

IT IS OUR DUTY

To Give Youth Another Chance.

In reporting a recent session of the Charlotte police court the Observer has this concerning the case of two young men who, it appears, had failed to appreciate the force of the argument set forth in the general proposition that honesty is the best policy:

"Because it was his first time in trouble, Charlie Alexander, a young white man, escaped a chain-gang sentence, and was only fined $15 and costs when he was found guilty of larceny in police court yesterday morning. His companion in distress, having given a sentence of six months in the county jail because he was an old offender."

The Charlotte judge is to be commended for giving the boy guilty of the first offence a chance to get back on the right track. If this were done oftener there would be fewer criminals of mature years.

Referring to the perplexities of the municipal judge, Judge Brown, of Greensboro, who is always inclined to the side of mercy, especially in cases of the youthful offender, says that one of the greatest difficulties which he encounters is the indifference and lack of sympathy on the part of Christian people to carry into practice the fine theories which they advance in regard to those who have erred and who need a life line in the way of recognition and encouragement more than at any other time in their entire lives.

It is then the wheels rest. It is then the burden is lifted. Mr. McAllister says golf does the same thing. Then that is perhaps why it is such a popular game among those who use their leisure time to keep the rust off of them. Some day when the sawdust in the creeks kills all the fish we are going to take a correspondence course in golf and go out some evening and beat the life out of Mr. McAllister in a game or two.

New Men on the Job. The Raleigh News and Observer recognize our right to be a colonel. It says: "There's a new Record being made of the Greensboro Record, for there's a new man on the job. Not a new man in the way of being known in North Carolina, but a new one on the Greensboro Record, though he's made a record all his own in North Carolina."

It's Al Fairbrother we're talking about, Colonel Al Fairbrother. We don't know why he is sometimes called 'Colonel' Fairbrother, but it looks good in type, hence the 'colonel' here. With Mr. George B. Crater in league the two have bought the Greensboro Record and they have already begun making a new Record of it.

"Well, they are two good ones, Colonel Fairbrother on the editorial and general writing side and Crater on the side that gathers in the shekels. And the early signs are that they are going to make a good afternoon paper, with snap and dash to it. The announcement is that the paper is to be independent, with no political lines to guide it.

"Colonel Fairbrother's Everything is to live on, and if the colonel leaves it in Mrs. Fairbrother's hands it is going to get along all right, no matter what he does with the Record. That he is going to make the Record a live publication we feel sure, for that is what he has done with other dailies. And with him in charge we are moved to say that you are going to hear from the Greensboro Record straight along."

Naval Appropriation Bill. WASHINGTON, D. C., April 24.—The naval appropriation bill as framed by the House naval subcommittee and submitted in a confidential way to the full committee today for consideration Thursday carries $217,652,174 against $149,656,865 for the current fiscal year. This includes public works and is on the basis of Navy Department proposal building during 1917.

Major Stedman. The Winston Journal thus speaks of Major Stedman: "The reception given Major Stedman, the popular Congressman from this district, by his fellow Democrats of this county here yesterday, must have been truly gratifying to him. The Major is in splendid health and will be able to handle with ease any Republican opposition may find to run against him this year. Always happy in his speeches, the Major made a hit in his splendid introduction of Mr. Hefflin, when he said that as a result of the Democratic administration of the affairs of this country during the last three years 'everybody is happy, prosperous and contented, except where sin has left its footprints or the Republican party has left the effects of its bad legislation.'"

Laborers for Germany. COPENHAGEN.—An employment bureau has been established here for twenty large factories in Germany. Contracts are made for two months with traveling and passport expenses. Wages are about 35 cents an hour, the working day usually consisting of ten to twelve hours. The bureau has already secured 400 workmen.

A Prison Sentence. Ex-Senator William Lorimer is apt to serve a prison term, it is thought, because he is charged with conspiracy to wreck a Chicago bank. The following seems to substantiate the charge: A maximum prison sentence of five years in the penitentiary will be demanded for William Lorimer, former United States Senator, accused of conspiracy to wreck his LaSalle Street Trust and Savings Bank. This was indicated here in Justice Devere's court when William H. Holly, assistant State's attorney, opened argument for the prosecution.

HOW ABOUT IT?

Will Golf Cause You to Forget it All While in Action?

Naturally the man who uses the wheels in his head to excess gets that tired feeling. He yearns to rest—to do something that will stop the particular wheels for the nonce.

