The London critics are much more cordial in their treatment of Mrs. James Brown Potter than they were after her initial performance. Whether she will make a good actress or not is still undetermined, but it is very plain that she is a woman of most admirable courage and perseverance.

A. F. Heard, of Ipswich, Mass., who has been made Secretary Endicott's private secretary, is said to be a man of fine education. He has travelled and studied extensively. He has been an intimate friend of Mr. Endicott for some years. His appointment leads to the conclusion that the Secretary of War has no immediate intention of resigning his present position.

When Attorney-General reached his office on Monday morning he was surprised that no effort has been made towards draping the Department of Justice as a tribute to the memory of the late Gen. Speed. Attorney-General in President Lincoln's Cabinet. Mr. Garland gave the Chief Clerk a very sharp lecture, and by 11 o'clock the building was appropriately draped.

A Washington correspondent says that ever since the present Administration came into power Adjt.-Gen. Drum has been practically in charge of the War Department. He has unbounded influence over Secretary Endicott and has much more actual power than Gen. Sheridan. "Practically Gen. Sheridan has been placed in the position of seeing his orders overruled by those of his chief of staff.

The King of Italy is well disposed towards Americans. He has just knighted Dr. Reynolds, an examiner in the Pension Office at Washington. The honor is due to Dr. Reynolds' researches in relation to the aborigines of the Potomac and Shenandoah valleys. Just why these researches should command the attention of King Humbert is not apparent. Of all Americans it would seem as though Senator Frye were most entitled to recognition from the Italian sovereign.

Jim Brownlow's Gallant Deed.

"I remember a splendid feat of arms," said an old Senator to-day. "At the time Gen. Stoneman made his awful fiasco while on a raid inside of the Confederate lines, and surrendered his entire outfit, including himself, to a force inferior in numbers, made up principally of the bellyhock, sassafras, ginseng, and hoop-hole forces under the command of the Falstaff of the Rebellion—Howell Cobb—there was performed a feat of arms by a young soldier of East Tennessee which was unparalleled in the history of the war on either side, and one that called forth the applause of even Longstreet and the veterans he commanded. Finding himself, as he supposed, entirely surrounded by a superior force, Stoneman determined to surrender, though, for form's sake, he concluded to hold a council with his regiment and brigade commanders. Among those commanding a regiment in Stoneman's force was young Jim Brownlow, son of Gov. Brownlow, the fighting parson. When young Brownlow appeared before his commander, being the youngest regimental commander present, Gen. Stoneman informed him that he intended to surrender, and asked him what he thought of it. Young Brownlow objected, and said there was no necessity for it. He was overruled, however, and then he demanded the privilege of cutting his way out with his regiment, if he could, for he and his men knew that if they were captured they could expect no mercy, for they would be treated as traitors to the South. However, he was told to cut his way out if he could. Sweeping the Rebel circle with his field-glass he thought he could detect a weak place in it at one point. Riding up to the head of his regiment he announced to his men that they must either cut their way out or starve to death in a Rebel prison, and asked them to decide at once what they would do. With a shout they demanded to be led against the foe. Ordering his men to draw sabres and follow him, like a thunderbolt the thousand mountaineers hurled themselves straight at the weak spot; but they were repulsed. Again they tried it, and again they were hurled back. Forming his men again for the third time, the fearless young leader told them that there must be no more receding; that they must get out or die. Once more the charge was sounded, and straight as an arrow young Brownlow hurled himself and his men at the Rebel line and broke it as a whirlwind. Longstreet came up just as the first charge was repulsed, and saw the whole affair from beginning to finish. He asked who the Union leader was, and was told. Then he inquired if Col. Brownlow had been educated at West Point. He was answered in the negative, when he said: "That young man is a natural soldier, and that is the finest feat of arms I ever witnessed. Any regiment may break through an encircling line on the first charge and thus get away, but to be repulsed twice and still persevere, and succeed in the third effort, is a feat almost unparalleled in the history of war." The story of that day's gallant action will be remembered and rehearsed in the mountains of East Tennessee as long as the memory of the great Rebellion shall be preserved among men. Col. Brownlow was a chip off the old block, sure."—Washington Letter in Indianapolis Journal.

Prince of After-Dinner Speakers.

