A DIAMOND ROBBERY. Two Experts Relieve a Chicago Sporting Man.

ST. LOUIS, March 2 .- Sig. Cohn, a well-known Chicago sporting man, landed at the Union Depot yesterday morning from Memphis with the thoroughly cleaned out. He reported at the police headquarters that which he had secreted in his vest under the pillow of his berth. The articles lost were four pair of diamond ear-rings, one pair tine carat, the others seven and others three carat, three diamond rings, one sapphire and diamond ring, and several valuable diamond, ruby and pearl breast pins, the total value of which he estimated at $2,000, besides $20 in change. The haul is supposed to have been made by two slick fellows who entered the car at Memphis with two excursion tickets sold at Detroit, Mich., via Chicago and St. M. Howard by C. A. Warren, agent only six are known to have escaped. of the Union ticket office, Detroit. The men left the train somewhere between Montesano Springs and Carondelet. The detectives have good descriptions of the men and will get them if they put in an appearance. Cohn, who is a racing man, says that the men must have followed him, as he exhibited the diamonds to the liberals are not voting. In addition to the above position recommended by the statement of Cardinal Gibbons, the Primate treats the alarmist theories respecting the Knights of Labor as puerile, and says that nearly onethird of the men belonging to the organization are Roman Catholics. In Canada the case is different. Cardinal Gibbous further says he considers the organization of the Knights of Labor in the United States not only harmless, but that it will possibly be beneficial as assisting in the eventual settlement of the great question of the proper relations between labor and capital.

THE HAMPTON FAMILY.

Correspondence of the Naws.

I accidentally ran against Samuel H. Hampton, yesterday. I learned from him some facts about himself and the Hamptons which may be of interest. He is a resident of Guilford county. In conversation he said that his grandfather came from Pennsylvania and settled in old Stokes county, His father's name was Mar-tin H. He was born in 1800. He was a manufacturer of guns and tobacco, for which he found a market in Georgia, and as a little boy, Samuel accompanied his father on his journeys into that State. On one of these journeys, in 1839, Samuel remained

ETHICAL LESSONS.

Deductions fro.n Ancient History Applied to Modern Life.

ST. LOUIS, Mar. 3: - The course of public lectures under the auspices of the Post-Graduate Society of the St. Louis University opened most favorably last night at Pickwick. Rev. Thomas Hughes, S. J., kept a large, intelligent and fashionable audience entranced listening to his discourse on "Human History and its Ethical Lessons." After a brilliant introduction, he described the moral of ethical faculty within man, concluding: "It is said that the heart which goeth two ways doth not prosper. No doubt, if our race has not at all times prospered, it is because its heart has sometimes gone two ways."

Dwelling briefly on prehistoric times, he said:

"Take note of the meaning of this term. There is such a state of things, we know, as barbarism. Now, barbarism can result any day from two component factors--human beings to be come barbarous and a desert land to make them so. The more luxurious has been the civilization of those human beings before the more utterly incompetent will they be found to provide for themselves when reduced to destitution; and while they themselves sink into misery their children are born and bred into barbarism. Now, the same factors go to make up the prehistoric." In later times evidences of this were found at the Cape of Good Hope, Iceland, Britain, Gaul, parts of Germany, etc.

Turning to the more refined, he took Babylon, Greece and Rome, from which to point morals. Babylon's only legacy to the country about was bricks and dust. Greece he treated as an example of intellectual grandeur; Rome as one of national character. But Rome's families were extinguished by domestic vice. As a matter of fact, she was permeated with slavery from the highest to the lowest. Yet the reverend lecturer spoke kindly of many of the ancient philosophers, but the world remained heathen, and, though some tried to live aright, there was no recognized society for moral reformation. He dwelt on all Christianity had done, and spoke severely of the unfortunate discord of the sixteenth century, which had split Christendom into tragments, and left nations armed to the teeth against each other in the supposed reign of universal peace.

A Meal for a Cent !

NEW YORK, March 2 .- The Board of Aldermen to-day, by a vote of 17 to 3. passed over Mayor Hewitt's veto the ordinance permitting Mrs. La Madrid, a benevolent woman, to erect booths in the streets for the purpose of furnishing meals to the poor at the rate of one cent for each article ot food.

A Visit to the "Model Home."

[Communicated.] We chanced to visit that institution on Wednesday, March 2, and found the trip a pleasant one. We were cor: as his courier, and acted in that cadially met by Mrs. S. D. Snow, who is in charge of this school, and her whole heart and soul seem to be wrapped up in the work of training the young ladies for the great duties that await them. We were next taken through the building, visiting every room, which we of the late war, and now a Senator in found nicely kept and neatly arranged. We learned that instead of each young lady taking care of her own room that Miss. A. attends to room No. 2 which is Miss B's room, and Miss A stays in room No. I, which is attended to by Miss B, and so on through the school, thus making it seem more like housekeeping for one's own self than anybody else. Here the ladies who attend Bennett Seminary are getting a training which will fit them for future usefulness and enable them to fill the best paying places. Both races seriously need more at four o'clock. of these schools that educate the hands as well as the heads.

Many of our triends have no conception as to the amount of good work this "Kent Home," which is its proper name, given it by Mrs. Kent, of Glennsville, N.Y. This lady gave for the erection one thousand dollars, hence its name. The money was given by different societies and individuals at the North, and furnished very nearly in the same way. God will bless our benelactors for the untold effort put forth by them for our elevation and progress. Let our friends turn out occasionally, and see the good that is being done in the "City of Flowers," Go and see some of their fancy-father was killed by the running away of his team. He was well boro, for he moved from Stokes into our county and settled in what is known to this day as Deep River settlement.

Samuel was a member of the Second North Carolina cavalry in the late war. Dr. B. L. Cole was captain of Co. F., to which company he belonged. Gen. Wade Hampton's attention was directed to the dextrous use of the saber by Samuel and asked who he was. He was informed that he was a namesake of his, and had him called to him. They compared family notes and the General informed Samuel that he and himself were descendants of the same progenitors. Three brothers came to this country from Ireland-two settled in Pennsylvania and one in South Carolina, and that, probably, from these three men descended all the Hamptons in the United States. Samuel was detailed by the General pacity four months, when he was taken sick.

Senator Hampton is the third general bearing the name of Wade. First, he of revolutionary fame; second, he of the war of 1812; third, he Congress.

The given name of Wade is prevalent in all the branches of the family, which would indicate that it was used anterior to the age of the Senator's grandfather. OLD MAN.
