LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 10 .-Andrew Hedgepath has been indicted for the murder of George Watkins. The murder occurred some weeks ago. Hedgepeth lived with Watkins and his wife on a farm near Yellville. He fell in love with Mrs. Watkins and she reciprocated his passion. Hedgepeth and Watkins went to town together the other day, and Watkins has not been seen since. Mrs. Watkins soon after disappeared, was traced to Fayetteville and arrested. She had driven a team of horses over lonely roads hundreds of miles, camping out at night to avoid observation, accompanied only by a twelve-year old boy. She confessed Hedgepeth had killed her husband and intended marrying her. He was arrested just as he was preparing to leave the country. He denies the woman's allegations. Watkins' body has not been found, and the case against Hedgepeth becomes unique, the point being raised in his behalf that until the body is discovered guilt can not be established.

Buggy Bacon.

As several have made inquiries as to how to prevent my bacon from becoming buggy, I will state that I commence fattening my hogs about the first of September and kill them a of them. little before Christmas, so I can cure it good by the first of March. I then take it down and immerse each piece n boiling water; then take two ounds of black pepper finely ground, and pour on it in a tray three pints of good apple vinegar, stir it up together and apply it to all the fleshy parts of the pieces; lay it on a bench, skin lown, and let the paste juice soak in. all that it will. Then, after a short He is short in his accounts, and is while, hang it up, and you need not fear the bugs; no need of sacks of any kind. It would be a good idea to have a smoke made, when the weather is damp, at least once a week, or take it out and sun it occasionally, to prevent mould. Our bacon has been full of bugs every year until we tried this remedy, and, besides, the vine-

Beecher's sermons. They breathe the truest and purest spirit of religion; they are models of pulpit oratory, and they are proofs that the subject which is nearest to the interest of mankind can be put to nobler causes than the chloroforming of congregations. Mr. Beecher has done more than any other man, perhaps, to inspire religion with the progressive spirit of the nineteenth century and make it keep step with the march of intellectual achievement and the general growth of men's charities and impulses. It is such men as Beecher that persuade religious communities to progress to something better than witch-burning when the spirit of the time progresses from ox wagons to stage-coaches, and by and by to steamboats, and persuade such communities to progress beyond the indorsing of slavery with their Bibles when the spirit of the time progresses to the subordination of the steamboat to the railroad and the discarding of pony expresses for the telegraph. He has done as much as any man to keep the people from reading their Bibles by the interpretations of the Eighteenth century while they are living far along in the Nineteenth. His name will live. His deeds will honor his memory. He has set his mark upon his epoch, and years hence. when the people turn over the bibles and bundles of this generation's ideas, they will find "H. W. B." stenciled on a good many
