

GENERAL NEWS.

The wheat crop of England this year is 60,000,000 short.

Nearly every county in Maine has a prohibition ticket in the field.

New fodder on the Raleigh market.

Ex-Postmaster James has declared for the Prohibition party.

The murder of Rev. Mr. Hadcock has raised quite a storm of indignation in Iowa.

The Massachusetts State Prohibition Convention will be held in Worcester on the 8th of September.

Halifax county has increased the number of inmates of the penitentiary one since our last issue.

The Prohibition State Convention of Pennsylvania met in Harrisburg Wednesday.

Thos. Hurley, the Molly Maguire leader, is dead. He evaded the detectives to the last.

Mr. D. E. Petty, of Bush Hill, had a finger torn off by a planing machine on the 24th inst.

Wake county Democratic Convention will be held on the 11th of September.

Old bonds to the value of $135,500 were burned in the office of State Treasurer last Saturday.

The Episcopal Church of the State will establish an orphanage at Charlotte, says the Orphans Friend.

Eight of the Chicago Anarchists have been found guilty. Seven are to be hung and one goes to prison for fifteen years.

Judge Joel Russell, candidate for Governor, and Judge A. D. Bowen, candidate for Lieut. Governor, have opened the Prohibition campaign in California.

Mr. Frank H. Darby, a prominent lawyer of Wilmington, N. C., died on Sunday last at Summerville, N. J. His remains have been brought to Wilmington for interment.

Seven of our capitol cities have local option. Raleigh, N. C.; Atlanta, Ga.; Jackson, Miss.; Augusta, Me.; Des Moines, Iowa; Providence, Rhode Island; Topeka, Kans.

The following delegates have been appointed to represent Madison township in the Prohibition Convention to be held in Greensboro, Sept. 11, 1886: Geo. W. Lemons, Milton T. Wagoner, Wm. P. Fields.

District Attorney Busbee was in our city last Friday. He came to prosecute Joel Watkins for counterfeiting. The said Joel had been making money the wrong way. He failed to put in enough silver and gold, and was caught. He was held to appear at Raleigh, in November, for trial.—Goldboro Advance.

The average value of land per acre in Wake county, outside of Raleigh, is found to be $10.75.—Mr. F. A. Steadman has been appointed engineer at the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb and Blind Asylum, to succeed Mr. J. D. Holt, deceased.

The First Baptist Church of Raleigh, Aug. 10th, extended a call to Rev. J. L. White to its pastorate.—State Chronicle.

Rev. Moses A. Hopkins, of Franklin county, U. S. Minister to Liberia, is dead. He was a colored man of character and ability and made a worthy representative of his race at the foreign court. Prof. E. J. Smith, Principal of the Colored Normal School at Fayetteville, is mentioned as his successor. He is an intelligent man, active in his efforts to promote the education and elevation of his race, and would make a worthy successor to the deceased Minister.

The tabernacle meeting at Rutherford College has been in session now three days, and great enthusiasm prevails. The crowd has steadily increased until the groves surrounding the college are alive with vehicles and tents of almost every description. The excursions brought a fine lot of recruits from both ends of the road. The weather is fine and everything bids fair for a great day tomorrow. We have five services each day, besides two sessions of the conference daily. There is plenty of everything good to eat, and the hospitality of the people at the college and at Icard Station is unbounded.—Raleigh Visitor.

L. J. Taylor, who was refused, by the Board of County Commissioners, license to sell wine and beer within less than a mile of the city limits, has brought suit against the five County Commissioners, under that section of the Code fixing every Commissioner $200 failing to perform his duty. Justices Barbee and Whitaker gave judgment against Commissioner Johns, who appealed to the Supreme Court. The Chronicle doesn't like to express an opinion upon a case that is pending, but we venture to say that it is hardly probable that any court will fine the Commissioners of Wake for an honest and conscientious discharge of their duty.—State Chronicle.

The September number of DEFOREST'S MAGAZINE is replete with interesting and instructive reading. Among the articles worthy of note are "Thirty Years in Journalism," by Jenny June; "The War of the Rum Power on the People," by W. Jennings Demorest; "Four Friends in a Phacton;" "Madame La Fayette: Her Hero Husband and Her Home;" and "A Night Refuge in Paris." Mrs. Hart's serial increases in interest, and "A Night Refuge in interest, and The World's Progress is highly suggestive. The other features of this popular Magazine entitle it to a welcome in every household. The frontispiece is a beautiful oil picture of a charming child.

DEAD ISSUE.