The other day in conversation with Mr. A. W. McAllister, a devotee of the links, he assured us that golf was one thing that would cause a man to forget it. We never tried golf. We can never rest the larger wheels by riding on a train. The faster the train goes the faster the wheels work. We can't enjoy a baseball game because we are "figuring out" some problem—thinking of something to write or some excuse to put up to the man to whom we owe a dollar and whom we expect to call on us again tomorrow. But we can go fishing. We can then forget all of this work. When we cast and sit in expectation of seeing a cork go under we couldn't tell you our own name. We couldn't give you information as to our whereabouts or tell you the state of our nativity. The great eternal silence is upon our mind all we see is the cork and all we know is that we expect to see it go under.

It is then the wheels rest. It is then the burden is lifted. Mr. McAllister says golf does the same thing. Then that is perhaps why it is such a popular game among those who use their leisure time to keep the rust off of them. Some day when the sawdust in the creeks kills all the fish we are going to take a correspondence course in golf and go out some evening and beat the life out of Mr. McAllister in a game or two.

To Begin Work. Work is to start at an early date on Wilmington's new $500,000 customs house, says a report from that seaport. Wilmington got the new building only after much wrangling, and now that it has it some are so unkind as to suggest that the boats are going to stop coming there, which is raising Wilmington's ire to such an extent that it is showing many of the other Atlantic seacoast towns just what it can do—the North Carolina spirit seems still to be in Wilmington.

Flag Raising Drew Large Crowd. Twenty-five hundred people was the estimated crowd which attended the flag raising exercises at the Stonewall Jackson school Monday, when a large United States flag, given by the various councils of the Junior Order United American Mechanics, was presented and unfurled over the new school and a handsome Bible was donated by the Daughters of Liberty and presented by Mr. O. A. Guinn.

LEARN TO SPEAK SPANISH.

Then You May Be Able to Get a Well Job Some Time in the Future.

Mr. W. A. Thomas, of Statesville, has been convinced, according to the following men, that it is a good thing to learn to speak Spanish:

Something is constantly coming Mr. W. A. Thomas' way to confirm his opinion that the study of Spanish by some of our young people, to take care of South American business in the near future, is important and pressing. A few days ago Mr. Thomas received a letter from a friend asking him if he could suggest a young man, familiar with the Spanish language, to go to South America to investigate the furniture trade. The place is a government position and will pay $10 a day and $5 a day additional for expenses. In a few years it is believed that the Southern trade with South America will be so developed that some one capable of reading and writing Spanish will be wanted in the office here. After opening a shade off to 5% up, with May 1.13% to 1.15% and July at 1.14 and 1.14% to 1.15%, the market scored a substantial advance all around.

Wheat Market. CHICAGO, April 26.—Excessive moisture in the Northwest, preventing to a serious extent the seeding of the spring crop, ran prices up today in wheat here. After opening a shade off to 5% up, with May 1.13% to 1.15% and July at 1.14 and 1.14% to 1.15%, the market scored a substantial advance all around.

What Are You Worth?

To the Editor: A friend who was close enough to permit an intimate question asked me, "How much are you worth?" And that set me to thinking.

How much is any man worth? When you count up your assets, what do you include? Is it possible that wealth is a matter of money in the bank, automobiles, broad acres, bonds, things that can be turned into unfeeling cash, if necessary, dollars? Is it health, the possession of true and true friends, a good reputation, a keen interest in the affairs of the world? Is it the capacity to enjoy good music and good books; to be able to take an intelligent part in conversation? What is it?

Several days ago, when I was in my old home town, I visited a friend of mine, whom I found in his garden, clad in the oldest clothes he possessed, engaged in the unromantic task of planting beans. While we were there a glorious sun warmed us and all about the green shoots were coming up, while the buds on the trees were slowly bursting into bloom. The perfume of the flowers hung heavy on the air, and a bed of gorgeous pansies bared their sweet bosoms to the sky. In an apple tree two jays were chattering over the building of a little house that is soon to hold an interesting family. Teetering in the top of an elm tree a robin gurgled and thrilled and made its melody just because of the joy of living.

A soft breeze laid a caressing hand on my cheek and brought me a shower of spice flowers from somewhere. Everywhere the voices of spring were singing praises of the season, the glory of the resurrection that comes every year and should give us faith in the Eternal Wisdom of the Power that rules over us.

While talking to my friend there spread before us a sunset that was magnificent beyond the power of my poor words to describe. To have eyes and with them to see; to have ears and with them to hear; to play even a humble part in the great scheme is a boon that is priceless.

Standing there in the garden patch it struck me that I must be worth at least a million dollars. A matter of values. J. C. CHEEK.

Coming Home. Col. John Staples gets a letter from Gen. J. S. Carr stating that he will be home about the first of June. The general has had a great time in California and all his many friends will give him a royal welcome home.

