THE LATEST NEWS.

MRS. DINSMORE MAY BE HANGED.

Convicted of Murder in the First Degree for the Killing of James Davis.

CLARION, Pa., Aug. 21.-Mrs. Ella Dinsmore who has been on trial for the past week on the charge of being accessory to the murder of James Davis, for which David L. King is now under sentence of death, was convicted of murder in the first degree. She displayed great fortitude during the trial and took her sentence calmly. Davis was a wealthy oil operator. He had just returned from St. Louis, where he went to effect a reconciliation with his wife, who refused to live with him because of his infatuation for Mrs. Dinsmore. He did not succeed in his mission, but during his absence King had supplanted him in Mrs. Dinsmore's effections, and when the two men met on the street they exchanged some hot words. King went to Mrs. Dinsmore's residence and was followed by Davis. Shortly after a pistol-shot was heard and Davis was found on the floor with a bullet-hole in his eye and King's pistol beside him. King pleaded selfdefense, but the prosecution took the ing. ground that King and Mrs. Dinsmore had entered into a conspiracy to kill Davis and get possession of his property, the house in which the woman lived belonging to him, Leaves for Fayetteville at9.50 a m

Mrs. Dinsmore is a eandsome woman of thirty-five years. She has been attened by her daughter Lillian, a beautiful girl of sixteen, who was with her when she was arrested at the Lomis House, Oil Gity, two weeks ago, and by her aged mother, Mrs. Phillips, of Russberg.

A Rare Case.

AMERICUS, Ga., Aug. 20.-In this county lives a remarkable old couple, Artemus Tucker and his wife, Narcissa. Artemus is eighty years old, and for the past fifty-three years he has lived on the same place. Seventeen years ago his then wife gave him to Narcissa, the present incumbent of his affections, with whom he has since lived happily. His first wife resides with them and does their cooking and washing, and declares that she makes more money as housekeeper than she made as wife. Narcissa is sixty years old and tips the beam at 420 pounds, while Artemus weighs only 95 pounds. Recently a railroad was built by their place, and Narcissa could not enter the car door when she wanted to make a trip to town, so a flat car was placed at her disposal.

Makes Sam Sick.

ROUND LAKE, N. Y., Aug. 20.-Rev. Messrs. Jones and Small preach daily to a congregation of from 3,000 to 4,000 persons. The sermon this morning was on 'The Model Church.' Mr. Jones spoke as follows:

"I can get along with an old sinner; I can bear patiently with a poor drunkard; but when a church member begins to apologise for meanness and gets mad because he is told of his faults, it makes me sick at my stomach. If any of you get mad at what I am saying just come up like gentlemen and ask my pardon and I'll forgive you. You can tell when a fellow is hurt by where he rubs.

The excursion committe forced all the passengers aft in order to count them. This sub merged the after-air ports, causing the steamer to fill with water and sink. No lives were lost.

Making a Mystery.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.-At 9 oclock this morning the Chicago and Alton train stopped at the twenty-third st. station, and a middle-aged man, pale and very weak from loss of blood, was removed to his home. He was Walter S. Babcock, senior member of the firm of Babcock & Wheeler, lumber dealers. He was suffering from a wound in the breast received early this morning at Gardner, Ill., where he had been spending the night. The wound was fatal. He went to Gardner to trade his property on Lake Park for a farm. At 4 o'clock this morning he entered a physician's office in Gardner and had his wound examined, refusing to explain how he received it. His friends refuse to say anything in regard to the shoot

She was a Heroine.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20-In describing the scenes in the improvised hospital at Chatsworth, after the recent railway disaster it was said that one of the passengers on the ill-fated train, Miss Fannie Brebner, of Farmington, Ill., had been rendered insane by the accident and was moaning deliriously on a couch, while her betrothed husband, a Mr. Waters, was lying on a cot only a few feet distant. This is incorrect. Miss Brebner got through the disaster unhurt, and her appearance among the wounded in Chatsworth was solely in the capacity of a nurse. Mr. Waters was simply one of those under her care.

DANVILLE Va., Aug. 21.-Information has been received from the little town of Milton N. A Snake Story from Hickory.

Cor. Charlotte Chronicle;

HICKORY, N. C., Aug. 21.-Abernethy Bros., of Hickory, have a rattlesnake confined in a glass case with nine rattles. His snakeship has been in captivity about three months, and as yet has eaten nothing. Soon after being captured, his teeth were extracted and he was freely handled by a butcher in their employ, but the snake one day at being roughly handled and tried to bite the charmer. Upon close inspection it was found his teeth had grown out to nearly their orginal length, it is needless to state that the handling of the snake was abandoned at once. A live mouse was put in the case and was killed at once, but not eaten. A frog was put in and after a visit of one evening seemed to have made an agreeable companion to the snake and was perched upon his head, and assumed as much dignity as one of our learned judges of the Supreme bench.

More Adjectives-One at a Time.

Prot. HENRY DRUMMOND, of the Glasgow University, delivered an address at the closing exercises of the Chautaugua College of Liberal Arts which contained a most original and striking suggestion.

He urged his hearers to enrich their talk with adjectives. It has not been generally konwn heretofore that the adjective is a much-neglected part of speech, but Prof. DRUMMOND claims that most people make use of only six adjectives in ordinary discourse, when ty hard to cash these checks, but they in all justice they should employ at are big and stout and can stand such a as though the Scottish scholar had Try It. What? gone too far in his zeal for the future welfare of the adjective; but a little thought will serve to show that he has surong ground for his assertions.

Most people have a few pet adjectives which they apply indiscriminately to all sorts of things. Take, for instance, the conversation of a young woman just from boarding-school. She eats "a perfectly elegant dinner; she hears "a perfectly elegant sermond she meets "a perfectly elegant young man," and no one would be surprised to hear her remark that she had "a perfectly elegant pain in the head." The same tendency to use certain high-sounding adjectives in a way as tiresome as it is unwarranted is to be observed in the discourse of nearly every man, woman and child of the present day. As Prof. DRUMMOND says, "the selection of adjectives requires thought." Few people take the time or trouble to enrich their vocabulary with numorous and effective qualifying words. The nouns and verbs of a sentence are its necessary framework. Adjectives are its ornamentation. He alone is an artistic speaker or writer who uses his adjectives with taste and appropriateness.-New York

A Big Day's Work.

Anniston Hot Blast.

Yesterday was one of the hardest days on the cashier, teller, and clerks in the First National bank, they have ever passed through. During banking hours there was a perfect stream of men pouring in and out of that in stitution, each one needing-immediate attention, and each one receiving prompt service. It was Saturday, and, of course, pay day for the hundreds of men who find employment at good wages, at the several great industries of the city, and the money had to come out of the First National. The checks presented called for sums from $50 to $4000, each, and to cash these bits of paper was no easy task. Still, it was done, and when the doors closed at the appointed hour in the afternoon, the enormous sum of $20,000 had been handed over the counter of the bank, every cent of which went for wages. Nearly every dollar of this vast amount was in gold.

This day's work is but one index of the mighty work now going on in and about the city, and shows the magnitude of the growth of the industries which are fast springing into competition. It worked the bank boys pretretay of the Treasury has received a least 500. At first sight it would seem run. Besides, this is a day of rest.