There is not a better-known man in New York than Chauncey M. Depew, the President of the New York Central. He is the best after dinner speaker in the country, and of course is in demand on all sorts of occasions. It is said that he is always full of funny stories, and has never been known to repeat one or tell one that has ever been heard before. Where he gets his stock is a mystery. From the last of November to the first of March is the "dinner season" at Delmonico's, and there is rarely a night in all this time that Mr. Depew is not there. "He averages about four invitations a day, and generally accepts one. Everybody around Delmonico's knows him, and he always shakes hands and calls by name all the waiters. He times himself so as to get into the banquet hall just as the oysters are being served, and never leaves until the thing is over. The waiters all know his favorite brands of wine, and he finds the bottles at his side without having to order them. When he starts in on his speech he pays a handsome compliment to those present, and leads off with a funny story and keeps the thing up until he sits down. While he is talking he forgets everything else, and his constant worry is that he may have spoken too long. When he leaves the dining-room he always asks the head waiter if any other dinners are going on in the building, and then drops a quarter, always a quarter—into the little cup in the coat-room. As he passes out he leaves the cigar which he has chewed all through the speeches, but has not lighted, and buttoning up his great coat, hails a Fifth Avenue stage. One of the best stories told by this popular railroad president is a good joke on himself. The other day he got a letter from some weary traveler saying that he had read with interest a great many of Mr. Depew's after-dinner speeches of late. "And," continued the letter, "I have a good deal of curiosity to hear what you would have to say after eating a dinner at the railroad restaurant at Troy."—Cor. Springfield Republican.

Your Children Are constantly exposed to danger from Colds, Whooping Cough, Croup, and diseases peculiar to the throat and lungs. For such ailments, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, promptly administered, affords speedy relief and cure.

As a remedy for Whooping Cough, with which many of our children were afflicted, we used, during the past winter, with much satisfaction, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. For this affection, we consider this preparation the most efficacious of all the medicines which have come to our knowledge. —Mary Parkhurst, Preceptress, Home for Little Wanderers, Doncaster, Md.

My children have been peculiarly subject to attacks of Croup, and I failed to find any effective remedy until I commenced administering Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. This preparation relieves the difficulty of breathing and invariably cures the complaint. —David G. Starks, Chatham, Columbia Co., N. Y.

I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for many years, and have found it especially valuable in Whooping Cough. This medicine allays all irritation, prevents inflammation from extending to the lungs, and quickly subdues any tendency to Lung Complaint. —J. B. Wellington, Plainville, Mich.

I find no medicine so effective, for Croup and Whooping Cough, as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It was the means of saving the life of my little boy, only six months old, carrying him safely through the worst case of Whooping Cough I ever saw. —Jane Malone, Piney Flats, Tenn.

It Saved My Life!

Is a common expression of a man from those who have realized by personal use, the curative powers of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. "I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I believe as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died from lung troubles." —E. Dragoon, Palestine, Tex.

About six months ago I had a hemorrhage of the lungs, which was cured by a distressing cough, which was cured by a course of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, without obtaining relief from any other medicine. I have since advised me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I did so, and am happy to say it helped me at once. By continuing this medicine I cured my cough, and am satisfied, saved my life. Colburn, 18 Second Ave., N. Y.

I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for over a year, and should have been in bed long ago, had it not been for this medicine. I have a cough of a chronic nature, for which I had almost given up, finding no relief from any other medicine. Windsor, Vermont.

No Whiskey!

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is one of the very few tonic medicines that are not composed mostly of alcohol or whiskey, thus becoming a natural source of intense refreshment, promoting a desire for food.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is guaranteed to be a non-intoxicating stimulant, and it will, in nearly every case, take the place of all liquor, and at the same time absolutely kill the desire for whiskey and other intoxicating beverages.

Rev. G. W. RICE, editor of the American Christian Review, says of Brown's Iron Bitters:

Chas. O., Nov. 16, 1851. Gents—The foolish wasting of vital force in business, pleasure, and vicious indulgence, and our people, makes your preparation a necessity, and if applied, will save hundreds who resort to saloons for temporary recuperation.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS has been thoroughly tested for dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, weakness, debility, overwork, rheumatism, neuralgia, consumption, liver complaints, kidney troubles, &c., and it never fails to render speedy and permanent relief.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles, $5.
