THE LATEST NEWS.

SMOTHERED IN THE OPEN STREET.

Pedestrians in Allegheny Witness the Death of Two Men by Natural Gas.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 8.—Natural gas added two more deaths to its list of victims this afternoon in Allegheny. The Charters Company has a regulator at the corner of Locust and Charities streets, which regulates the flow of gas from the high to the low pressure line at this place.

Miss Clara Kunkle, who witnessed the accident, says that after the gas began to escape Sampson raised up so that his head could be seen at the top of the hole. Supt. Herron then reached down to pull Sampson out but he himself was overcome and fell into the hole on top of Sampson.

W. Thistlethwait says: "Wherever he went, the wave of spiritual emotion swept after him. Among converts were Hougill, Burrough, Whitehead, Parnell, Penn, Barclay and many others who became devoted and eminent servants and ministers. Wm. Penn says: "They faithfull, thousands in a short time were turned to the truth through their ministry. Meetings were settled, and there were daily added to them such as should be saved."

FRIENDS YEARLY MEETING AT HIGH POINT.

Some Historical Facts With Regard to the Friends Association.

HIGH POINT, Aug. 10, '87. Editors Morning News: North Carolina Yearly Meeting of Friends convenes to-day in Friends Meeting House, a large brick edifice, at 10 o'clock. It might be well to preface the reports of this Annual Convocation by a statement of facts in connection with the history of this remarkable branch of the Church that our readers may be the more intelligent and understand better the daily reports in your columns.

George Fox, the founder of the Society of Friends, commenced preaching in 1647, in Lancashire, England, with such power that meetings, and churches were speedily settled in the several counties through which he traveled.

W. Thistlethwait says: "Wherever he went, the wave of spiritual emotion swept after him. Among converts were Hougill, Burrough, Whitehead, Parnell, Penn, Barclay and many others who became devoted and eminent servants and ministers. Wm. Penn says: "They faithfull, thousands in a short time were turned to the truth through their ministry. Meetings were settled, and there were daily added to them such as should be saved."

During this half century alone they issued upwards of three thousand separate books and papers by more than six-hundred different writers, all intended to establish their converts or to explain or defend their opinions. In 1672 it was agreed to hold a meeting in London once a year for the better ordering, managing, and regulating of the public affairs of the Friends. This was the beginning of the Yearly Meetings. London being the mother of them all.

The Yearly Meetings increased in number till at one time there were 26 of them. Now there are only a little more than half as many, eleven or twelve being in the United States and Canada.

Now for N. C. friends history. In 1660, Martin says in his history of N. C.: "The Legislature of Virginia having passed laws unfavorable to the Quakers, a number of whom had fled thither from the persecuting spirit of New England many families sought an asylum on Albemarle Sound." Henry Phillips was the first Friend to settle on the banks of the Albemarle. In 1672 William Edmundson visited Carolina and appointed a meeting at the house of Henry Phillips. Edmundson said: "The people had little or no religion for they came and sat down in the meeting smoking their pipes."

There was not a religious sect in the colony. Bancroft says: "From the commencement of the settlement, there seems not to have been a minister in the land when at last, he says, Wm. Edmundson came to visit the Quaker brethren among the groves of Albemarle, he delivered his doctrine in the authority of truth and made converts to the Society of Friends. A quarterly meeting for discipline was established, and this sect was the first to organize a religious government in Carolina." Williamson says: "A considerable part of the inhabitants were of the people called Quakers."

The kindly influence of their principles extended throughout the colonies, many of the members of the Legislatures being Quakers."

During the dissensions and disorders prevailing in 1695, John Archdale, a Friend, one of the proprietors of the colony, "a man of great prudence, sagacity, and command of temper, was appointed Governor of Carolina; he was vested with authority so great and extensive that the proprietors thought fit to have it recorded in his commission, that such powers were not to be claimed as a precedent by future governors." By his influence exemption from bearing arms was granted to all who felt restrained by religious principle. The whole of his conduct toward the Indians was influenced by justice and kindness."

In speaking of the prosperity of the colony of South Carolina, the commons, assembled at Charleston, say,

"We do and shall forever be most heartily obliged to own it as a production of the wisdom and discretion, patience and labor of the Hon. John Archdale, Esq., our Governor," &c. In next issue as a preface to the proceedings of the first days session I will give an account of the establishment of the Yearly Meeting in N. C.

OUR TWIN-CITY LETTER.

New Railroad Enterprise—Electric Lights—Other Gossip.

WINSTON, N. C., Aug. 9th, '87. Editors Morning News:—At a special meeting of the Chamber of Commerce last night, held in the interest of the Roanoke and Southern R. R. Messrs. Buxton, Hinshaw, Ludlow, and Frank Fries were constituted a committee to meet the citizens of Charlotte at that town on the 11th inst., at which time suitable plans will be adopted towards securing an extension of the Roanoke & Southern from this point to Charlotte. It is an assured fact that Winston will have the Roanoke and Southern Road within two years—with this and the extension to Charlotte, we will no longer live out of the world—but with our various manufacturing enterprises now in operation we will with better rail road facilities take rapid strides toward being in the front ranks of the large towns of the South.

The Electric Light machinery has been tested and pronounced all right by a competent electrician. The work of placing the poles is about completed and next Monday night is the time set for turning on the light. Eight miles of wire will be stretched out through Winston and thirty-six lamps of 1200 candle power each will be swung across the principal streets.

Col. Pat H. Winston will deliver a free lecture on the Great North West at the Opera House next Monday night. All anticipate a rare treat, and he will no doubt have a crowded house.

The Twin-City Reform Club held their annual picnic last Saturday. Several hundred were in attendance but owing to a shower the fun was broken up early in the afternoon. Socially, everything is at a standstill as all of the young people are off summering.
