EDITORIAL NOTES... The friends of the liquor traffic in Rhode Island...

While the Michigan legislature grudgingly granted the people the opportunity of voting on the Prohibition Amendment...

The Republicans of New York pledged themselves to submit a Prohibitory Amendment...

It is an undoubted fact that every time the North is victorious in a National election it elevates the worst element in the South...

Our readers will remember that a year ago the Rhode Island legislature submitted and the people adopted a prohibitory amendment to the constitution...

Our readers who rely on their daily papers for facts and who are likely to go asleep after reading a few editorial jokes concerning the microscopical views of the Prohibition Party...

is upon them. Are not the old party papers, and some so-called religious papers, in danger of losing the favor and support of the liquor men...

If there still are liquor dealers who lay the deterring unction to their souls that Prohibition will not involve the destruction of their business they had better get quit of the idea before both themselves and their stock in trade are cast into the streets...

And now we listen for an old Swill Tub to gurgle out: "Oh, if you should pass a prohibitory law, you can't enforce it."

The Prohibitionists of Kentucky met in State Convention week before last and nominated a full state ticket. Judge Fontaine T. Fox, Jr. heads the ticket for Governor.

The attention of our readers is directed to the "Address" of the State Executive Committee, which we publish in another column...

Our vote must improve in every State—Nominate candidates for every elective office—Labor unceasingly for the circulation of party papers—Do not be deceived.

First—Hold County and State Conventions early. Place candidates in the field before the liquor parties hold their Conventions...

Second—Nominate candidates for every elective office which is to be filled at the election. Do not endorse or support the candidates of the liquor parties...

Third—Work unceasingly to increase the circulation of the party papers. Support liberally our national and State papers, and in all places where it can be done, establish a local or county paper...

has learned: The petition is the result of a month's canvass of the city by an agent of the liquor-dealer, who was paid $8 a day for his work...

We quote the above to show that the enemy of our homes is willing to spend money freely to ruin them. Can we defend our homes without a willingness to pour out money as freely as water if need be to defend them against the saloon?

Our State is very ripe for the formation of a powerful Prohibition Party, and upon some one or more deeply interested persons rests the responsibility of getting the State organized.

To send such organizers will cost money for travelling expenses, &c., to say nothing as to the support of a man competent to do such work well.

We publish the following proposition hoping you will read the circular from the Committee, and that you will write out and sign one of these propositions and return the same to MOSES HAMMOND, Bush Hill, N. C., as early as convenient.

For the purpose of securing the immediate organization of the Prohibition Party in every unorganized county in the State:

Provided the sum of 1,000 dollars be subscribed within 30 days from date, I promise to give the amount opposite my signature, payable in four quarterly installments.

THE FIELD AT LARGE. MORE ABOUT HIGH LICENSE PAPER IN NEW YORK. How PROHIBITION GROWS THERE—A GLIMPSE AT MICHIGAN—THE PROSPECTS HOPEFUL—HOLLANDERS SOUND.

Rochester, N. Y., March 8 1887. Our New York Legislature is still troubled with high license and the ghost of prohibition. The Tribune now says: "There is a gratifying probability that the high license bill will be made a party measure in the Republican caucus."

Our State is very ripe for the formation of a powerful Prohibition Party, and upon some one or more deeply interested persons rests the responsibility of getting the State organized.

In 1884, with but a week's notice, 448 votes were cast. In 1886, with a penniless treasury and effort on the part of only a very few, 20 counties cast 4107 Prohibition votes, although two of them cast but one vote each.
