THE LATEST NEWS.

Extraordinary Case of Religious Frenzy and Superstition in Spain.

PARIS, July 22.—A very extraordinary case is about to come before the high tribunal of Malaga. A few months ago, a woman belonging to the village of Torrox declared that the Virgin Mary had appeared to her and had ordered her to preach a new gospel for the salvation of mankind, as the end of the world was at hand. The woman's story seems to have been believed without hesitation, and soon the whole village was in a state of religious frenzy. The woman preached in favor of the abandonment of earthly possessions, and advocated a return to the mode of life and habits of primitive man. During the height of the frenzy a large fire was lighted in the village, into which the converts to this fantastic superstition threw their valuables, furniture and clothes, men, women and children dancing and shouting around the fire in a state of complete nudity. Warned of what was going on, the local gendarmerie arrived only just in time to save the infants from being thrown into the fire by their frenzied mothers, and to prevent the houses of the village from being set on fire.

Chinatown's Joss House Burned.

NEW YORK, July 24. About 2 o'clock yesterday morning the Chinese Joss house, situated on the third floor of No. 202 Chatham street, caught fire and in less than half an hour the entire three floors above the Chinese grocery on the first floor were gutted. The loss on the Joss house alone was $3,500, partly insured. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The furniture and sacrificial ornaments which were imported only a few months ago from Hong Kong, were entirely consumed. The gorgeous and fantastical Joss who set upon a beautiful throne of cloth of gold was burned in the fire. This caused many of the more devout and superstitious celestials to say that Joss has suddenly got mad at the New York Chinamen, because they refused to follow the glorious teachings of Confucius and Buddha. Some Chinese Joss worshippers are all ready thinking seriously of using American "Josses" hereafter instead of imported ones from China. They have an idea that the American Joss is much cheaper, if not much more honest. In the meantime Chinatown is "Jossless."

Missing Jessie Morse Returns.

BLACKSTONE, Mass., July 23.—Jessie Morse, the adopted daughter of Horace S. Morse, whose disappearance one morning some weeks ago caused such a sensation, and who was traced to Hartford and supposed to have gone to New York or Brooklyn, came home yesterday. She says she has been in the neighborhood of Philadelphia, where she was provided with everything to make her comfortable by friends, and that her going away and returning were of her own free will.

An Outside Report from Key West.

AUSTIN, Tex., July 24. State Health Officer Rutherford is here and says the yellow fever at Key West is of the most malignant type and spreading. Its appearance is only in the streets, the doctor thinks bodes no good for New Orleans and the Mississippi Valley, and he says the most rigid quarantine should be established against the infected ports.

Long ago the old lumbering stage-coach was superseded by the railroad, and now electricity has taken its place. So the world moves. The old doctors bled and blistered for almost every disease. Later on, calomel became the universal remedy. At the present day, an alternative is demanded and everybody is using Ayer's Sarsaparilla, that being the basis of the kind and almost a certain cure in the range of its curative properties. This medicine cause to stay.

The demand for Tar Heel Liniment is increasing. Use it—get well—be happy.

HOUSTON & BRO.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE FOR GREENSBORO.

From the Manufacturer's Record.

Findlay, Ohio, is a town that is said to be the best advertised place in America. In one day recently the corner-stones of about one dozen great iron, glass and kindred enterprises were laid. What made Findlay known and thus brought this great prosperity. A correspondent tells the story. He says:

"The town has a Chamber of Commerce building, which is nicely furnished, and in which the enterprising citizens meet to discuss all matters relating to the pushing of the town. The secretary of the board, one of the pleasantest of fellows, is what might be called a professional town boomer. He is paid a salary of $5,000 a year by the chamber to take general charge of the interests of the town. He sees that strangers see all of its advantages, introduces them to the citizens, gives information to manufacturers and devotes his whole time to schemes in the interest of the place. He can tell you everything you want to know, and it is surprising how every objection you advance is met with a good reason for being considered just the contrary. This man in Findlay's instance is an able and efficient worker. He has traveled all over the world, and I imagine from his talk with me he has been engaged in booming other towns before the Findlay was discovered. He is full of personal magnetism and is well educated. He attends well to the newspaper correspondents, and rival towns charge that some of the news published in the various newspapers about Findlay was paid for in hard cash by this Chamber of Commerce. I doubt not that the fact that I was referred to in the Findlay papers as a "disinterested" writer who had come to look at Findlay" was dictated by him, and it was due him largely that the great celebration of several weeks ago was so much of a success. To show the enterprise of Findlay, the town council voted $13,000 to pay the expenses of this celebration and an additional $7,000 was subscribed by the citizens. The citizens of Findlay seem satisfied with their venture, and say that the advertising they got was worth at least $200,000."

