

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

—The North Carolina Prohibitionist filled three appointments in Moore county last week. The people were thoroughly convinced that the saloon must go and that Prohibition is coming. He also preached at Shallow Well on Sunday to an attentive congregation. He served this church as pastor one year, and his friends are always glad to have him come again.

—J. H. Walker & Co. of Reidsville, had their saw mill and most of their lumber destroyed by fire on Wednesday morning, Oct. 5.

—H. H. Cartland, our Merchant Tailor, has on hand a fine stock of goods in his line, makes a close fit and does good honest work.

—F. Fishblate, has on hand, just received, the largest and most complete stock of ready made clothing we ever seen on this market.

—The North Carolina Prohibitionist until after the presidential election for $1. Subscribe at once and thus secure the benefit of this liberal offer.

—The assessed value of the property of the South has increased over $9,000,000 in the past seven years, or at the rate of about $135,000,000 each year.

—Make home attractive.—Nothing adds so much to the pleasures of a home as music. Buy a good Piano or Organ of J. L. Stone, Raleigh N. C. and you will never regret it.

—A smart little girl wrote an essay on man, and said: "When God made man he gazed on his work and said to himself, 'I can do better than that next time,' and then he made woman."

—There has been more losses by fire this year than was ever known before in one year. In the United States there has been this year losses to the amount of $130,000,000.

—Feiler & Wagner, Druggists, Rock Island, Ill., write: "Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the leading medicine in our city. We sell more, in fact four times more, than of any other."

—We learn that the merchants of Greensboro are now buying from 50 to 200 bales of cotton per day and paying the same that Raleigh, Fayetteville and other leading towns are paying.—Carthage Blade

—While Mr. Thomas Connel was ginning cotton last Tuesday his coat-sleeve caught in the machinery and his hand and lower arm were drawn between the saws and were mutilated and mangled in a frightful manner.

—The Raleigh Cotton and Grocers' Exchange is endeavoring to secure the railroad from Rocky Mount to Springhouse and the Oxford and Clarksville railroad to come to Raleigh. Committees of conference have been appointed.

"Thus am I doubly armed—my death and life. My bane and antidote are both before me." Whether to sit alone suffering with neuralgia Or buy one bottle of Salvation Oil.

—Albert Starnes, of Union county, under sentence of death, has been pardoned by Governor Scales, Starnes has had the death sentence pronounced upon him three times in two years, and three times he has been pardoned.—State Chronicle.

—Mrs. Goodale, of Louisiana, addressed a large and attentive audience in Benbow Hall this city Monday night. Her lecture was interesting and instructive, and the audience manifested their appreciation of it by ear-rousting. Our people will be glad to have Mrs. Goodale speak here again.

—If you want to buy a suit of Clothes or an Overcoat, go and see Sample Brown's stock. He will pay you to do so, and when you are there you can look at the cheapest lines of Hats and Shoes for men that can be found in the State. Mr. Brown has put in a large stock this year and made prices so low that the goods must move lively.

—The Prohibitionists are working quietly, but are making a very effective canvass in this State. In Brooklyn they have nominated Mr. Samuel S. Utter for Mayor and a full city and county ticket, and expect an increased vote. In every State they are making head-way, and there is no reason to doubt that their vote in New York will be larger next November than in any former year.—World.

—Judge Clark gave retelling a black eye last week at Asheboro, sent two men to the penitentiary, and left nine in jail to suffer the penalty of a violated law. He earnestly recommends that these nine be put to work on the public roads. The Commissioners will have this matter to decide. Mecklenburg, Davidson and Iredell counties work their criminals to make them pay jail expenses.

—The jury in the case of State vs. Noah Evans, charged with burning the Raleigh oil mills, hung from Friday until Tuesday. It was unable to agree and was then discharged. Judge Merrimon allowed Evans to go at large upon his personal bond that he would appear at next court. The Judge did not believe the evidence sufficient to convict Evans, and that accounts for giving him liberty upon nothing more than his personal recognizance.—State Chronicle.

The Editor of the Prohibitionist filled three appointments in Moore county last week. The people were thoroughly convinced that the saloon must go and that Prohibition is coming. THE SWORD OF GAMBRILL.

Mrs. Mollie McGee Small Cor. Sec. of Miss W. C. T. U. bravely waves the banner that the young Gambrill laid down. She stands at his post and speaks out in defence of the Homes of Mississippi. In the Union Signal she says:

"The W. C. T. U. of this state has had to learn many lessons in waiting as well as in active service. The process of influencing men to see the need of opposition to the liquor-traffic has been rapid enough, but getting them to concentrate their ballots against the traffic's politicians has been tortuously slow."

