

GREENSBORO ALMANAC.—Sun rises 4:25. Sun sets 7:30. Moon sets 2:31.

—Old newspapers for sale at this office at 25 cents per hundred.

—Capitalists who wish to make investments in North Carolina lands, are invited to correspond with the editor of the MORNING NEWS.

—Don't fail to see "M'Liss" to-night. —Go early to Porter & Tate's Drug Store and reserve your seats for M'Liss to-night.

—Mrs. Ham C. Jones of Charlotte, is visiting Mrs. W. L. Callum, on Church street.

—The Ladies Missionary Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church will meet in the lecture room this afternoon at the usual hour.

—The lawn party which was to have been held last night at the residence of Mr. A. L. Rankin, was postponed to Monday night next.

—Important, if true! Colored and black stockings, if washed before wearing at all, in water in which has been put a little beef's gall, will not fade or change color by wearing or washing.

—So far as known, North Carolina leads the South in advanced crops this season, and Northampton county leads the State, Mr. A. J. Joyner having sent the News-Observer, on the 28th ult., a full grown bloom taken from his present crop of cotton.

—Mr. Will Hayes, one of Messrs. J. W. Scott & Co.'s most popular salesmen, was united in marriage last night to Miss Anna Pugh, one of Greensboro's fairest daughters. The marriage took place at the residence of the bride's father, on Church street, in —The Southerner says that Tarboro is yet in its swaddling clothes, but that it will add more to its growth within the next five years than it has in a hundred years past. The building of a cotton factory in the near future is an assured fact.

—The agent of the Brush Electric Light Company canvassed the city yesterday to ascertain whether or not it would pay them to establish a plant here. We understand that sufficient number of subscribers were secured and that the company will furnish the light by the first of September next.

—A change in the schedule on the North Carolina division of the R. & D. R. R. took place Sunday last. The passenger train from this city leaves at 9.50 a. m. and reaches Raleigh at 2.10 p. m. It remains there five minutes, passes the other train at Garner's, and reaches Goldsboro at 4.30 p. m. The down train leaves Goldsboro at 12.30 p. m., reaches Raleigh at 2.50 p. m. and leaves as now at 5.30 p. m.

—Yesterday morning in the office of the Register of Deeds, a happy marriage was consummated, the contracting parties being Mr. David Hill and Mrs. Sophia Scott, of Monroe township. The knot was tied by W. J. Ector, Esq., after the most approved style, and the happy bride groom, with his handsome, blushing bride upon his arm, left the room for home followed by the best wishes of all the court house boys. THE MORNING NEWS add its benediction.

—The Greensboro Cornet Band has about twelve hundred dollars invested in instruments, uniforms, and music, and by filling engagements, giving concerts, &c. &c., have paid it all, except ninety dollars and that is wanted by the parties to whom it is due, and in order to raise that amount they have secured the talented actress, Miss Cora Van Tassel, with her superb Dramatic Company to give two performances in Benbow Hall, beginning on Friday night. Let everybody turn out and assist the Band. The prices are in reach of all; only 15, 25 and 35c.

—We find the following bit of history in the Raleigh News and Observer. In 1844 there was a wonderful spirited contest in our state for the office of Governor. The contestants were Wm. A. Graham, once of Lincoln county, then of Orange, and Col. Michael Hoke, of Lincoln, both lawyers in the prime of life—able and ambitious, high-toned and courteous. The "oldest inhabitant" said there never had been such speaking. The Whigs vowed that their champion, Graham, was the best orator. The Democrats with equal ardor declared for Hoke. Graham was the victor, but Hoke's praises were in the mouths of all. Col. Hoke died the same year at the early age of 37, from malaria contracted during the campaign in the eastern part of the State in the heat of June and July, the election then being in August. No state has ever had nobler citizens than Wm. A. Graham and Michael Hoke. Both leave worthy children, already eminent for talent and virtue.

Another coincidence: Bishop Wm. M. Green, of Mississippi and Mr. J. DeBerniere Hooper were professors for years together in the University of North Carolina. They were next door neighbors and most intimate friends. Nearly forty years ago they separated, the former becoming bishop of Mississippi, the latter, after teaching school in various parts of the State, resuming his place as professor in the University.

Tablets to the memory of all these now adjoin one another in Memorial Hall.

The inscription on the tablet to Bishop Green was composed by himself. It was found in his writing desk after his death.

—We direct attention to the professional card of Dr. W. H. Wakefield which appears in this paper for the first time. We are glad to see that the Physicians are beginning to use printers' ink. It is proper that they should. In a little country village, where everybody is supposed to know everybody else, it is considered "unprofessional" for a doctor to print his card, in cities it is not so considered. The papers should contain professional cards for the benefit of strangers who may be stopping in the city, if for no other reason.

SOUTHERN GOODS IN THE LEAD.

We learn from the Baltimore Sun that, at the recent opening of bids for supplies for the National Home of Disabled Volunteer Soldiers at Hartford, Conn., the contract for about 23,000 yards of blue cloth and sky-blue kersey was awarded to the Liberty (Va.) Woolen Mills over a large number of New England and other competitors. The board of managers are all Northern men, and if they had any individual preference it was not, of course, in the direction of the Virginia manufacturers. The result of this award is a high compliment to the successful bidders, as well as an incentive to other Southern manufacturers.

In view of the above facts, and when it is remembered that the South is now shipping iron and steel to the North, can there longer be a doubt as to the grand future of the South. Eastern capitalists will soon see it to their interests to invest their money in Southern manufactures.

BEN BUTLER.

Editor Morning News:—Allow me to correct your editorial note in this morning's News in which you make Ben Butler say: "Make a bargain about fees, and be sure to do this early and get your pay early." Ben, in his address to the young lawyers of Boston—after saying: "If you know nothing about the circumstance (referring to his client's case) you are like an ass jumping around in a tanyard and not knowing where the pits are." He continues—"Again, never bargain with your clients; get your fees, and get them early." ZIF.

SOCIAL ETIQUETTE.

Civility has been likened to an air cushion—possessing no tangible substance, yet serving to ease the jolts we encounter in passing through life. To say that a person is civil does not imply that he is agreeable, yet civility is the next step to being agreeable. While wonders may be accomplished by being civil and agreeable, nothing can be gained by incivility. Manners make the man or woman. The presence of an agreeable person is like a ray of sunshine that warms everything on which it falls, while a disagreeable person will chill the pleasantest company ever assembled, and it is one of those mysteries that can never be solved why such a one is permitted to flourish.

Room Enough for All. Mr. D. E. Thomas' old building, which was removed from the corner near the Market and put at the lower end of the long building opposite the Star Warehouse, has been nicely fitted up for Mr. S. B. Bullock, who has made some notoriety for keeping good eatables. Hereafter this house will be called the "National Hotel." Several rooms are furnished for boarders to sleep in and after this date ready meals can be had at all hours. Mr. N. B. Short, who cooked so long for Capt. Hawkins' eating house, has been employed to do the cooking, he needs no recommendation. m5 1m