It is to you that we look with the greatest solicitude and anxiety. We are one people; one has no interest which the other does not share, and the great common-welfare of both races is here involved as in no other business, the weal or the woe of our sons and daughters for many generations is involved in our uniting to banish intemperance by driving whiskey from our land, or retaining it to swallow up our hard earnings and paperize our homes and our children's minds and hearts forever.

Never be alarmed by that baseless threat that you endanger your liberties; you are liberating society of a tyrant more terrible than civil servitude. Blackstone, B. 1, c. 1, 126, says: "Laws, when prudently framed, are by no means subversive of freedom, but rather introductory of liberty." (Blackstone is the greatest of authority on matters of law.) He farther quotes Locke on government, p. 2, sec. 59, as saying: "Where there is no law there is no freedom." So that to all well regulated minds, and I might say hearts, law conveys the idea of defense rather than offense. Nor fear of depriving the seller of any liberty which he justly enjoys; you will not do this. No man may claim the right as seen above to pursue a trade by which every other trade and calling more or less injured. Hear an extract from Kent's Commentaries.

"The government may, by general regulation, interdict such uses of property as would create nuisances, and become dangerous to the lives, or health, or peace, or comfort of the citizens. Unwholesome trades, slaughter-houses, operations offensive to the senses, the deposit of powder, the application of steam power to propel cars, the building with combustible material, and the burial of the dead, may all be interdicted by law in the midst of dense masses of population, on the general and national principle that every person ought so to use his property as not to injure his neighbors, and that private interests must be made subservient to the general interests of the community." 2 Kent, p. 340.

So Blackstone, Book 1, c. 1, 124, says: "If a man makes his vices public, though they seem such as principally to affect himself (as drunkenness and the like), they then become, by the bad example they set, of pernicious effects to society, and therefore it is then the business of human society to correct them."

Now we know that many unoffending men lose their lives, others are often injured and brought into difficulties which would have been avoided but for the whiskey sold at saloons, and any man any day is liable to be shot down on the streets of any town where whiskey is sold. Almost every newspaper brings tidings of some such calamity. A bar-room, next to my yard, would be, to my family, a nuisance; and what I should not like to see established near my dwelling, I feel obliged to help remove from my neighbors'.

Liberias quodlibet facientis, or the liberty of doing whatever one pleases or his strength enables him to effect, is savage ferocity, it is the liberty of the tiger, and not the liberty of a man. The Archbishop of York said, in a sermon February 21, 1777: "Civil or legal liberty is that which consists in a freedom from all restraints except such as established law imposes for the good of the community to which the partial good of each individual is obliged to give place."

But we have sufficiently noticed this part of the subject elsewhere.

Veto is a little word but it takes lots of pluck sometimes to say it.

Trains will run regularly on the C. P. & Y. V. road to Summerfield after this week.

Work on the U. S. Court House in this city has been resumed. We hope to see it completed soon.

Mr. Hiram C. Worth, a highly respected citizen of this place, died on Saturday at the advanced age of 78 years.

On Thursday of last week, Mr. Thomas Cowan, a deaf mute, was killed by the train on the C. P. & Y. V. railroad, near Pleasant Garden.

STOP AND THINK

When you come to town the problem to solve is, where can you buy the most goods for the least money; or more plainly speaking, you say I have but little money and want to buy lots of goods. How can it be done, you ask. Echo answers how? If you will call at my store, spend a few moments and see my prices you will have your answer. You ask, can you sell goods so low? I answer, my expenses are LOW. I can sell goods lower than I could if my expenses were $25 per day. Thus you see at once the why. All I ask of you is to call and see my goods and prices; if not satisfactory do not buy; but you will be convinced when you see how low my goods can be bought. Below are some of my Agents wanted every where to sell the Hamilton Harp or Musical Gem, one of the prettiest best and cheapest musical instruments ever offered to the public.

It is the simplest instrument played with keys in the world. It is so arranged as anybody can play it and make sweet and

DELIGHTFUL MUSIC,

And can be tuned and played with other instruments. You can play one or two parts upon it, it will last you a lifetime. Now any family can have good music. Its price is within reach of all. Its design was not to take the place of Organs and Pianos, which the wealthiest only can buy but to put good and lasting music in every family, at a price that anybody can pay, but since it has been brought out, and submitted to the inspection of musical men it turns out to be an invaluable teacher and trainer of the human voice, it trains the voice to step the scale of fifteen sounds or two octaves, the great trouble with new beginners has been to learn to finger music. This little Gem throws wide the door and the pupil can see at a single glance and can sing and play delightfully almost from
