THAT TRUNK.

The Arrest of the Murderer in New York.

Edward Unger, of No. 23 Ridge street, is locked up at Police Headquarters in New York, on the charge of having killed the man whose headless and dismembered body was found in a trunk in the Adams Express office in Baltimore Wednesday. The name of the murdered man was August Bohl, Unger's partner in the sausage business, and he lived with Unger at No. 22 Ridge street, where the murder is alleged to have taken place. Unger has been positively identified by Henry Bense, saloon-keeper at No. 396 Kent avenue, Williamsburg, as the man who brought the trunk to his saloon last Saturday. The scene of the murder was the right-hand front room in the tenement No. 22 Ridge street. A butcher's saw, a hammer, a knife and a slungshot found on the premises were the weapons, it is supposed, with which the murder was committed.

The Fisheries Problem.

LONDON, January 28.—It the house of commons this afternoon Sir J. Ferguson, under secretary for foreign affairs stated that the government was already in conference with the United States through their representative, Minister Phelps, on the American fisheries question. The rights of the colonists he said would be strictly maintained but this would be done with every desire to conciliate the Americans and meet their views on the subject. Sir J. Ferguson further stated that a pacific dispatch concerning this vexed question had been received from the authorities at Washington which afforded material ground for the hope that a final amicable settlement would be reached.

He Struck the Old Woman with a Brick.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 29.—Anderson Perry, colored, implicated with John T. Ross and Albert Hawkins, for the murder of Emily Brown, Dec. 10 last, is now on trial in the Criminal Court without a jury. Ross, already convicted of murder in the first degree, testified today that Perry proposed the murder and the sale of the body to the university. He confessed that under the influence of Perry he struck the old woman with a brick, when she cried "good Lord," and fell to the floor. He swore that he took the body to the university and delivered it to Perry, who paid him for it.

Investigating a Millionaire's Will.

DETROIT, Jan. 29.—Francis Palms, the millionaire, left his property to his two children in trust to be held by them for their children. It was provided that whichever child sought to break the will would be deprived of all share in the estate. All seemed satisfied and the will was admitted to probate. To-day, however, the children jointly began suit against the grandchildren of the testator in order to have an explanation of certain parts of the will and to see if it is wholly legal.

A Female Burglar Shot.

BALTIMORE, Mb., Jan. 30.—Mary Jones, colored, was shot early this morning while she was entering a window of a wholesale grocery store. For some time goods had been missed, and last night a watch was set. In the darkness Mr. Rountree did not discover it was a woman until after he had fired. The wounds are not serious, though nearly a hundred shot have been taken from her side and shoulder.

A CHILD SWALLOWS A SNAKE.

Uncomfortable Experience of a Little French Girl on Long Island.

Celestine Bondion is a Frenchman and is employed as night watchman in F. Brett & Co.'s chemical works, on Atlantic avenue, Woodhaven, L. I. The works are situated just outside the Kings County line. His family, consisting of himself, wife and two daughters, live in a little frame house on the factory grounds, surrounded by a high wire fence.

The youngest daughter is Christina, an attractive child just twelve years of age. In the fall it has always been the custom to gather wild elder berries, out of which her mother would make wine. A year ago last fall, when she returned home after having spent the day gathering berries, she complained of pains in her stomach. Family remedies were applied in vain.

A physician was called whose prescriptions were useless, and the pain increased. Upon the advice of a neighbor the little sufferer was taken to a hospital in Eighth street New York, founded by Mrs. Oswald Ottenborfer. The physician who took charge of the case tried a number of experiments that proved of no avail. Then he ordered the girl to fast for three consecutive days. The fast ended on Tuesday last, and when Christina went to the hospital she told the doctor the pains had increased and that she suffered from choking sensation. The doctor compelled her to open her mouth wide while he slapped her violently on the back. She commenced to gag, and when she did the doctor forced a pair of pincers down her throat and drew forth a snake of the garterspecies that measured nearly six inches in length.

At the sight of her tormentor the young girl fainted, but was soon restored and removed to her home. She was seen there Thursday afternoon by a reporter.

The theory of the members of the family is that the girl had swallowed the snake when very small, when hastily eating a handful of berries. Christina admitted, however, to the reporter that while in the woods frequently drank from a brook, and in doing this generally laid down on her stomach, with her head over the embankment, and sucked the water through her lips. It is more than probable in this way the reptile slipped down her throat. She has fully recovered and no ill affects are expected.—N. Y. World.

