THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUNDAY SERMON.

Solomon's Song, vi. 8

So Solomon, by one stroke, est forth the imperial character of a true Christian woman. She is not a slave, not a hireling, not a sub-ordinate, but a queen; and in my text Solomon sees sixty of these helping to make up the royal pageant of Jesus. If a former sermon I showed you that crown and courtly attendants and imperial wardrobe were not necessary to make a queen; but that graces of the heart and life will give coronation to any woman. I showed you at some length that woman's position was higher if the world than man's, and that although she had often been denied the right of suffrage, she always did vote and always would vote by her influence; and that her chief, desire ought to be that she should have grace rightly to rule in the dominion which she has already won. I began an enumeration of some of her rights, and this morning I resume the subject.

In the first place, woman has the special and the superlative right—not again going back to what I have already said—woman has the special and superlative right of blessing and comforting the sick.

What land, what street, what house has not feit the smitings of disease? Tens of thousands of sick beds! What shall we do with them? Shall man, with his rough hand and clumsy foot, go stumbling around the sick room, trying to soothe the distracted nerves and alleviate the pains of the tossing patient! The young man at college may scoff at the idea of being under maternal influences, but at the first blast of the typhoid fever on his cheek he says: "Where is mother?" Walter Scott wrote partly his satire and partly in compliment when he said:

O woman, in our hours of ease, Unicertain, coy and hard to please.

When pain and appraish wring the Keer.

O woman, in our hours of ease, Uncertain, coy and hard to please; When pain and anguish wring the brow, A ministering angel thou. A ministering angel thou.

I think the most pathetic passage in all the Bible is the description of the lad who went out to the harvest field of Shunem and got sunstruck—throwing his hands on his temples and crying out: "Oh, my head!" and they said: "Carry him to his mother." And then the record is: "He sat on her knees till noon, and then died." It is an awful thing to be ill away from home in a strange hotel, once in a while men coming in to look at you, holding their hand over their mouth for fear they will catch the contagion. How roughly they turn you in bed. How loudly they talk. How you long for the ministering angel thou.

I think the most pathetic passage in all the Bible is the description of the lad who went out to the harvest field of Shunem and got sunstruck—throwing his hands on his temples and crying out: "Oh, my head!" And then the record is: "He sat on her knees till noon, and then died." It is an awful thing to be ill away from home in a strange hotel, once in a while men coming in to look at you, holding their hand over their mouth for fear they will catch the contagion. How of home. I knew one such who went away from one of the brightest of homes for several weeks business absence at the West.

A te egram came at midnight that he was on his death bed, far away from home. By express train the wife and daughters went westward; but they went too late. He feared west ward; but they went too late. He feared not to die, but he was in agony to live until his family got there. He tried to bribe the doctor to make him live a little while longer. He said: "I am willing to die but not alone." But the pulses fluttered, the but not alone." But the pulses fluttered, the eyes closed, and the heart stopped. The express trains met in the midnight; wife and daughters going westward—lifeless remains of husband and father coming eastward. O, it was a sad, pitful, overwhelming spectacle! When we are sick we want to be back at home. When the time comes for us to die, we want to die at home. The room may be very humble, and the faces that look into ours may be very plain; but who cares for that! Loving hands to bathe the temples. Loving voices to speak good cheer. Loving lips to read the comforting promises of Jesus. In our last dreadful war men cast the canhon; men fashioned the musketry; men cried to the hosts: "Forward, march!" men hurled their battalions on the sharp edges of the

