repast. The crowd was nearly frantic with fiendish delight during the building of the guilotine and the last scenes preparatory to the execution.

When the chaplain arrived half an hour before the execution it was with the greatest difficulty that he could force his way through the mass of howling wretches to the scaffold.

When Pranzini was brought out at 5 o'clock he walked firmly to the guilotine. The executioners seized him. He resisted and demanded to be let alone, evidently wishing to die with the same pride that has sustained him throughout the whole affair.

There was a struggle before the engine of death, but the executioners

Not a Hair on Mim.

The Forest City correspondent of the Monroe Enquirer and Express writes the following: "There is man in Cleveland county by the name of Hamrick, who had the usual quantity of hair on his head and a heavy beard. He was recently trying to shave with a dull razor, and becomsaid he wished that there was not a d-d hair on him. In a short time his face was as beardless as an infant's. and his head as clear of hair as peeled onion. This is vouched for by reliable persons. He felt no pain when the hair and beard left bim."

> The Kinston Fres Press says: The army worm has made its appearance in many of the cotton crops in this section and is doing heavy damage to it. It is said that about one pound of Paris green to twenty-five or thirty pounds of land plaster or slackened lime, sprinkled where the worms are or over all the cotton proves very effective in destroying them. Care should be exercised not to inhale the dust as it is very poisonous. It is best to sprinkle it on with a bucket with a seive on bottom and a long handle to hold it off with, and keep to the wind ward of it.

Hot Water and Lemon Juice

An intelligent professional man had long been troubled with an inactive liver, which caused him a world of pain. A friend advised him to take a glass of hot water with the juice of half a lemon squeezed into it, but no sugar, night and morning. He tried it, and found himself better almost immediately. His daily headaches, which medicine had fuiled to cure, left him, his appetite improved, and he gained several pounds within a few weeks.
