FOUR DOGS ARE IN THE SKY

Canes Venatici, or the Hunting Dogs, are not very conspicuous, says Scout Naturalist Bigelow in Boys' Life, the Boy Scouts' Magazine, for March.

In his fell jaw flames a star above all others with searing beams fiercer burning, called by mortals Sirius.

The Greater Dog literally depends for its livelihood upon its jaws because there are no other conspicuous stars anywhere in the dog.

EVERY LITTLE BOOK HELPS!

From a camp where troops are sent to embark for France, Mrs. Anna Steese Richardson writes for the May Woman's Home Companion of the boys' craving for books.

"Some of you think a book or a magazine is hardly worth giving. Every single piece of reading matter received in a camp is worth while.

"That book will make the round of the barracks to which it was carried, because of the personal message from the donor.

WIRELESS ON AN AEROPLANE. There is no more fascinating study in all wireless science than the application of radio transmission to aircraft.

An observer who goes aloft to spot the air at a height of from 4,000 to 6,000 feet. An aeroplane usually flies in a figure eight in order to keep his objective point where the shots are falling constantly in sight.

The marvelous accuracy of heavy gun fire when directed in this way is well illustrated in the case of the German cruiser Konigsberg, which was wrecked by British monitors.

During 1917 the British captured on all fronts a total of 115,000 prisoners and 781 guns.

PERMISSION IS GIVEN TO ERECT FOOD SIGN ON COLLEGE CAMPUS

Mayor Stafford announced today that he had let the contracts for the construction of the proposed food conservation signs on the government post office reservation and on the campus of the State Normal college.

Both of these signs will be as artistic as it is possible to make them and every effort will be exerted to prevent the signs being so conspicuous as to be unattractive.

These two signs will represent the direct result of the recent visit to Greensboro of W. W. Vellines, a representative of the food administration, who took the matter up with Mayor Stafford personally.

The major's job is something regarded as a sneer, and a humorous exchange hits off the idea by this story of an ambitious colored trooper.

"I niggers I've got to get a major's commission soon," said he, "cause I overheard de kumel talking to the adjutant about somebody and sayin': 'He won't do for a lieutenant, 'cause a lieutenant don't know nothin' and does everythin'; he won't do for a captain, 'cause a captain knows everythin' and doan do nothin'; but he suttinly would make a major, 'cause a major doan do nothin' and doan know nothin'.'"—Monetary Times, Toronto.

The Nation's Courier

With the whole Nation an armed camp whose outposts extend from ocean to ocean, the toll lines of the Bell System are the message bearers of the Nation's vast war organization.

Even at the fighting front the telephone has replaced the hard-riding courier of other days.

The Bell telephone message traverses the continent at its widest girth in one-fifteenth of a second.

Important military points and industrial centers hundreds of miles apart are in close contact with each other and with Washington.

More than three million miles of toll wire in the Bell System are the highways over which pass a million messages a day, by which the vast activities of the Nation are systematized and controlled.