to the hosts: "Forward, march!" men hurled their battalions on the sharp edges of the enemy, crying: "Charge! charge!" but weman scraped the lint; weman administered the cordials; weman watched by the dying couch; weman wrote the last message to the home circle; weman wept at the solitary burial attended by herself and four men with a spade. We greeted the general home with brass bands, and triumphal arches, and wild huzzas; but the story is too good to be written anywhere, save in the chronicles of heaven, of Mrs. Brady, who came down among the sick in the swamps of the Chichahominy; of Annie Ross, in the cooper shop among the sick in the swamps of the Chichahominy; of Annie Ross, in the cooper shop hospital; of Margaret Breckinridge who came to men who had been for weeks with their wounds undressed—some of them frozen to the ground, and when she turned them over those that had an arm left waved it and filled the air with their "hurrah," of Mrs. Hodge, who came from Chicago with blankets and with pillows, until the men shouted: "Three cheers for the Christian Commission." cheers for the Christian Commission!
God bless the women at home," then sitting down to take the last message: "Tell my wife not to fret about me, but to meet me in heaven; tell herto train up the boys whom we have love I so well; tell her we shall meet again in the good land; tell her to bear my loss like the Christian wife of a Christian soldier;" and of Mrs. Shelton, into whose face the convalescent Shelton, into whose face the convalescent soldier looked and said: "Your grapes and cologne cured me." Men did their work with shot and shell, and carbine, and howitzer; women did their work with socks, and slippers, and bandages, and warm drinks, and Scripture texts, and gentle strokings of the hot temples, and stories of that land where they never have any pain. Men knelt down over the wounded and said: "On which side did you fight?" Women knelt down over the wounded and said: "Where are you hurt? What nice thing can I make for you to eat? What makes you cry?" Tonight, while we men are sound asleep in our beds, there will be a light in yonder loft; there will be groaning down that dark alley: there will be cries of distress in that cellar. Men will sleep and women will watch.

Men will sleep and women will watch.

Again, woman has a superlative right to take care of the poor. There are hundreds end thousands of them all over the land. There is a kind of work that men cannot do for the poor. Here comes a group of little barefoot children to the door of the Dorcas Society.

will whisper: "Who is she? Ain't she beautiful?" and if you will listen right sharply you will hear dr. pping down through the leaky roof, and rolling over the rotten stairs, the angel chant that shook Bethlehem: "Glory to Glod in the highest, and on earth peace, good will "6" men." "Can you tell me why a Christian woman going down among the haunts of iniquity on a Christian errand never meets with any indignity! I stook of in the chapel of Helen Chalmers, the daughtor of the cebrated Dr. Chalmers, in the most abandousl part of the city of Eninburgh, and I said to her as I leokel out upon the fearful surroundings of that place: "Do you come here nights to hold a service?" "O. yes." and I say now, as Paul said to the Corinthian woman: "What knowest thom. O woman, but thou canst saye thy husband?"

this Christain errand ?" "Never," she said, "Rebecca, you wouldn't let me have family prayers; and you laughed about all that, and your name and hand it to her. There is no need of wasting time. Those poor children on the back street have been hungry long enough. That sek man must have some farina. That consumptive must have some thing to ease his cough. I meet this delegate of a ralief seciety coming out of the store of such a hard fisted man, and I say: "Did you get the money?" 'Of course," she says, "I got the money; that's what I went for. The Lord told me to go in and get it, and he never sends me on a fool's errand."

Again, I have to fell you that it is a woman's specific right to comfort under the stress of dire disaster. She is called the weaker vessel, but all protane as well as sacred history attests that when the crisis comes she is better prepared than man to meet the emergency. How often you have sen a woman who seemed to be a disciple of frivolity and indolence, who, under one stroke of calamity chanzed to a heroine. Oh what of calamity, changed to a heroine. Oh, what a great mistake those business men make who never tell their business troubles to their wives! There comes some great loss to their store, or some of their companions in busi-ness play them a sad trick, and they carry the burden all alone. He is asked in the household again and again; What is the matter? hold again and again: What is the matter? but he believes it a sort of Christian duty to keep all that trouble within his own soul. Oh, your first duty was to tell your wife all about it. She perhaps might not have disentangled your finances or extended your credit but she would have holped you to bear misfortune. You have no right to carry on one shoulder that which is intended for two. There are business man here who know what I mean. There came here who know what I mean. There came a crisis in your affairs. You struggled brave y and long, but after a while there came a day when you said: "Here I shall have to stop," and you called in your partners, and you called in the most prominent men in your employ, and you said: "We have got to stop." You left the store suddenly. You could hardly make up your mind to pass through the street and over on the ferryboat. You felt everybody would be looking at you and blaming you and denouncing you. You hastened home. You told your wife all about hastened home. You told your wife all about the affair. What did she say? Did she play the affair. What did she say? Did she play the butterfly? Did she talk about the silks and the ribbons and the fashions? No. She came up to the emergency. She quailed not under the stroke. She helped you to begin to plan right away. She offered to go out of the comfortable house into a smaller one, and wear the old cloak another winter. She was one who understood your affairs without blaming you. You looked upon what you thought was a thin, weak woman's arm holding you up, but while you looked at that arm there came into the feeble muscles of it the strength of the eternal God. No chiding.