THE MINISTER LOOKS FOR WAR.

The Chances Are in Favor of Hostilities at an Early Date.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The interest of the House of Commons centred today in the letter in which Lord Salisbury accepted Lord Randolph's resignation. It was dated the 22d of December. In it Lord Salisbury said: "The outlook on the Continent is so very black that it is not too much to say that the chances are in favor of a war at an early date. When once it has broken out we will not be secure from being involved. Therefore we cannot accept the responsibility of refusing supplies which the War and Navy Ministers have declared necessary."

Suicide of an Officer.

LEAVENWORTH, Kansas, January 29.—Lieutenant Peter Campbell, attending the school of application at Fort Leavenworth, committed suicide yesterday morning by shooting himself in the head. The cause assigned for the deed was that he had failed to attend to some of his official duties, and that he had been ordered to appear before a court martial.

WISDOM CONDENSED.

Small and steady gain give competency with tranquility of mind.

Your character cannot be essentially injured except by your own acts.

The selfish man has the most presence of mind. He never forgoes himself.

Truth may be defined as the shortest possible distance from one point to another.

Conscience is the great ledger-book in which all our offences are written and registered.

A sound discretion is not so much indicated by never making a mistake as by never repeating it.

Never borrow trouble. Of course not, there is always somebody that will give you all you want.

When you haven't any money—never mind. This is philosophy. Hurry around and earn some. This is common.

Money and time are the heaviest burdens of life, and the unhappiest of all mortals are those who have more of either than they know how to use.

Points and Po'inters.

Be gentle in manners, brave in deed. True politeness is perfect ease and freedom.

A lady should not allow a gentleman to pay her buss or car fare, unless he is a relative.

The small doilies are merely laid on or under the finger bowl to be admired, not used.

The expressions "lady friend" and "gentleman friend" are not in good taste and should never be used.

It is not considered good form to turn tea into a saucer,—that fashion went out a hundred years ago.

A TEXAS HOTEL.

Then there is the genius who keeps a hotel—a squat, bow-legged, red-headed, bull-necked terror of the Llano, who never washes his face, combs his hair or changes his shirt, and has no use for a man who does. Let me describe this semi-al-fresco "hostelry," with all its appurtenances. A large story-and-a-half shanty that would disgrace Kerry Patch, which contains the office, wash-room, sitting-room, parlor and nursery, all in one magnificent room, fully 12x12 feet, with a ceiling against which a six-footer is in danger of receiving a cracked skull if he rises suddenly. Here, in the most fraternal manner, are congregated around a diminutive stove, landlord, landlady (equipped with baby, snuff-bottle and snuff-stick), half a dozen various sized, dirty, unkempt, unlicked cubs (they run to boys principally), progeny of the landlord and landlady, some half a dozen cowboys in leather breeches and spurs, redolent with the intoxicating aroma of cows, filth and West Texas whisky—which latter is by far the loudest and most offensive. Several regular boarders and a forlorn traveling man or two complete the circle, all anxiously awaiting the signal to enter the banqueting-hall.—From a Late Abilene Letter.

Denmark spends $55,000 annually for agricultural teaching. There are dairy schools and schools in agriculture. Improved methods are taken up by every Dane, from the King down to the humblest farmer. The consequence is that this little, cold, barren country is able to export large numbers of excellent cattle, quantities of farm and dairy produce, while the producers are thriving and comfortable.

After his success in London Mr. Edward Hine is now astonishing Boston with his lecture showing that Britons and Americans of Saxon blood are descended from the lost Ten Tribes, and he also proposes to prove to his satisfaction that Queen Victoria is directly descended from King David.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Truthful Cat Story.

"One night last summer, after midnight, when all the family were asleep, Taffy ran from the door of one bedroom to another crying and mewing violently; evidently something was the matter. My mother opened her door, and I opened mine, to wonder what was wrong. As soon as the cat saw us she ran a few steps forward and then back, as if urging us to follow her. She guided us first down the stairs and then through the kitchen to the door at the head of the stairs leading to the cellar. Upon our opening it we discovered to our great surprise that the outside cellar-door, at the foot of the steps, had been carelessly left wide open by the servants, thus allowing free ingress if any evil disposed person chose to avail himself of it. I closed the door and I looked it, whereupon Taffy quietly returned to her bed and slept peacefully the rest of the night."—Christian Union.