It is needless to say that it pays Findlay's business to spend money thus freely, for it is returned to them many fold.

The Advertiser, of Montgomery, Ala., in calling attention to the necessity of making known the advantages of that town, says:

"Montgomery has sufficiently realized that simply to sit down and wait for her natural and acquired advantages and resources to bring her great industries, will result in nothing being done. The facts of her progress detailed elsewhere sufficiently prove that.

But we deem this not a bad time to say a word of one point in which Montgomery is behind. She does not advertise herself. Attention of the outside world is directed now more especially to North Alabama, and hundreds and even thousands of people come to Alabama without having it impressed on them that there is such a place as Montgomery. This ought not to be. Montgomery needs to spend at least $100,000 in advertising, so that something about Montgomery starts the public in the face from every paper, every hotel table, every car seat, every blank wall, and that every mail that leaves the city shall be loaded with special Montgomery literature.

Be lively. Send out a man to stick up maps and posters. Scatter newspapers with special articles and special pamphlets throughout the whole country. It will pay."

It will indeed pay—it will pay not simply Montgomery, but every town that will follow this advice—provided the actual advantages of the place are such as to satisfy the visitors who are drawn there by the means suggested.

The soothing and restorative efforts of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral are realized in all cases of colds, coughs, throat or lung troubles, while its powerful healing qualities are shown in the most serious pulmonary disorders.

THE BOARD AND THE LICENSE QUESTION.

Editor Morning News:—Permit me to thank you for your idea of the enunciation of the principles governing the Board as expressed by Mr. Price and in your view, endorsed by the whole Board.

I hope it will not be out of place to recall a few facts that may express the ideas others had of the principles that would govern the present Board:

1st. In good faith the convention that was called resolved that each ward should select its own Commissioners. In good faith they separated, and did select, each ward, three men whose stay with us had formed for them a character. They had expressed their views, and nine of the number were understood to be men opposed to license. Not only understood to be so by their friends, but even also understood to be so by the bar-room men, who went so far as to have three names printed with nine of the nominees. The advocates of license went early at the polls on election day with the ticket having upon it six men understood to be "dry men," three understood to be for license of the regular nominees, and three others not nominees, who were understood to be "license men." That ticket was worked hard for by license men, and was worked against by "dry men." The whole ticket nominated at the convention consisting, as I said, of nine men who were thought to be opposed to recommending any one to the county commissioners as suitable persons to distribute to the boys, and others, liquid poison.

What was the surprise when the report of their first acts came out declaring that the sale of liquor was a nuisance in certain localities, where certain families had to pass, but was no nuisance where other families had to pass.

Now you say that Mr. Price has expressed the principles upon which they do these things, viz, that "he was in favor of granting license to any neighborhood where the people themselves would petition for the same, and was equally opposed to granting a license in a community where the majority of the people petitioned against it."

Now if the facts here stated will bear me out, what was the expression at the polls? Was not the issue then squarely made and made, too, by the "bar-men?"

2d. When did Mrs. Watlington, Mrs. Willis, Mrs. Small and the other people constituting a majority of that community petition for liquors to be sold there?

3d. Did they give any time for counter petitions, to the prayers of these near neighbors above named?

Some claim it was no issue at the polls; if the statements above are not false it was an issue. Some claim the nominees made no pledge upon the subject. In answer, pray tell me what pledges did they make, or was there asked of them? Their pronounced views upon all subjects were all the reasons their friends had for voting for them. Nine had been heard to say that they were opposed to the sale of liquors. Three outsiders were put on the ticket instead of three of the nine, thereby throwing the decision upon the Mayor, whose views they were satisfied with.

But thanks to you for finding out their views, and I hope hereafter they will give those who do not agree with the nearest neighbors above referred to, still who do live in the neighborhood, an opportunity to be heard on the great question. P.