Durham Wants Library. That Durham will make an effort to secure the aid of Mr. Andrew Carnegie in building a public library to take the place of the one now doing service is an assured thing. Mr. Carnegie will probably be asked to donate $30,000 for this purpose and the city will agree to give $3,000 annually for its maintenance.

It Spreads. The custom and the spirit of "Clean-up Days" spread rapidly. All over North Carolina we have had the day observed and the millions of tin cans, trash, the general mess of uncleanly towns—all these have been removed. The Statesville Landmark tells us this how it was in Statesville—and so it has been in many towns: "The recent Clean-up Days in Statesville kept busy for about a week hauling off the trash; and if not a clean town now, Statesville is at least 'near-clean.' Formerly Clean-up Days amounted to little. But line around the civic conscience and the aroused the civic conscience and the advantage of cleaning up and keeping clean. May the spirit continue to grow."

Mrs. Emily Hardin, aged 78 years, died last evening at 7 o'clock at her home, about ten miles south of the city, after an illness of some time. The funeral was held this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at Alamance church, the services being conducted by Rev. E. C. Murray. Interment followed in the church cemetery.

Banks on His Sons-in-Law. Colonel Roosevelt is banking on the aid of his sons-in-law in case this country gets to fighting with Germany. He told a newspaper man that he has all his sons would go to the front in case of war, and now one of his sons-in-law, Representative Longworth, says he will "be on the job with a uniform."

A Young Mountain Girl Charged With Shooting Mother.

That is a sad case coming from the mountains where Sallie Bryson, but fourteen years of age, is charged with shooting her mother, Mrs. Bob Bryson, of Hamburg township, and is in jail at Sylva awaiting October court.

Reports, which vary, state that the girl resented a whipping given her by her mother, who objected to visits from the home of a girl neighbor where the young girl received the attentions of young men, and fired on her mother with a shotgun, blowing off the top of Mrs. Bryson's head. The girl is said to explain the affair as an accident, the gun falling to the floor and being accidentally discharged. Bob Bryson, the father, will make no statement.

There are eight other children besides Sallie and the youngest is two years of age. Just for the sake of sustaining our faith in human nature, let us all hope the young girl can prove that the shooting was accidental.

John C. Drewry Improves. The news from the Baltimore hospital where he has been treated recently indicates a slight improvement of John C. Drewry's condition and encourages his hope of returning home soon.

Mr. Drewry has been away from Raleigh many weeks in the hope of permanent benefit, but that hope has been abandoned. He was to have undergone an operation several weeks ago, but the surgeons concluded that it would not improve his condition. He is regaining by very slight daily increments some of his strength and will probably be back to Raleigh in early May. Since he has been away Mr. Drewry lost his daughter, Mrs. James G. Hanes, of Winston-Salem, and this has been against greater improvement.

HE SPAT.

At the depot a man sat on the lounge seat and spat upon the sidewalk. He spat not once, but thrice, and then many times more. He decorated the pavement. He looked as though he might be in a chewing match and was behind several points when he spat. After copious decoration Police-man Foushee walked up to him and said gently: "My friend, I really am authorized to arrest you and fine you $10, but this is evidently your first spat before you have spat it all at once. Go your way. Spat no more for if you do I'll fine you $10."

And the spitting man, with downcast eyes, begged a thousand pardons and promised to never again.

COMMENCEMENT TIME.

The days for the school commencement—the time when the small boy packs his hair down on his head and keeps it there through wetting it with water—is now drawing nigh. State are making preparation for the annual event. No one is pleased more over the prospects than the small boy who has trudged to school—or played hooky—for the last eight months. School commencement time is a great one in this State, and the parents of the school children will be glad to chance to view at closer quarters what their children have done the past school year.

Makes Things Lively. One thing about this bloom-in' baseball business it makes all the loafers in town hasten to the window to see how the score stands. That makes a crowd and of course a crowd always looks well on the streets. Something about beats the solemnity of a graveyard.

It was a Hummer. The New Bern Sun-Journal, receiving the first issue of The Record put out by the new men, has this to say of it: "The first issue of the Greensboro Record to come out bearing the name of its new owner, reached our desk Saturday and it was a real hummer. Colonel Fairbrother knows how to make a newspaper interesting and we are of the opinion that the residents of Greensboro and surrounding sections are going to find out mighty soon that they have one of the best newspapers in the South. It is now up to the citizens and business men of that city to make The Record possible by giving it their united support."

Hard Lines. That was a slat-jarring bit of news when it came that a wealthy merchant in Goldsboro had been found with five hundred pints of whiskey in his possession and a six months' sentence on the road was the result. His thought that wealthy men could violate with impunity, the prohibition law—but if the Goldsboro story is true, and it seems to be, there is no longer hope for wealth in monkeying with Old John. We had a sample case at Roxboro where six months were drawn by the man with the fancy vest who saw in Asheville where the law was no respecter of persons, and now it is appearing the same way in the east.

