George P. Kimball, President o the Law and Order League, undertook the prosecution, but Judge Gould said that he would hear no testimony, since the picturers were in court and could be seen for themselves. The learned Judge then decended from his desk and made a pilgrimage about the room and carefully inspected each picture with evident appreciation. After he had seen the last one he complimented the taste of the art dealer and dismissed the case.

TOLEDO, O., July 12 .- Oilmen are excited to-night over the reports of a young oil volcano totally unlike any. thing in the history of oil wells. The gusher is located in Wood county and only a few miles from this city. Reports indicate that the oil is flowing in small rivers and flooding the surrounding county. Vast pools of oil are being formed, and the flow is still undiminished. The gusher is owned by the Nandergrifts, of Jamestown, N. Y., and | wedding. Pittsburg, who have been doing their utmost to keep the matter quiet. When the well was plugged the casing sixty feet in length, was blown out with terriffic force, smashing the derrick. For three days it has been impossible to get in the vicinity of the well. Stones, rocks and large quantities of mud are burled long distances. The surface of the earth about the mouth of the well has been excavated for rods in diameter, and the derrick lies buried beneath the debris. The well is beyond all control. It is located near the Toledo, Columbus and Southern track, half way between Cygnet and Mermill. Oilmen are hurrying to the new country, which has just been opened, and it is leared that the discovery will force the price of Ohio cil down below 20 cents per barrel. It is impossible to estimate the amount of the flow of the oil.
