EFFECTS OF PROHIBITION

On account of the falling off in internal revenue receipts in Georgia and South Carolina through the enforcement of prohibition, H. A. Rucker, the negro collector for the district of Georgia, will lose his job after January 1st. Those two states will be united in one district with headquarters in Columbia, and Major Micah Jenkins, now collector of the South Carolina district, as collector of the new one. Major Jenkins is a close personal friend of the president. He commanded one of the battalions in Mr. Roosevelt's regiment of Rough Riders during the Spanish war. We suppose those Georgians who opposed the prohibition enactment by the last legislature will rejoice at this one result to follow the establish- | Bung: ment of prohibition in the state.

It is also said that at an early day the states of Alabama and Mississippi will be formed into one district because of the falling off of revenue receipts.

This would indicate that prohibition cuts down the sale of liquor.

In this state prohibition is making rapid strides. There are only thirtyfour counties in the state now in which liquor is legally sold in saloon or dispensary and it has been voted out of the towns in five of these, to take effect January 1st.

The Charlotte Chronicle, referring to the recent elections in Wadesboro and Asheville, says "the prohibitionists are picking their flints for a try at Winston, Salisbury and Wilmington. Of the three towns mentioned Wilmington is considered to be the hardest proposition". The Chronicle says that "left to a vote of the people, Wilmington, as is the way with seaport towns, would always remain wet and there are other localities in the east that would stick to the saloon" Because of these facts The Chronicle predicts that the next legislature will make the whole state dry without a vote of the people "and thus settle the business", It says this is as sure to come as the next legislature meets.

We are inclined to believe The Chronicle is guessing pretty accurately, especially should the towns referred to hold local option elections in the meantime and the prohibitionists be defeated.

THE LAW'S DELAY

The lawyer referred to by The Robesonian in the following extract we take from that paper, knew what he was talking about when he made his criticism on the manner often followed by attorneys in the examination of witnesses. It does seem sometimes that it is the object of the examining lawyer to prevent the witness from telling what he-knows instead of trying

"There must be something wrong with our method of trying cases," remarked a lawyer who had been attending Robeson superior court the suing a railroad company for damages. If I take this man aside and sit a chew of tobacco, he'll itell me in fifteen minutes all there is to tell about how he got his leg broken and how in this trial they have had him on the in this state. stand two whole days!" And there you are. "The law's delay." "Yes, sir, I was standing so, and so and so and so happened and my leg was broken and I was injured thus and so," merely a the public schools there have been matter of ten minutes' conversation or so, and yet when it comes to stat- closed for ten days. It is hoped the ing the case to a jury, it takes two disease will be wiped out by that days to tell it! It would seem that a time. man is not expected to unfold a plain unvarnished tale on the witness stand. After many centuries of duplicity dip-Tomats have waked to a realization of the fact that the best policy is to be absolutely direct and candid, and may be yet in some future golden age, when a man is placed upon the witness stand to tell how a thing happen- relieve backache, weak kidneys, and ly, directly and speedily. Maybe so.

THE LAW NO RESPECTER OF PERSONS

There is a law in Massachusetts, passed by the legislature only a year or so ago, which prohibits the soliciting of positions with public service corporations by state officials.

It seems the Massachusetts people are not going to let this law be a dead letter. The grand jury in Boston has indicted several officials for its violation, among them being two state senators, two members of up busines sto play golf.—Syracuse the lower house of the legislature Herald. and several city aldermen.

people, high and low, rich and poor, know that when they violate the criminal law of their state they will be prosecuted. There is no other way to make the law be respected love by all classes. If the lower classes see the law violated with impunity by those standing over them in the order of society they lose their respect for the law and for the men whose duty it is to see that the laws are enforced and the guilty punished, and the members of any class of society hold in contempt that law which they find they can utterly disregard. Besides, it is but right and just that the same law should be meted out to all classes. A law properly enforced recognizes no class in society, and the official whose duty it is to enforce the law violates his oath of office if he allows class distinctions weigh with him in the performance of the duties of his of-

THE TROUBLE AT THE BUNG

We published a statement from the Charlotte Chronicle a few days ago that the Charlotte Trousers Company, with headquarters in that city would move to New York. No reason then was assigned. On the subject a latter issue of The Chronicle contained the following editorial under the heading "The Trouble at the authority that the removal of the Charlotte Trouser Company to New York is due in a great measure to discrimination against this town in freight rates. This company sells its product over a large southern territory, but the claim is male that it can ship from New York to Atlanta, for instance, to better advantage than it can ship from Charlotte o Atlanta and other southern points. This discrimination may not have been the impelling motive for the move of the company from Charlotte, but that it was largely a contributing factor, there is no doubt. This incident is sufficient to show the seriousness of the situation. The state's lawyers are making a great fuss over the matter of passenger fares, a matter of no great comequence to the public, while the far more important master of freight rates is being ignored and the manufacturing and commercial interests of the state are being permitted to languish. When will this matter be taken up? That is one thing the people like to know. If The Chronicle is correct in the reason it gives for its removal it is surely time that something is being done to stop such discrimination against North Carolina cities in the matter of freight charges. This freight question should have been taken up by the corporation commission before that of passenger fares in which the people are much less

There is one farmer in Anson county who is not bothered by the scarcity of labor. When his cotton is ready for picking he takes his family in the field and his work is soon done. Not long ago this farmto get from him all his knowledge er's five children, ranging in age about the matter. The Robesonian from nine to seventeen years, picked a bale in a single day. That is the way to do it.

Mr. Bryan will make a pretty good swing around the circle in this state other day. "There's a man who is He spoke in Charlotte yesterday. He will be at Fayetteville today, at down on a log with him and give him Greensboro tomorrow and in Raleigh on Thursday.