They Were Spilled. The Greenville Reflector prints this polite society item: "While ascending the hill known as Dead Man's Turn about two miles from Greenville on the Falkland road, Mr. Bob Greene ran into a buggy containing two colored people, and spilled the occupants on the road."

B. B. Bouldin in Town. Mr. B. B. Bouldin, of the revenue service, was in town this week. Mr. Bouldin is now located in Atlanta, has been there for three months and says he likes it all right, but feels good all ways when he gets to Greensboro. Mr. Bouldin is one of the best men in the service.

Death of Mr. J. L. Kersey. Mr. J. L. Kersey, a well known Reidsville citizen, died at the home of his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Nettie Kersey, on Arlington street, Sunday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. His death was due to heart leakage and the infirmities of old age.

The Chicken Business. The current issue of the Southern Field carries the following item of local interest: "A Reidsville, Rockingham county, last year shipped $30,000 worth of poultry and eggs."

Here is Hoping. Here is hoping that Editor Britton will be chosen as a delegate to St. Louis. He wants to go and should go.

HE WANTED BLOOD.

Came All the Way From Alabama to Kill His Girl.

Jim Eddins, a negro, has probably set a new example for jealous young men. It is alleged that Jim came all the way from Alabama to kill his girl. The Statesville Landmark reports the case as follows:

"Jim Eddins, colored, is in jail under $200 bond for carrying concealed weapons. It seems that Jim is enamored of one Louetta Owens, who lives with her sister, Berta Hagan, a few miles southeast of town. Jim came all the way from Alabama last week, it is charged, for the purpose of killing Louetta. He armed himself with pistol and gun and enough ammunition to start an insurrection in Mexico. Friday night he was on hand at a festival in Louetta's neighborhood, thinking that she would be there, and that he would have an opportunity of carrying out his purpose. His presence there was reported to Deputy Sheriff Gilbert and he went down about 4 o'clock Saturday morning and brought Eddins in. He was tried by 'Squire' Moore and was committed to jail in default of bond."

STREETER'S WORK.

Reports Progress With Carolina Children's Bureau. Mr. W. B. Streeter, who is superintendent of the Carolina children's bureau, was in Greensboro this week, accompanied by Mrs. Streeter. This bureau operates in North and South Carolina and looks especially after children needing medical and surgical attention. Mr. Streeter reports fine success in his work. In South Carolina he looks after orphans and homeless children.

THEY COME BACK.

The Oxford Ledger has the following to say about a former North Carolina man who has since achieved fame in the United States army: Col. H. P. Kingsbury, a retired U. S. Army officer residing in Washington, was guest of Mr. R. W. Lassiter three days last week. He returns to the scenes of his boyhood after an absence of forty-two years.

Col. Kingsbury was born where General Royster now lives, the house in which he saw the light of day now stands on Front street near Gilliam. He is the son of the late Russell H. Kingsbury, who did a mercantile business for many years at the intersection of Main and Littlejohn streets.

Col. Kingsbury was the first cadet to enter West Point Military Academy after the war. He received the appointment from the hands of General Grant soon after Johnson's surrender near Durham. The three big mechanics in Oxford during Col. Kingsbury's childhood days were his father, Russell Kingsbury, Herndon and Kite.

The Cost of It. The campaigns come high. What it costs to run for governor has been discussed. Lieutenant-Governor Daughtridge's managers and himself declare that they will stay within the $5,000. They insist that the recent appearance of representatives from his camp asking the State board of elections to hear them on an interpretation of the corrupt practices act which would date the beginning of campaign expenditures from the formal entrance of the race, should not be prejudicial to his belief that he can get out on the $5,000.

WANTS COUNTY FAIR.

Durham Gets Word That She Can Have Fair if She Tries.

Durham is putting in a bid for a county fair this year. An official of the Southern Railway is quoted on the proposition as follows: "Durham and Durham county can hold creditable fairs. Every citizen should support the movement," is a message wired to Secretary A. J. Colman, of the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday by Mr. M. V. Richards, agricultural and industrial commissioner of the Southern Railway, regarding the meeting Tuesday evening in the Lochmoor Hotel to boost the Durham county fair. The meeting is to be followed by a dinner to be held in the Malbourne Hotel dining room.

No Opposition. Dr. Joyner, State superintendent of public instruction, will have no opposition in his own party. Clarence R. Pugh, of Elizabeth City, is the Republican who will oppose Joyner.
