you

LINCOLN'S DIAMOND PIN.

How the Ornament Came Into and Went Out of His Possession,

Colonel W. N. Cave of Barnewell, S C., is in possession of a unique relic in the shape of a diamond pin which was at one time the property of Abraham Lincoln, and which is the only piece of jewelry of the kind that President Lincoln ever wore. The pin is of the old fashioned style of cluster brooches, with a clasp at the back for the purpose of securing it to the frilled shirt fronts worn by gentlemen 50 years ago. The center diamond is a large, particularly white, one, and it is surrounded by a number of smaller brilliants.

The pin has a strange history. Some work. years before the war and prior to the time that Abraham Lincoln was beginning to loom up as a presidential possibility, while practicing law in Illinois, he met a young dandy from New York state whose sporting proclivities had caused him to run short of funds. The young fellow went to Lincoln for assistance and left with his as security for a loan a handsome diamond pin. For some reason he never returned to redeem the pledge, and from that day Lincoln did not again see him.

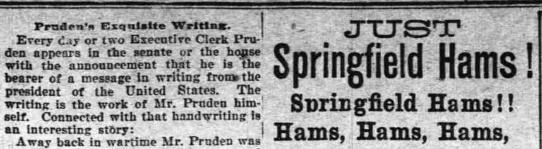

Lincoln was naturally a man of quiet taste in matters of dress and seldom wore jewelry of any kind. However, his accidental possession of a fine ornament proved a temporary temptation to adorn himself. One day James Moyers, a stock dealer of Kentucky and a close personal friend of Mr. Lincoln, who had known him intimately from childhood, went to Springfield on a visit. As soon as he saw Lincoln the pin attracted his atten-

"Well, who'd 'a' thought that Abe Lincoln would be strutting around the streets with a diamond pin in his shirt front!" exclaimed Moyers in mock surprise, Lincoln looked vaguely abashed and tried to explain. The explanation ended by his taking the pin from his shirt and pinning it on Moyers, insisting as he did so that he did not want it and was only too anxious to get rid of it. Moyers kept the ornament for some time and finally gave it to a friend, James Drummond. Drummond was captured during the war by the Federals and died at Fort Monroe. In 1866 a sale of his poperty and personal effects took place at Barnwell, S. C. Among the latter was the pin that had belonged to Lincoln. Colonel Cave bought it for a small sum.' He knew its

He went over to the war department, arranged for Mr. Pruden's appointment, and in a little while the soldier was giving the government the benefit of his talent for penmanship. When General Babcock went over to the White House with General Grant, he took Mr. Pruden along with him, and there Pruden has remained to the present day. He has never lost the art of handling his pen with artistic skill, and the invitations to dinners and receptions which issue from the White House are his handiwork. Schedule in Effect March 4, 1901.

"We are now at peace with the world, and it is my fervent prayer if differences arise * * * they may be settled by peaceful arbitration. * * * There are some national questions in the solution of which patriot.sm

should exclude partisanship. 'Hope maketh not ashamed.' The prophets of ev.l were not the builders of the republic, nor in its crises since have they saved or served it.

Our institutions will not deteriorate by extension and our sense of justice will not abate under tropic suns in distant seas. * * * The path of progress is seldom smooth. New things are often found hard to do. We face at this moment a most important question-that of the future relations of the United States and Cuba.

Our countrymen should not be deceived. We are not waging war against the inhabitants of the Phil ppine islands. A portion of them are making war against the United States.

In answer look at the two years' war in the Philippines. The masters and usurpers and despoilers and oppressors never yet builded wisely and never "saved or served" a country or republic. If it is true progress to become imperialistic the wisest of our statesmen utterly fail to see it or comprehend it. be found exceeding rugged and costly and blood-letting to make expansion mean conquest by guns and powder. It is a truth made plain by history that adventurers have often come to grief, and so-called progress has terminated in disappointment and defeat. Go slow is better than rough riding, and it is better not to create a criss if thereby you practice cruelty and vist great wrongs upon the unoffending. The cry of McKinley as to the Philippines is the cry of deception and untruth. It is not history. He brought it on by his own wicked course during the Paris arb tration. That is now well known and made easy of McKinley's own words writgreat outrage on the part of the Mcten to the arbitrators. The Philippines in their course have ten times the cause the American colonies had for their resistance of Great Br tain. The ablest of living Americans know what McKinley says is not true as to the Philippines. The Baltimore Sun lets him off with exceeding forbearance in saying-that "judging from the tone of the president's inaugural he intends that the war in the Philippines shall be a fight to the finish, now that we have engaged in it. In regard to the president's statement that we are not making war upon the Filip nos, but that a portion of them are waging war against us, there may possibly be some difference of opinion. If the president is right the Filip nos, without exception, are the victims of a terrific and most blustering. The Balmost extraordinary delusion."

He makes war and yet he glibly talks of there being "no more bloodshed." It lies with him in his imperial powers. He is the state now. His talk as to Cuba is deceptive and unsatisfactory. He has no idea of letting Cuba be free in fact. Before it will be allowed to go free he declares that it "must be capable of performing the duties and discharging the functions of a separate nation, of observing its international obligations, of large operators.

about the string. That is morality, as we understand it, and it applies to nations as well as to the man across the street." The Rochester (N. Y.) Pest-Express, republican, sees dishonor and rong in the policy of the government. it points to certain domestic questions not interfered with by the United states government as to the states. It says, and it is pointed and important nough to be farther drawn upon, that 'the federal government does not atempt to regulate the indebtedness torial: that any state may contract or to prevent the repudiation of a state's inebtedness. Even in the matter of the naintenance of domestic order, which s the most important function of government, the federal government does ot undertake to intervene without a pcial request from the state where the disorder has occurred. Why should not Cuba be permitted to enjoy the same right?" Yes, and why not? preme court.' Let the republican papers continue to condemn a most palpable inquity and