"until we can get our voters to ask a Candidate, 'Are you a home protection?' instead of 'Are you a Democrat?' We are holding slipping sand in our fingers. The work has been heavy this year. It has required heroic sacrifice of time, money, health and life. We have agitated and educated all along the line, and we fondly think that success has come in full round measure until a flock of candidates come before the 'dear people.' Then, temperance folks having no party organization, are lost in the motley crew who vote for the ticket of the Saloons' caucus. I am speaking of the masses. They who boldly say, 'God helping me I'll never die with the crimson stain of a whisky vote upon my soul.'"

"This winter the legislature will meet. We want from it a scientific temperance instruction law, a constitutional amendment, and a prohibitory law protecting a State College by the five-mile enactment. Every whisky man in the legislature will be the declared enemy of all three measures, and yet temperance men help to seat them. What is most serious of all, we want the inhuman leasing of convicts abolished. Every whisky man will hinder this if he can. All laws that is to come by way of our legislature; All good must come that way also. This is the root of the whole matter, the beginning point. The law maker must be elected right, and the natural consequence is, the law will be right."

"While we have been working so bravely, we have been conscious always of our great, overwhelming grief for our murdered Roderick Gambrill. His pure hands held our banner. He was a noble young man, splendid in physical strength, as well as supremely symmetrical in character. In his grave he has rolled the mighty wave mountain high, and the people hear the thunder of reforms in it. God permitted Roderick to die as he did, and God is surely in the results. I do not believe there is a single county in the state that has failed to hold great mass meetings, afterwards publishing their resolutions condemning in strongest measures the bold assassins."

WASHINGTON LETTER. (From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11, 1887. Thursday, Oct. 6, 1887, was a real, red letter day in the eventful history of the Capital of the United States, and it will long be a most glorious anniversary in its annals, for it was the time set apart for the great popular demonstration in honor of Alexander R. Shepherd, the former Governor of the District of Columbia, and the builder of Washington, in the opinion of thousands of Washingtonians, many of whom regard their greatest citizen,—who after all is common clay as a sort of superior being. Thousands—a great multitude— thronged Pennsylvania avenue and adjoining streets amid the boom of cannon, the flare of torchlights, and the clatter of fireworks, the glare of brass bands, and the tramp of the long line of footmen and horsemen, citizens and soldiers, preceded by several hundred bicyclists, bearing Chinese lanterns. All along the route the houses were adorned with the stars and stripes, and all Washington seemed to have turned out to give a more than royal greeting to the man it delights to honor. If this splendid popular pageant had been paid to a successful military hero returning from the pomp and triumph of bloody fields, or to a statesman crowned with the laurels of civic renown, it would not have been in the least wonderful; but that Mr. Shepherd, simply a private citizen, without power to favor or reward, should thus spontaneously receive this magnificent tribute and homage from the populace of his native city, is unique, and without a single parallel in the history of the United States; if indeed, not that of the whole world as well. And if Republics are ungrateful, the Capital of the greatest of Republics is surely no so.

The work on the fine State, War and Navy Department building, which is pronounced the grandest public structure in the Federal city, is nearing completion, and will, it is expected, be ready for occupation early next January.

The constant and rapid growth of our great Government departments more particularly the Patent and Pension Offices keep pace with the progress and up-building of the whole country. There are now several bureaus of the Interior Department domiciled outside of the main building, and it is the purpose of the authorities to remove the General Land Office from thence to the Pension Office sometime within the next year, thus making room for such of the smaller bureaus as are crowded out and saving the Government huge rental.

Secretary Fairchild has issued a circular to the custom officials urging their adoption of economic methods in the collection of custom duties, in view of the decreased appropriations for the purpose in question.

The Controller of the Currency has directed all national banks to prepare statements, showing the exact condition of their affairs at the close of business on Oct. 5, 1887, the object in doing so being obviously to guard against fraud and deception in these degenerate days.

The report of the Post office Department for the month of August, in the matter of selling postage stamps, makes a very gratifying exhibit, showing, as it does that in seventy-six first class post offices, there was a gain of more than twelve per cent over the sales of the previous month.

Secretary Lamar is absorbed in making his annual report, which will be more voluminous than usual dealing largely with the affairs of the Indians and lands and railroads.

The report of Commissioner of Patents Hall to the Secretary of the Interior shows that the defalcation of Bacon, late financial clerk of the patent office, is $50,000. His bond was only $10,000, and there is a question whether or not his bondsmen will be liable for more than that amount.

The time fixed has expired without the Government being able to secure the fourteen million in four and four eighths per cent bonds called for by the September circular, the purchases only amounting to $18,876,850.

Milinery. Mrs. C. C. Gorrell has a full line of ladies and childrens hats, gloves, Ruching &c. &c., and the ladies will find it to their interest to see her stock before purchasing elsewhere. New goods will be received every few days.