there came into the feeble muscles of it the strength of the eternal God. No chiding. No fretting. No telling you about the beautiful house of her father, from which you brought her ten, twenty, or thirty years ago. You said: "Well, this is the happiest day of my life. I am glad I have gotten from under my burden. My wife don't care—I don't care." At the moment you were utterly exhausted, God sent a Deborah to meet the host of the Amalekites and scatter them like chaff over the plain. There are somethe host of the Amalekites and scatter them like chaff over the plain. There are sometimes women who sit reading sentimental novels, and who wish that they had some grand field in which to display their Christian powers. Oh, what grand and glorious things they could do if they only had an oppurtunity! My sister, you need not wait for any such time. A crisis will come in your affairs. There will be a Thermopylæ in your own household, where God will tell you to stand. There are seores and hundreds of households to-day where as much bravery and courage are demanded of woman as was exhibited by Grace Darling, or Marie Antoinette, or Joan of Arc. nette, or Joan of Arc.

Again I remark, it is woman's right to bring to us the kingdom of heaven. It is easier for a woman to be a Christian than for a man. Why? You say she is weaker. No. Her heart is more responsive to the pleadings of divine love. She is in vast majority. The fact that she can more easily become a Christian, I prove by the statement that three-fourths of the members of the churches in all Christendom are women. So God appoints fact that she can more easily become a Christian. I prove by the statement that three-fourths of the members of the churches in all Christendom are women. So God appoints them to be the chief agencies for bringing this world back to God. I may standhere and say the soul is immertal. There is a man who will refute it. I may stand here and say the soul is immertal. There is a man who will refute it. I may stand here and say there will be a Judgmant Day after a while. Yonder is some one who will refute it. But a Christian woman in a Christian household, living in the faith and the consistency of Christ's Gospel—nobody can refute that. The greatest sermons are not preached on celebrated platforms; they are preached with an audience of two or three; and in private home life. A consistent, consecrated Christian service is an unanswerable demonstration of Gods truth. A sailor came slipping down the rathines one night, as though something had happened and the sailors cried: "What's the matter?" He said: "My mother's prayers haunt me like a ghost." Home influences, consecrated, Christian home influences, consecrated, Christian home influences, consecrated, Christian home influences, are the mightlest of all influences are mainted by the statement that three-four stands and Pennsylvania, 250x3-4cts; Rye—Maryland and Pennsylvania, 27x34cts; Rye—Maryland and Pennsylvania, 27x34ct the destitute. A loaf of bread or a bundle of socks may make a homely load to carry, but the angels of God will come out to watch, and the Lord Almighty will give his messager hosts a charge, saying: "Look after that woman. Canopy her with your wings and shelter her from all harm," and while you are seated in the house of destitution and suffering, the little ones around the room will whisper: "Who is she? Ain't she beautiful?" and if you will listen right sharply you will hear drapping down through the leaky roof, and rolling over the rotten stairs, the angel chart that shock Bethlehem: "Glory

"neser." That young woman who has her father by her side waiking down the street, an armside police at each corner, is not so well defended as that Christian meman who has her can be solved by the street of the control of the street of

"Who is sha?" and Christ say: "I will tell you who she is. She is the say: "I will tell you who she is. She is the one that came up out of great tribulation, and had her robe washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb," And then God will spread a banquet, and He will invite all the principalities of heaven to sit at the feast; and the tables will blush with the best clusters from the vineyards of God, and crimson with the twelve mannar of fruits from the Tree of Life; and waters from the fountains of the rock will flash from the golden tankards; and the old harpers of from the fountains of the rock will flash from the golden tankards; and the old harpers of heaven will sit there, making music with their harps; and Christ will point you out, amid the celebrities of heaven, saying: "She suffered with me on earth, now we are going to be glorified together. And the banqueters, no longer able to hold their peace, will break forth with congratulation: "Hail!" hail! "And there will be handwritings on the wall—not such as struck the Persian nobleman with horror—but fire-tipped fingers; withing, in blazing capitals of light, and love, and victory: "God hath wiped away all tears from all faces!"
